A VACATION ECHO.

Pussy Cat! Pussy Cat! Where have you been?

We read in our nursery rhyme, Although I have not been to visit a Queen,

I've had many a jolly good time.

I have motored with friends to old Marblehead,

And felt the breath of the sea; The lobster and clams were singing a dirge,

As we bowered along merrily.

For well they know the appetite keen Of all who came their way,

And South Boston dunes, you may be sure, Were never behind in the fray.

We have seen the "slights" on the beach at Revere,

Ate pop-corn and ice cream cones, The scenic railway proved great fun, For some of the "sporty" ones.

Through country lanes, by river and lake, Past meadows, sweet and green,

We have sped along with never a thought, But the beauty of the scene.

The farms spread out on either hand, Were tempting beyond measure;

Squash, corn and beans, and other good things, We carried home with pleasure.

A jolly crowd, you may be sure, No matter what the weather,

We only knew, that life is sweet, When good fellows get together.

To cap it all came Grahame-White, With his wonderful flying machine,

On Squamfield hill, he realized The dream of Darius Gorge.

'Twas a glorious sight, when high in the heavens,

We soared toward the setting sun, Then like a bird, sped far away,

Away from the city's hum.

Soon the lights of the city twinkled, Like jewels in the sky,

As the news of the approaching double P. M. had learned to fly.

The sports were over, but, Oh, the crowd,

As it wended its homeward way, Carriage and cart and automobile,

And almost "the one horse shay."

Old and young, in gala attire, Trooping of horse and foot,

Leaving the birds on the meadows, To the quiet of Squamfield shore.

My summer has gone, but memory, Will hold it ever dear,

And may the friends who shared it, Be right on hand next year.

THEIR GOLDEN WEDDING.

John Lewis came out of the post-office and started briskly down the street. His mail was unusually heavy this morning—the weekly number of the Quincy Patriot and the quarterly notification of dues from the church trustees. It was a glorious October morning, and he drew himself up and stepped along with a cheerful alacrity that belied his gray hair.

A block from the postoffice a man getting out of a buggy in front of the hardware store hailed him cordially.

"Morning, John. Fine day. How are you?"

"Never was better. Say, Grant, could you and Mrs. Carter come around to my house next Thursday and help me celebrate?"

"Celebrate!" echoed Grant Carter in amazement. "Celebrate what?"

"Anniversary—my golden wedding anniversary. I'll be married 50 years next Thursday."

"Great Scott!" he gasped. "Married 50 years? Why, you ain't lived with your wife for 25 years, to my certain knowledge. What in thunder are you going to celebrate?"

"I am going to celebrate my golden wedding anniversary," repeated John Lewis, firmly. "Me and Jane ain't divorced. We've just been living separate on account of our differences of opinion, and I don't feel like letting the day go by without taking some notice of it. I'm going to keep open house all day and you and Mrs. Carter can come in any time."

"All right, we'll drop in. Say, John which would you rather we'd bring you—a solid gold dinner set or one of them inland gold megaliths?"

"Oh, just bring two or three gold bricks," was the reply. "That'll be about your limit."

He went on up the street turned to the right and stopped at the third house from the corner, a small white cottage. Without visible hesitation he crossed the yard and the neat porch and knocked at the door.

It was opened by a slender, elderly woman of about his own age, and the two looked into each other's eyes. It was the second time he had stood at his wife's door during the 25 years of their separation.

The other time she was laid up with an attack of inflammatory rheumatism, and within two hours of his call she had got up and walked about the house cured. A woman of pronounced psychic tendencies had said that, but Bessie Jackson said it was because Mrs. Lewis had got so hopping mad that she simply couldn't stay in bed.

The man cleared his throat.

"Morning, Jane," he said. "If you like you might come over to my house next Thursday, some time. I'm going to celebrate my golden wedding anniversary, and I thought I'd shifted the paper to his other hand—I thought you might like to come over."

The woman's bright gray eyes impaled him through her glasses. A clear color crept up under her skin.

"Your golden wedding anniversary?" she said, scornfully. "Well, John Lewis, I'm going to celebrate my golden wedding anniversary next Thursday, and you needn't come over."

She shut the door in his face. John Lewis walked thoughtfully to his own cottage, just around the corner, two blocks away.

Glenville was all but scandalized by the news of the approaching double celebration which spread through the village before nightfall. The sensation revived all the old gossip that had slumbered peacefully for many years, and by the time it reached the church trustees and the minister it became a matter for serious consideration.

They talked it over behind closed doors, and then with grave faces went first to John Lewis, then to his wife, and argued that the time had come when they should lay aside their differences and unite their lives once more. But the petition was all to no purpose.

John Lewis was mildly stubborn. "I ain't got nothing against Jane," he declared. "I wasn't mad at her when we separated, and I ain't mad at her now; but her mind's made up to it, and I guess we've got to go on."

John Lewis was firmly silent. She closed her mouth in a straight line and listened without a word to the sad expostulations of her pastor. When he had finished a faint smile and the bright sparkle of her eyes behind her glasses were the only signs that she had heard.

Rev. Mr. Dexter moved uneasily on his chair and cleared his throat.

"Don't you think you ought to, sister?" he asked.

"I've got along without John Lewis for 25 years," she said. "I guess I can keep right along without him."

It was the last touch John had threaded her needle for her years before. With a soft cry in her throat, she put her hand to her eyes. He had his arms about her in an instant.

"There, Jane, don't cry. I've come to take you home with me. I'm lonely as you and Mrs. Carter are, where a group of open-mouthed women stood breathless.

"You can all come along with us," he announced. "Me and Jane's going over to my house to finish our celebration together."—Mary C. Francis in St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

FIRST CHURCH.

There was an unusually large attendance at the morning service at the First Church, Sunday, at 10 o'clock.

Rev. Samuel A. Elliot, D. D. president of the American Unitarian association, Dr. Elliot took his text from Revelations 4:3 "There was a rainbow in the heavens." It was a very scholarly and able address and was listened to with marked attention. After the sermon Dr. Elliot congratulated the parish on the splendid way in which they were supplying the pulpit and which the splendid list of pastors, very indicated that the parish was very much alive.

At the session of the Sunday school, there was an attendance of delegation from Paul Revere Women's Relief corps, who were present to present the school with a handsome silk flag. The opening address was made by Mrs. Emma Marnock, president of the corps and the presentation was made by Mrs. C. P. Gould the patriotic instructor. The flag was received in the hall of the school by Charles H. Johnson, the superintendent. After the reception of it, the school sang "The Star Spangled Banner" and closed with a salute to the national emblem.

ADVERTISED LETTERS.

Letters remain uncalled for at the Quincy Post Office for:

Mrs. Wm. H. Bruce, Pantl Carlo, Gaviano Castiglione, John Craig, Mrs. Bella Damon, Giovanni DiMuzio, Bardi Eugenio, I. M. Hughes, Freeman E. Knox, Mrs. Alex. Lane, Miss Anna Martti, Miss Katherine M. McKay, Antonio Montemano, Arvin Page, Mrs. Charles Beardon, Miss Emmi Ruckley and A. S. Stevens.

NIAGARA IMPROVEMENTS.

Governments Join Industries to Beautify the Landscape—Old Eyesores Marked for Destruction.

A general movement in which the United States, New York state, and Canadian government have joined with industrial concerns at Niagara Falls, is bringing about a decided change in the surroundings of the great cataract. Acting on the recommendation of the governments, the large power companies are decorating the shores with lawns and shrubbery, making miniature parks of their grounds, and designing their buildings to fit in with the national reservation scheme.

In recent years a nest of old factory buildings, on the American side of the gorge just north of the steel arch bridge, has been the chief offense to the eyes of the visitors. These factories used water power on a small scale long before the modern methods of power production were dreamed of, and they were put up purely for utilitarian purposes, with no thought of the effect upon the scenery. Now several of them have been bought out and marked for destruction by one of the power companies, and more are to follow.

The stretch of land on the Canadian side is a reservation called Queen Victoria park. Nothing that landscape architects and gardeners could do to make the place beautiful has been left undone. Through the cooperation of the government and the company which operates on that side of the Falls, the commercial buildings in or near the park have been made to look like art museums or libraries, massive and dignified. The efforts to make them harmonize with the surroundings have been so successful that many tourists do not discover until they step inside that the buildings contain water-gates, turbines, electric generators and business offices.

The only structure that can be seen in the gorge from the American side is one whose walls have been built to resemble the natural rugged cliff. The masonry has weathered and the top is almost the exact shade of the surrounding rocks so that it is often overlooked unless pointed out by the guides.

Above the Falls this same company has created a separate little park to from the background for its water-gate house. The landscape architect has laid out winding driveways and footpaths, and they rivers that run under ornamental stone bridges and broaden out into swimming pools. Seats are scattered about under the trees and along the streams. It is estimated that the company has spent $1,000,000 for purposes of beautification alone.

On the American side of the rapids still farther up stream, another company has just bought $13,000 worth of trees and shrubs, of more than twenty varieties, to form a sort of green belt along the water. This is but one step in the work, begun several years ago, of giving the property a park-like appearance. The buildings are of dark gray stone, with simple lines, unobtrusive in the midst of the green area.

The problem presented by the factories to the north of the steel arch bridge, however, was the most difficult of all to solve, because the defacing of the skyline had gone on a long time before the modern companies came into existence, and the village of Niagara Falls had used the place for a general dumping ground. The treatment had to be correspondingly heroic.

First, the power company whose plant is nearest this point cleaned the gorge of all the debris and garbage, and planted such grasses and trees as had a chance to live. Then, after altering the design of the factory, which had been built on the site, it went ahead with the principal feature of the scheme—the construction of a rubble-stone cliff 200 feet high and 400 feet long. This is 14 feet thick at the base and costs about $75,000. It conceals the pipes through which the water falls from the top of the precipice to the turbines below.

The whole effect of the joint efforts of the governments and the companies is to minimize the evidences of industry and trade around the Falls. All new construction is prosecuted with an eye to beauty as well as utility, and the old eyesores on the escape are being removed as rapidly as possible.

GENEROUS CONTRIBUTION.

Charles Francis Adams to whom Quincy is indebted for beautiful Merrymount park continues his generosity in the vicinity of Lincoln where he now resides.

Lee's bridge on the Lancaster road between Concord and Lincoln, a landmark which had been through and stain, would soon be replaced by an ornamental structure, the expense of which will be borne largely by Charles Francis Adams of Lincoln.

The Middlesex County commissioners, considering the reconstruction of bridge, had decided to spend $7,000 for the purpose. Mr. Adams came forward, however, and offered to give enough money to make the bridge not only of lasting qualities but of beauty; and it is understood that his share of the building cost will be $20,000.

Citizens who have an appreciation of civic beauty and show it in the substantial way characteristic of Mr. Adams are a blessing to the community in which they live. Quincy has regretted Mr. Adams change of residence, although he still shows his interest in the home of his ancestors in many ways.

—That Quincy man who found a burglar in the house and locked the door in order to thump him and was then thumped himself learned a valuable lesson. The best thing to do when a burglar gets into the house is to let him have his way.—Boston Transcript.

HOME MAKING.

An Old Fashioned House Bungalow and Made Pretty and Livable at Small Cost.

Ben and I had boarded since our marriage some three years before, but we never intended to keep to that makeshift sort of living and had been constantly on the lookout for a house that we could buy for a little money. It must be within easy distance of the office, not too large, nor so cramped that it would not answer for a permanent home. We wanted enough land to give us plenty of light and air on all sides, but not so much that we would require a man to care for the place, and above all it must be thoroughly sanitary. We began by looking at new houses, but the ones we liked were always too expensive or too close to the neighboring dwellings, too far out of town, or too far from the street or trolley which amounted to the same thing.

Then a friend suggested buying an old house, and renovating it to our taste, but other people told us that that was usually more expensive than paying considerably more for a new house, so in the end we had to rely upon our own judgment, and the education in home making that we had been gradually acquiring from many sources. Perhaps the most valuable topics to be discussed every Sunday by various members before the meeting, will mean considerable work to those who undertake it.

The organization feels that it cannot live and be of a moral or spiritual benefit either to the church, city or humanity, but to discuss every Sunday by various members before the meeting, will mean considerable work to those who undertake it.

In order for them to carry out their winter's work which is largely clerical in nature, they have decided to hold their studies in the public schools.

Nov. 19.—That the Public Library of Quincy be kept open till 9 P. M., evenings during the week and on Sunday afternoons.

Nov. 26.—That Labor Unions are a menace to the Community.

Dec. 3.—Open Sunday.

Dec. 31.—That all Surgical and Medical treatment be free to all inhabitants by the Municipal Government.

SURPRISE PARTY.

About fifty friends gathered at the home of Russell Oliver, 14 South street, last September 29th, and greatly surprised him. The evening was pleasantly spent, games and singing being enjoyed until a late hour. Miss Gertrude Mullen presented Mr. Oliver with a large travelling bag to which the latter responded heartily. During the evening refreshments were served. Among those present were: Misses Mary Kenney, Mary McGilvary, Mabel Allen, Ella Mae Melville, Edith Mullen, Beat

IN NEW FIELD.

Quincy friends of Mr. and Mrs. John O. Hall, Jr., nee Burns, who are interested to know that they are now living at Yarmouth, Maine, where Mr. Hall has accepted the principalship of the North Yarmouth academy, taking up the work Sept. 19th. The academy is one with an honorable career dating back to 1814 and at present stands well among the New England preparatory schools, its membership comprising both boys and girls. The school buildings comprise a recitation building, teaching building and a residence for the principal all facing on a pleasant campus in the center of Yarmouth.

Mr. Hall is the elder son of Mr. and Mrs. John O. Hall of Upland road. He taught for a few years at Adams academy and the past few years has been principal of the High school at Millbury, Mass., resigning this summer.

INTERESTING EXHIBIT.

One of the most attractive and interesting of the many fine exhibits at the Chamber of Commerce Industrial Exposition, is that of the Bay State Street Railway Co. The company has endeavored not only to show the extent and scope of its lines as the largest street railway system in the world, but has also shown the attractiveness of the territory it serves as available for the location of the new industries and homes.

Probably the most striking feature of the exhibit is a mammoth water color, perspective map showing the entire territory. The routes covered by the passenger cars are outlined with red lights and some served by the electric express in blue lights, which flash alternately with a beautiful effect.

Illuminated transparencies showing the workings and development of the electric express type of car and equipment, typical parks and charming scenes are shown. A strometer-graph machine shows other views and occasional injunctions to the observer to locate in this territory and giving good reasons why it is the best in the country.

The key-note of the exhibit which has been carried through everything is that the person seeking for a new home, for a farm, or for a location for any industry should not go west but stay at home, that there is plenty more room in eastern Massachusetts, southern New Hampshire and northern Rhode Island with opportunities and advantages that are unexcelled.

The greatness of the territory industrially and the vast diversity of successful industries now established showing its pre-eminence for this purpose, is especially emphasized by another feature of the exhibit which shows, sample products in infinite variety from practically every kind of an establishment producing goods in all parts of the big field covered by the company's lines.

This is in line with a new plan being inaugurated by the passenger department to assist in every way possible to develop this territory industrially and residentially by putting the advantages of the section before the people who might be interested in locating here, which it is hoped will be of benefit not only to the company but the towns and cities along its lines.

PASTOR CALLED.

Rev. R. J. Davis, one of the most active of the younger pastors in this city has recently received a call to the First Baptist church in Yarmouth, Maine. Although he has not accepted the call as yet, he will in all probability do so in the near future although the people of his parish are exerting their best effort to convince him to stay. Mr. Davis came to Quincy two years ago to take the duties as pastor of the Calvary Baptist church with energy and enthusiasm. The church and Sunday school have grown wonderfully in size and efficiency during these two years, the people have received the best of the best in a way that has broadened and stirred them to better service. The young people have been set to work also and a Christian Endeavor society has been formed.

Mr. Davis' mission here in Quincy has been fulfilled in a most capable manner and there can be no doubt but that his life has been fully consecrated to his chosen work.

If the call is accepted, Quincy will lose one of its hardest working and most earnest pastors.

The town of Yarmouth, although with a population of but 5,000, is a splendid field for the work of a young man such as James G. Blaine, Thomas B. Reed and others of equal prominence. The spirit and lives of these men have been reflected back to their birthplace and have made it a brighter and better spot to live in.

VALUABLE PAPERS.

Under the will of Mrs. Abigail L. Gregg, late of Braintree, which was filed for probate in the Norfolk probate court, a letter from Thomas Jefferson to Mr. Huntington, inviting him to dine with Lafayette and Monticello, and an original copy of Washington's farewell address were bequeathed to her granddaughter, Mrs. Henry M. Faxon of Quincy.

BRIEFS

Mr. and Mrs. Carl J. Johnson have returned from their two weeks' trip.

William A. O'Brien of Somerville, is visiting his parents on Gay street this week.

Arthur F. Winton of Coddington street, has gone to Detroit, Michigan, for three weeks.

Misses Evelyn Cummings and Margaret Taylor both of whom underwent an operation recently are doing well.

J. A. Campbell and family of Field street, moved this week to Nantucket.

Ernest McConnell of Germantown has returned from North Carolina, after a three weeks' stay.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Fletcher of Granite street are guests of relatives at Pemberton for ten days.

F. B. Flahive left last week for Baton Rouge, La., on a business trip for Stone & Webster.

Miss Jennie S. Norrie of Newcomb place, left Saturday for a week's visit with friends in New York.

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Mitchell of Whitely road have gone to East Weymouth for two weeks.

George H. Brown and family after spending the summer at Kennerly, returned last week to their home on Elm street.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Fairbanks returned Sunday to their home on Granite street after a week's sojourn with relatives at Hull.

Miss Alice Pease, the well known concert and oratorio singer, has returned from a two weeks' trip to Atlantic City.

Archie Thayer has taken out nomination papers as an Independent candidate for representative from the fifth district.

Miss Luella Hunt of Miller Stille road has been the guest of her niece Mrs. Malcolm Rich, at her lovely cottage in Gloucester.

Word has been received of the death at Taunton, Sunday of Carl Davison formerly of 19 Nelson street, Quincy, aged about 24 years.

The autumn meeting of the South Shore branch of the Sunday school union, held at Colchester on Monday, Oct. 2, at 4 P. M.

From among twenty-five applicants William Hill was one of the five boys selected to attend the farm and trade school on Thompson's island.

Miss Catherine Gallahan, of South street, secretary to Col. Henry L. Kincaide, is enjoying a two weeks' sojourn in Virginia.

Friends of Arthur W. Farmer will be pleased to hear that he has returned to his home at 28 Bryant street from the Quincy Hospital, where he underwent a successful operation.

The many friends and members of the M. L. L. of H. will be sorry to hear that Mrs. Ellen M. Willer is confined to her room by illness, at her home on High School avenue.

Robert Johnson and family of Maple street, have been sojourning the past week at the farm in New Hampshire recently purchased by them.

Friends in this city of Miss Ella Wheeler, will be sorry to learn that she is to leave Quincy and make her home with her sister who has recently moved to Nantucket.

The will of Mrs. Abigail L. Gregg, late of Braintree, which was allowed by Judge Flint at Dedham, Wednesday, leaves $12,000 to Christ church, Quincy.

The Committee on Streets of the City Council were out on an inspection tour this week looking over the proposed widening of Hancock street between Granite and School streets.

Edward Spear formerly of this city but now of Lynnfield, has been renewing old acquaintances in this city the past week and has been the guest of his daughter Mrs. Charles Gragg.

Lysander S. Richards of Marshfield, formerly of this city, presided at the meeting of the ministers and laymen of the Plymouth and Bay Unitarian conference in All Souls church, Braintree on Sept. 26.

Mayor Shea is getting a much needed rest in Virginia, where he is free for a time from the cares of business as well as the cares of his office as Mayor. The duties of Mayor rest lightly upon the shoulders of the City Solicitor.

James Duncan, secretary-treasurer of the Granite Cutters union and vice president of the American Federation of Labor, who has been travelling through Europe for the past few months, returned home Saturday. He reports having had a very fine trip.

Citizens day was quite generally observed Sunday by the Women's Relief corps throughout the state, many corps attending Sunday school services in various towns and presenting the school with the Flag. First Church Sunday school was favored in this city and doubtless prizes the gift. It is a good lesson in patriotism.

At the annual meeting of the Supreme Lodge K. and L. of H. at Indianapolis last week, Mrs. L. A. Harding of Somerville who has held the office of Chaplain for several years, was unanimously re-elected and presented with the badge of office.

At the annual meeting of the National Electrical Workers' Union at Rochester, N. Y., returned Monday morning. He says an effort was made at the convention to amalgamate with the seceders but was unsuccessful. Mr. Hanson was elected as a delegate to the National convention of the American Federation of Labor to be held at Atlanta, Ga., in November.

The young girls' sewing society, the Dorcas of the Swedish Lutheran church, held their regular meeting at the home of Miss Olive Larson, Prospect hill. A program was rendered and refreshments were served after the meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. N. H. 213 of this city as well as friends extended congratulations to her.

Charles W. Hanson, who has been attending the convention of the National Electrical Workers' Union at Rochester, N. Y., returned Monday morning. He says an effort was made at the convention to amalgamate with the seceders but was unsuccessful. Mr. Hanson was elected as a delegate to the National convention of the American Federation of Labor to be held at Atlanta, Ga., in November.

Quincy High School played their third game of football with Weymouth High School, at Merrymount Park, Tuesday, Oct. 3. Capt. Johnson's boys outweighed the Weymouth boys, but the latter put up a fast game and held Quincy to six points.

Quincy secured their touchdown in the first quarter of the game. Larkin, Quincy's fast end, got the ball on an on-side kick and carried it over the goal. Johnson kicked a neat goal.

Quincy made many long gains but were held on downs, five yards from the goal at one time.

Flory, Quincy's full back, received slight injuries but stuck to the game and made many long games. Holmes, Chapman, Crane, Johnson and Blackman played exceptionally good games for Quincy.

The next game will be Quincy vs. Brighton at Merrymount Park, Oct. 6, 1911.

An illustrated lecture on California was given Wednesday afternoon and evening, at the Quincy High school, by James E. Erwin of that state.

This lecture was given for the benefit of the Athlete Association. There was a good attendance both in the afternoon and evening, and the talk was very interesting, as well as instructive. There were about two hundred beautiful views in color, as well as many unique and interesting motion pictures.

Mr. Erwin opened his talk with a description of the water trip from New York to the golden gate, mentioning and illustrating all the interesting places along the route, such as the cotton fields and sugar plantations of the south. The body of the lecture, however, was devoted to an ample description of the natural beauties of California, namely the orange groves, the wealth of fruits and flowers, and the battle of flowers. In addition to this full account of the natural beauties of the state, Mr. Erwin spoke of some of the chief hotels and public buildings of San Francisco, and of the fleet in the harbor.

At the close, the motion picture of the Stars and Stripes stirred the heart of every American, and it was met with loud applause.

OBJECT TO STABLE.

The Council Chamber at City Hall was the scene of a very animated meeting, Thursday evening, as a result of a hearing given by the Board of Health with regard to an application from the Wollaston Coal Company, asking permission to erect a stable to contain ten horses, on Weston avenue, near the Wollaston depot. About a week ago several complaints were entered to the Board of Health against granting such a license, and in order to arrive at a definite conclusion it was deemed best to hold a public hearing on the matter.

Fifty seventy-five residents of the section where the stable is to be erected, were in attendance. Many of them were direct owners of property, while others entering spoke in the interests of property owners, or were else directly interested in property themselves. All the members of the Board of Health were present and the meeting was presided over by Cornelius A. Duggan, chairman of the Board. Acting Mayor John W. McAnaney was also present, but took no part in any discussion.

The remonstrants evidently came fully prepared for the occasion, for they were accompanied by Paul R. Blackman, who acted as their counsel. The meeting was opened at 7.30, and Chairman Duggan, after reading the contents of the license requested, threw open the meeting to those present and asked those who favored having a stable erected on the spot proposed, to come forward. No one appeared at this time in favor of granting the license.

Attorney Blackman was the first to speak when those who desired to enter protests were called.

Councilman Arthur C. Gardner was the first speaker. He said he lived with two horses in his own stable. The meeting was opened at 7.30, and Chairman Duggan, after reading the contents of the license requested, threw open the meeting to those present and asked those who favored having a stable erected on the spot proposed, to come forward. No one appeared at this time in favor of granting the license.

Mr. Wickham says he does not want to hurt "business," and "business" should remain on the side-walk where it will not get run over.

In spite of all the delights of the aeroplane, it will probably never supplant the closed buggy for taking your best girl to ride.

Residents of the Downs want to know if the ordinance passed at the City Council meeting Monday night about parking dogs applies to roosters also.

Perhaps the best way to dispose of the enemy in modern warfare, would be to leave one of the battleships around loose, where they would be tempted to take possession of it.

The old fashioned girl used to put up preserves about now. Mrs. Newell was too busy writing papers for the Woman's club about preserving our institutions.

Eleven thousand "voters" in Newark N. J., could not be found at their addresses. The politicians must perform the duties for which they are elected by getting out to shake hands with real voters now.

Mayor Shea's purpose to relinquish his position at the end of the present term will be a great relief to several Quincy statesmen who want to fill his chair. But there can be only one at a time—Boston Journal.

Why does the announcement that one of the men at Columbia is to study cookery with 200 girls cause such a ripple of excitement? Why should a man learn housework? He should prove a useful husband to some sufferer before many years.

The boys who want to call on those Jackson college girls are certainly up against it for the new rules state that calls may be made only between 2 and 6 and 8 and 10 P. M. No man will be allowed to call on the same girl more than once each week.

Braintree is rejoicing over the prospect of having gas before many months. The Plymouth company, by its going actively at work putting in the plant and mains. The town is to have dollar gas which should be another cause of rejoicing, for Quincy has to pay $1.40.

Melrose wants an "L" extension so badly that a petition six feet long has been sent to the city authorities with the expectation that it will be sent to higher officials. Quincy needs the "L" also or some service that will give quicker and more frequent connections with Boston.

The augurs who interpret the goose-bone are predicting an early and a hard winter. The squirrels are gathering unusually abundant supplies of nuts; the muskrats are putting storm windows upon their habitations; the birds are flocking to the season in southward aviation and October starts in cold and stormy. From Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont come reports of heavy snow fall. Get out your fur coats and fill up the coal bins.

The decision of the alert trustees of the Brookline Public Library to keep their splendid new building open an hour later at night for two or three months, as a sort of experiment to determine whether there is any considerable demand for the extra hour, is a step in the right direction for a library to be of benefit to a community must be run to accommodate its patrons. There is a question in the minds of many users of the Quincy Library as to whether the trustees are not over-estimating the most of our splendidly equipped building. Eight o'clock closing seems early.

PROBATE COURT.

The following matters were disposed of by Judge Flint at the Probate court of Norfolk Probate court, Wednesday:

Wills allowed—Of Sarah E. Colburn, Brookline; Joseph C. Whitney, Milton; David A. Hodgdon, Westwood; Abbie H. Johnson, Canton; Gilbert H. Robinson, Brookline; William E. Humphrey, Weymouth; Helen E. Higgins, Braintree and Abigail E. Higgins, Brookline.

Administrations granted—On the estates of Jennie T. Histen, Quincy; Clementine Tucker, Stoughton; Peter F. Finn, Canton; Winifred J. Poulin, Weymouth; Walter L. Histen, Weymouth; Sarah Kinsdale, Quincy; Mary E. Humphrey, Weymouth; Elizabeth M. O'Leary, Dedham and Mary Schoeder, Dedham.

Trusteeship—A trusteeship was granted to Alfred K. von Arnim of certain estate given in trust under the will of Elizabeth C. von Arnim, Brookline; bond $500,000.

PROMISING CANDIDATE.

One of the most promising candidates for Republican nomination is ex-Senator Eugene C. Hultman. Mr. Hultman has not yet decided whether he will become a candidate. He is considering the question and may announce himself in the near future. Mr. Hultman is eminently qualified for the office as he has served the city as a member of the City Council. He has also served as Representative in the general court and as senator from the First Norfolk district. He is a member of the city committee and has been for a number of years.

ORDER OF MOOSE.

The regular weekly meeting of the Order of Moose was held on Wednesday evening and the charter that has been open for 90 days, closed. L. C. Claffin was elected Deputy Organizer. A substantial donation was voted in aid of the sufferers of the flood at Austin, Pa. It was decided to hold the first anniversary in Alpha Hall on Dec. 7th. Among other important matters was the appointment of Brother Cleaves as press representative, assuring a report each week, on Thursday, of the "doings" of the last meeting.

BOARD OF TRADE.

No mercy was shown to the Bay State Street Railway Company at the meeting of the Board of Trade, held in the rooms on Hancock street, Wednesday evening. A few minor matters were briefly discussed, but the greater part of the evening was devoted to the hurling forth of objections, sometimes accompanied by a reluctant compliance, against the railway system that now predominates in local circles.

The president of the association was absent, and in his stead William P. Thompson, the vice-president, presided. At the opening of the meeting, the presiding officer announced that the gathering was presided over by the presence of Capt. Samuel E. Perry of Atlantic City, New Jersey, a ceaseless agitator on the matter of better waterways.

Captain Perry is at present the guest of Frank Fessenden Crane in this city, and it was on the suggestion of the latter that the former appeared and spoke on "Deeper Waterways" before the members of the organization. Captain Perry, who is a member of the Atlantic Deeper Waterway Association, and besides being a delegate to all conventions, has been empowered with a special position in the matter by the Governor of New Jersey.

Captain Perry entertained the members of the board to a talk on the subject of deeper waterways. He was a very forceful speaker and commanded a ready delivery. He spoke of the many benefits to be derived from deeper waterways, and also gave a brief review of the different industries that had already benefited by the project.

He showed many instances where the value of deeper waterways was of almost incalculable account and brought his remarks to a close by stating the many improvements that would be brought about by the project. He was warmly applauded at the conclusion of his remarks and was given a vote of thanks for the courtesy he had extended to the members of the Board.

He finished speaking about half past eight and for the rest of the evening, devoted to one of the warmest ever entertained by the members of the association. A communication was read from the Associated Charities of the City of Quincy and the policy which they had adopted and the plans which they had formulated for the year were divulged. The assistance of the Board of Trade was solicited.

A communication was also read from the Board of Selectmen of Milton, in answer to one sent out recently by the secretary of the local Board of Trade, and dealing with the subject of the proposed extension of the Selectmen of Milton stated that the matter would receive careful consideration at the next Town meeting.

A letter similar to the one sent to the Milton Selectmen, was also forwarded to the local division superintendent of the Boston & Maine Railway Company, but the failure of the latter to reply caused the members of the Board of Trade to consider the action as a reflection upon them. The letter had requested the local railway authorities to present at the meeting and give their views as to what could be done in the matter of extending a car line from East Milton to the Boston line. The majority of the members were indignant over the way the communication had been treated and some immediately began to talk of a strike in all quarters.

A. L. Whitman scored the railway officials, not only for ignoring the Board of Trade communication, but for the system, as well, that is in vogue in Quincy. He said that in the Quincy Point station, he had seen to run on schedule time and suggested that the officials of the Elevated road be communicated with in regard to the "missing link." He said that he had traveled upon practically every railway in the United States but never encountered a more systematic than that which is prevalent in Quincy.

Charles Austin was not in favor of being too antagonistic with the railway and preferred having a communication sent to the heads of the local railway system. He said that any and all action in the matter would be premature.

John L. Miller, a local division candidate for Mayor this fall, was the next speaker. He said that a business proposition was being made, a communication being sent to the heads of the officials of the Railway company and not to any of the subordinates. He also stated that a railway will undertake an enterprise on the supposition that the furtherance of the same will be of added gain from a monetary standpoint.

He was followed by Ex-Representative Peter T. Fallon, who flayed the railway for ignoring the letter and furthermore added that the local system was the "most neglected and slowest system in the Commonwealth." He cited the case of the trolley freight and the great light that ensued with reference to having a station established on Washington street.

Mr. Fallon said that when the railway company wanted anything it was sure to appear before the Board of Trade, accompanied by its attorney, but added that when the people wanted anything that it was another question.

Miss Catherine Hodgkinson, Miss Edna Burke, Miss Mary J. Williams and Miss Florence Manhire were appointed by the board to the committee in conjunction with him to have charge of the new curtains to be placed in the Sunday school. The pastor also asked the co-operation of the League in arranging for an "Old Folks' Day" and the matter was left in the hands of the fourth vice president.

Permission was given the third vice president to draw on the treasury for funds for use in furthering the work being done by the League. An invitation has been given to the League to attend a Halloween party to be given by the Hall Place Epworth League Tuesday, Oct. 11. At the close of the business session a social hour was enjoyed in charge of Miss Catherine D. Hodgkinson, fourth vice president.

ASSOCIATED CHARITIES.

Great was the rejoicing of the finance committee of the Associated Charities of Quincy, Inc., to find at their meeting at 4 o'clock on Tuesday at the High school, that the sum of pledges already received amounted to over the $1000.00 which the society agreed upon at its meeting two weeks ago was the minimum on which to go ahead with the work. The City of Quincy is to be congratulated on having so many citizens who by their prompt and generous pledges have shown that they have the best interests of all the helpful organizations for all the people so closely at heart.

It shows a strong belief in the idea that there is great need of closer cooperation and a more confidential interchange between those most deeply interested in the welfare of the needy in our midst in order to make the best plan for raising the needy above the need of relief; to do constructive work which shall not simply relieve, like pouring water into a barrel with the spout open, but which shall find out the causes, remove the disability where possible, and to build up from within the wish and the will to stand alone. This is the vision of the new philanthropy, says Dean Hodges, which is, that the blessing to the giver comes not only from giving much, but often more from the care and wisdom with which the gift is bestowed and its help or harm to the person receiving. This is really economical giving in its truest sense. For there may be great waste in charity with the best of intentions. Lack of knowledge, it is a great waste sometimes that to withhold. Here is where the trained worker is greatly needed and who is now possible for Quincy.

Our Mayor has struck a high note with his recent address, in asking that party names be forgotten in the best service of the city. Let us, in this work, Jew and Greek, rich and poor, Catholic and Protestant, Syrian and Italian, work shoulder to shoulder for the best good of our common brotherhood.

The committee will continue their work hoping to reach the $1500 mark before Oct. 10, the time limit set. As their number is small it will be impossible to reach all who may wish to be counted among the Founders.

Guaranteeing assistance and a large number of the associated charities of Quincy, $25 is a Founder's pledge; $10 a Guarantor; $5 a Sustaining member and $1 an Annual member. Contributions sent to Rupert F. Claffin, the Treasurer, will be gratefully acknowledged.

MILLER FOR MAYOR.

The first citizen to publicly declare himself as a candidate for the Republican nomination for Mayor at the coming caucus is John L. Miller.

Mr. Miller is almost too well known to residents of Quincy to need any introduction, for he has been prominently connected with the business interests of the city for many years. His business is that of a granite manufacturer in which he has been actively engaged for many years. He has always been a staunch Republican and a supporter of the party principles.

He was for several years the active and energetic president of the Granite Manufacturers' association. He has also been a member of the School Committee for several years and is the present chairman of the board.

ANNUAL VISITATION.

The annual visitation of Rt. Wor. Hartley L. White, District Deputy Grand Master of the twenty-sixth Masonic district to Wollaston lodge, took place Tuesday evening and was the occasion for a large attendance of brothers of Wollaston lodge, as well as many visitors from other lodges in the district and throughout the state. The visitors took showing guests from Lynn, Norwood, Weymouth, Braintree, Haverhill, Randolph, Boston, Sandwich, Cambridge, Abington, Brockton, Riverdale, St. 1, Fair Haven, Vt. and Chester, Vt.

The district deputy was escorted to the lodge room by a committee composed of Wor. A. W. Fay, Wor. Eugene P. DeNormande, Wor. Walter S. Pinkham, Wor. Lewis D. Withersell

Notes and Comments.

—Up to Sept. 1 Boston deficit in rainfall was 5.66 inches for the year. Now it is only 4.26 of an inch. If Jupiter Pluvius keeps his gait, we'll soon be accumulating surplus for posterity.—Boston Record.

—People may applaud the Government ringmasters now for making the corporations roll over, play dead, and jump through the hoops, but wait until the lazzaroni are paid at the expense of the people.—Wall Street Journal.

—There have been so many Yales as students at Yale that the advent of one more would hardly cause any excitement; but they have all come from the United States. The new students of Harvard at Harvard is proper.—Boston Record.

—The Blue Hills reservation needs to offer no special inducements to nature lovers, but the fact that the deer which was captured while swimming toward Boston has been liberated in the reservation will give an added interest to those who are in the habit of tramping there.—Somerville Journal.

—The news that the Southern Pacific railroad has discontinued the free towel service in its passenger cars because it lost $21,000 worth of linen during the past year ought to serve as a conscience awakener to the people who are so proud of the souvenirs collected from railroads and hotels.—Somerville Journal.

—Snow fell Sept. 27 at Bryant's Pond, Maine, and at Le Pay, in the department of Haute Loire, France. In France it fell heavier than in Maine. If the superstition that is common in New England that the day of a snow storm governs the weather in the coming winter is shared by Frenchmen, the people of Le Pay are preparing for twenty-seven.—Boston Transcript.

—Turkey has only three modern battleships, and those are "bargains" it bought of Germany last year at a marked-down sale. On the other hand the Turkish navy does not suffer from a shortage of officers for it has six vice admirals, eleven rear admirals and 208 captains. The Turkish navy rather recalls the Kentucky militia of twenty years ago, which was rather shy of enlisted men but had eighty-two colonels.—Boston Transcript.

—Oakland, Cal., has lost its position as the largest American city to be governed by commission, now that Omaha has adopted this method of carrying on its municipal affairs. A current checking up shows that the city of 15 states have authorized commission government for cities in some form and that 150 cities have taken advantage of the right. This enumeration does not include seven states in which cities have full rights to frame their own charters independent of legislative action.—Boston Common.

—A Chicago man, 61 years old, who had been searching in vain for work for three weeks, was at the end of his resources when he decided that if he couldn't get work he might get himself into a jail. So he took up a brick and hurled it through the window of a clothing store. When his case came up in court people promised to see that he had three meals a day and the work for which he had been searching. The method of securing employment, however, is not recommended for general adoption, as the good Samaritans may not always be so conveniently at hand when needed.—Milford Gazette.

—Every now and then a savage attack is made upon the universities and colleges on account of the immorality which is said to be rampant in college life. Now let it be admitted once for all that there are young men in college, and now and then a man in the teaching force of the universities, who are dissolute in all the relations of life and unworthy to be received in any decent society.

—It is just as rare in the university as it is in any business organization. When at any one of our universities Commencement Week brings together hundreds of graduates, an exhibition is made of a decent and self-respecting manhood which cannot be surpassed in any of the associations which bring men together. Most of the aspersions to which we refer are the result of ignorance, folly and fanaticism.—Christian Register.

—Former Quincy Pastor.

The Rev. Dr. Maurice Howland Turk, pastor of the Congregational church in Natick for the past eight years, has filed his resignation, to take effect the first of the new year. It was a complete surprise to the members of the church. Dr. Turk will travel for eight months in European and Asiatic Turkey at the invitation of the American board of foreign missions for the purpose of studying the Christian missions.

During his pastorate Dr. Turk took an active interest in civic affairs and did much toward putting the town in the no-license column. With three other pastors he secured the prosecution of several violators of the liquor laws. Under his direction the church held classes and services for foreign spoken residents and his energy added many new members to the church.

Mr. Turk was for several years pastor of the Washington Street Congregational church at Quincy Point, where he was active in the parish and city work.

CITY COUNCIL.

A short but important meeting of the City Council was held Monday evening. There were practically no discussions, although several were anticipated upon some of the reports of the Finance Committee.

The absent members were Councilmen Sodergren and Sturges. Councilman Bryant announced the appointment of a committee to investigate the Woodward Fund and Property as provided by the City Ordinances. The committee is Councilman Branch, Bailey and Cherrington.

President Bryant also appointed Councilmen Richards, Nowland and Bailey as the special committee, under the resolution adopted at the last meeting of the Council to confer with the Gas Company and Gas Commissioners relative to a reduction in the price of gas.

President Bryant also appointed Councilmen Duffy, Nowland, Craig, Forde, Leslie and Sodergren as the special committee on the street car service, under a resolution passed at the last meeting of the Council.

W. F. Loud & Co. asked that their application for a permit to transport a large quantity of goods be granted. The application was taken from the committee and placed on file.

Mrs. W. F. Pynn asked to have her license as a common victualler transferred. Referred to Committee on Licenses.

Bay State Street Railway Co. and the New England Telephone Co. petitioned for a joint location of poles on Sea street. Referred to Committee on Streets.

Councilman Gardner presented a petition for the acceptance of a part of Davis street. Referred to Committee on Streets.

Councilman Richards presented a petition for the acceptance of Vernon street. Referred to Committee on Streets.

Councilman Gardner presented a petition for light on the street. Referred to the Executive.

The Committee on Streets reported an order for a public hearing Oct. 16, on petitions of the Telephone Co. and Street Railway Co. for a location for poles. Adopted.

The Finance Committee reported an order for $700 to paint and repair bath house. Ordered to a second reading.

The Finance Committee reported an amendment to the order for $2,500 to replace Neponset bridge. The amendment added the following clause: "Ordered to a second reading."

The Finance Committee reported an order for $7,940.73 for contagious diseases of the Board of Health. Ordered to a second reading.

The Finance Committee reported an order for $2,000 for scavenger work. Ordered to a second reading.

The Committee on Streets reported an order granting the Gas Co. permission to lay mains on Fennel street. Ordered to a second reading.

The Committee on State Aid reported an order granting Soldiers Relief. Adopted.

A public hearing was held at 5 o'clock on petitions of the Electric Light Co. for a location for poles. Supt. Austin stated that the poles were for the purpose of extending the service of the company.

Councilman Craig asked that the poles on Garfield street be moved to the new poles set were so near the inside edge of the sidewalk that it would be impossible for a snow plow to get by them. He had measured the width of a plow and the width of the sidewalk and he knew.

Supt. Austin stated that the new poles had been set to be in exactly the same location as the old poles. He further said that he would take the matter up with his engineer and if the poles were not right he would have them moved.

There was no opposition to the location of the poles and the matter was closed. Councilman Bailey offered an order for a granolithic sidewalk on Marion and Park street. Referred to Committee on Streets.

Councilman Cherrington offered an order accepting chapter 219 of the acts of 1911 as amended by Chapter 625. Referred to Committee on Fire and Police.

This act provides upon its acceptance by the City Council and Mayor, that permanent policemen shall be given one day off in fifteen. As it is now the police are given one day off in every 30 days.

On motion of Councilman Bailey the dog ordinance was taken from the table.

Councilman Smith moved to amend by adding the following words, after the word "provision," "after having been warned by the Chief of Police."

Councilman Smith said this ordinance was the same as in several other cities. He believed that it was fair that the Chief of Police should be notified the officer before he was halted into court. The amendment was accepted and the ordinance passed.

Later the vote was reconsidered and Councilman Smith moved to further amend, at the suggestion of the City Solicitor, by adding the words "he is owning or keeping a dog contrary to the provisions of this ordinance." "Amendment accepted and the ordinance passed."

The ordinance as it now reads is as follows: Section 1. No person shall own or keep in this city any dog which by barking, biting, howling or in any other manner disturbs the quiet of any person.

Extreme end of Merrymount road near Valley street.

Dr. Turk adopted and referred to Executive.

Councilman Duffy offered an order for a light on Silver street. Order adopted and referred to Executive.

Councilman Histen offered an order for light on Watson road. Order adopted.

Councilman Branch said that earlier in the season he had taken occasion to object to the sending of these orders to the Executive. He noticed that tonight the President had adopted a new plan of accepting the order and then referring to the Executive.

It seemed to him that if new lights were to be put in, the location should be taken up and carefully studied. Now we get lights where one person thinks they ought to be. The many orders for lights means a large increase in the budget for lights next year.

Councilman Smith asked if he simply objected to the order or the method of its adoption, to which Councilman Branch replied, both.

Councilman Cherrington asked the Mayor what chance there was for the order.

Mayor Shea replied, very little. The Mayor said that he considered it an expression of approval by the Council when it sent an order for a light to him, but he was not obliged to carry it out as no money was provided.

This plan has been going on all the year and it gives the Councilman a chance to say, it is up to the Mayor to put the light in.

Councilman Gardner believed the plan a good one. The more lights the better.

The order was then referred to the Executive.

The order appropriating $2,000 for a public landing at Houghs Neck took its second reading, the rules were suspended and the order was adopted. Adjourned at 8.35 until Oct. 16.

I. O. O. F. COMBINE.

Mr. Wollaston and John Hancock lodges of Quincy and Neponset lodge of Neponset, will combine their forces for the coming winter, the same as for the past few years. Mr. Wollaston lodge will work the first degree for the three lodges at Quincy, Oct. 10, and Nov. 13, at Neponset lodge Dec. 12, Jan. 9, Feb. 14, and at John Hancock lodge March 12, April 9, and May 13.

The second degree will be worked by Neponset lodge at Neponset, Oct. 16, Nov. 20, and Dec. 19, at Quincy Jan. 15, Feb. 19, and March 20, and at Wollaston, April 15, and May 20.

The third degree will be worked by John Hancock lodge at Wollaston, Dec. 22, 25, 28, March 27, and April 29, and at Neponset May 22.

The dates for the staff visitations are, Mr. Wollaston lodge to Neponset, Nov. 13, Neponset lodge to Wollaston, Dec. 19, John Hancock lodge to Quincy, Dec. 22, 25, 28, March 27, and April 29, and at Neponset May 22.

The Finance Committee reported an order for $2,000 for scavenger work. Ordered to a second reading.

The Committee on Streets reported an order granting the Gas Co. permission to lay mains on Fennel street. Ordered to a second reading.

The Committee on State Aid reported an order granting Soldiers Relief. Adopted.

A public hearing was held at 5 o'clock on petitions of the Electric Light Co. for a location for poles. Supt. Austin stated that the poles were for the purpose of extending the service of the company.

Councilman Craig asked that the poles on Garfield street be moved to the new poles set were so near the inside edge of the sidewalk that it would be impossible for a snow plow to get by them. He had measured the width of a plow and the width of the sidewalk and he knew.

Supt. Austin stated that the new poles had been set to be in exactly the same location as the old poles. He further said that he would take the matter up with his engineer and if the poles were not right he would have them moved.

There was no opposition to the location of the poles and the matter was closed. Councilman Bailey offered an order for a granolithic sidewalk on Marion and Park street. Referred to Committee on Streets.

Councilman Cherrington offered an order accepting chapter 219 of the acts of 1911 as amended by Chapter 625. Referred to Committee on Fire and Police.

This act provides upon its acceptance by the City Council and Mayor, that permanent policemen shall be given one day off in fifteen. As it is now the police are given one day off in every 30 days.

On motion of Councilman Bailey the dog ordinance was taken from the table.

Councilman Smith moved to amend by adding the following words, after the word "provision," "after having been warned by the Chief of Police."

MAYOR SHEA NOT TO RUN.

All doubts as to whether Mayor Shea would be a candidate for reelection at the coming municipal election have been dispelled, for in a communication made public Monday his Honor stated that he feels that he can not afford to devote any more time to the office of Mayor.

Mayor Shea has held the office for four successive years, the longest term of any previous Mayor the city has ever had. During the past few months there has been much speculation among the politicians, as well as citizens in general, as to whether he would retire or would seek reelection. It seemed to him that if new lights were to be put in, the location should be taken up and carefully studied. Now we get lights where one person thinks they ought to be. The many orders for lights means a large increase in the budget for lights next year.

Councilman Smith said this ordinance was the same as in several other cities. He believed that it was fair that the Chief of Police should be notified the officer before he was halted into court. The amendment was accepted and the ordinance passed.

Later the vote was reconsidered and Councilman Smith moved to further amend, at the suggestion of the City Solicitor, by adding the words "he is owning or keeping a dog contrary to the provisions of this ordinance." "Amendment accepted and the ordinance passed."

DAY NURSERY ANNUAL.

The annual meeting of the Quincy Day Nursery Association on Tuesday afternoon was largely attended and was an unusually enjoyable meeting being held at the home of Mrs. Clarence Burgin, Presidents hall, instead of at the clubhouse of the Quincy Women's club as is the monthly meeting.

Interesting reports were given showing the Association to be actively at work all through the year. Plans were made and committees chosen for "Tag Day" to be held Saturday, Oct. 14.

The hospitality of the hostess was enjoyed and the annual hour of the meeting. Yearly reports were given of officers for 1911-1912 were as follows:

SECRETARY'S REPORT.

In some respects the year just closing, the eighth in the history of the nursery, has been a trying one. The serious epidemic which so alarmed our whole city did not spare our Nursery. That it has recovered itself and is now even better than ever to care for the children of needy mothers is a great tribute to the wisdom, devotion and the steady hand of the president of this Association.

And surely the thoughtful care and loving service of the matron did much towards the suppression of the epidemic and greatly relieved the hardships of those in quarantine.

The nursery mothers owe to her a debt of gratitude greater than they realize. The nervous and physical strains for Mrs. Loring were very great it was thought best to close the Nursery for two weeks in June so that she might have an absolute rest. Owing to the season of quarantine of the Nursery and the longer quarantine for the families afflicted the aggregate attendance of children for the year is much smaller than last year although up to February the number was larger than for any other year.

A visit to the Nursery during the summer months would have convinced one that it had come into its own again and a happier, healthier set of children would have been found.

They lived in the open air, they were fed on the best food, they had clean and substantial dinners on tables spread in the covered summer houses with their wooden floors. There the playthings were also and the large shady yard with the swings afforded endless amusement for the children.

One mother had her child with her and a canopy top was given by the Kathryn Crane Memorial club, a club of little girls who had before given generously to the Nursery.

Individual friends have been most thoughtful and kind. Mr. Patch has followed his yearly custom of furnishing the Nursery with a day's worth of food. One mother has sent daily to the Nursery four quart jars of splendid Jersey milk. Another has about supplied the Nursery family with potatoes after the large quantity given at the time of the provision shower was exhausted. As the children use a peck a day one can see this gift was a welcome one.

Many have sent clothing which the matron has given wisely and impartially. During the year she has given out 153 pieces of clothing all mended.

Perhaps the Red Letter day to the children was that of Dec. 21, the date of the annual Christmas and New Year's celebration for the Nursery children and mothers. All was sunshine and cheer within and without.

The children were radiant with joy and contributing to the small degree to success of the day by their songs and little recitations. The Universalist Sunday school gave the tree with its beautiful ornaments and many friends helped to load it with gifts.

The efforts of the Association for raising money have been successful as in years past. Tag day brought in the treasury $500. A good sum when we remember that represents half a day's work as the rain sent all home soon after noon. The annual provision shower was held in the building through the courtesy and hospitality of the church and the hostesses at the social tea hour.

The shower was as usual a generous one and aided very materially in keeping down the grocery bills for the year. The Valentine parties suffered a little on account of the scarlet fever scare but nevertheless raised the substantial sum of $162.70.

The Day Nursery Association has held ten regular meetings but with an attendance below that of last year. Several very stormy days have kept many of the small numbers but still seems that more money is being raised monthly meetings, which are held on or about the first Tuesday of every month, if the effort were made and memories taxed a little. Perhaps the apparent indifference on the part of members and directors comes from the comfortable feeling of absolute confidence in the present management, but active participation in the good work would be a satisfaction and benefit to all and certainly a great encouragement to those who assume the responsibilities of management.

Through the courtesy of the Women's club the meetings have been held in the club house.

With a Nursery in such admirable running order and a public willing to respond to its needs the management earnestly wishes for a larger volunteer force. More children to be cared for and more mothers to be helped and encouraged.

For the fulfillment of this wish we look confidently to the help of the proposed paid secretary of the associated charities.

With gratitude to all who have so nobly helped the Nursery and trusting in a continuance of their favor the Association enters a new year full of hope and vigor.

Alice L. Page.

MATRON'S REPORT.

The number of children cared for at the Nursery from Oct. 1, 1910 to Sept. 30, 1911 was as follows: October, 402; November, 408; December, 302; January, 371; February, 108; March, 211; April, 211; May, 238; June, 134; July, 245; August, 262; September, 373; total, 3,267; representing 43 different children and 22 families.

EVENING SCHOOLS.

Evening schools opened at the Willard, Adams and High school buildings Monday evening with fully an average attendance as at any time last year. At the Willard school there were 89 in attendance at the opening and what is somewhat remarkable, nearly all of the students were Finnish people. Two native teachers are employed, and are of great assistance.

At the Adams school the attendance was 78 which is about the same as last year.

At the High school there was an attendance of 76 in the freehand and mechanical drawing classes, 38 in the commercial department and 29 in the cooking department. The cooking course will probably be discontinued unless the attendance is larger.

MORTGAGE BURNED.

An unusual surprise party which might also have been termed a Thanksgiving party, was held at the Hall Place M. E. church, Tuesday evening, the occasion being the celebration of the paying of the church debt and the burning of the note.

Fronting 10 o'clock a social hour was enjoyed. At nine o'clock the pastor, Rev. T. C. Martin, called the assembly to order.

The service opened with congregational singing led by Mr. Charles Goucher, with Miss Mary Williams as pianist, followed by prayer by the pastor.

The pastor then briefly told of the efforts to raise the money to pay off the debt on the church contracted some seven years ago, and spoke highly of the readiness and willingness with which the people helped, in this important matter by freely pledging their money to this worthy cause, the understanding being that the entire amount should be paid on or before Oct. 1st, 1911, in which case the holder of the note would remit one year's interest. The entire amount of three hundred and seventy dollars, was received by the church on the day of the service.

Eighty-four persons contributed toward the amount. Mr. Martin then announced that the debt had been paid and the treasurer of the church held the note.

He then told of the work being done in planning for a course of scriptural lectures to be given by talented people during the winter months. Various ways of furthering these plans were suggested by those present which the committee took under advisement.

There were only four of the men present who signed the note when it was drawn, Charles A. Goucher, H. W. Williams, F. W. Fuller and M. P. Fuller. The treasurer of the church, Mr. C. S. Jose laid the note on the table and the four members present each laid a corner of the note while the standing audience sang the doxology.

A vote of thanks was given to the pastor for the faithful work he had done in raising the money.

Fruit of all kinds was served by the Ladies' Aid.

Great credit is due the pastor for the work he has done in helping to meet this great emergency. At no time since the debt was contracted has it been possible to raise this amount of money without seriously handicapping the efficiency of the work, and yet it has become more and more plain to the members of the church that the debt was of itself a serious handicap in the work.

Mr. Martin came to the church a practical stranger in April and set to work at once to clear the "deck for action." A considerable part of the money has been raised through his own personal efforts and the culmination of his untiring work in raising the money.

Two other members of the church were also largely instrumental in this work, Mr. Charles A. Goucher and Mr. Henry Williams, who were members of the committee and who helped in securing the money.

In addition to raising the money the pastor also raised money enough to put a new bath room into the parsonage, which is all completed.

NEW SUBMARINES.

Secretary of the Navy Meyer has awarded contracts for two new submarines to the Electric Boat company of New York and Quincy. When construction of these vessels starts, the United States will have a total of 21 submarines in building.

LECTURE ON COLUMBUS.

"The life and voyage of Columbus" was the subject of a most pleasing discourse, delivered on the evening of the holiday to the members of the Houghs Neck Catholic Lyceum and their many friends, in the clubhouse, by Rev. Patrick J. Scannell, curate at St. John's church. The speaker readily adapted himself to the subject and gave a complete history of the attempts and successes met by the great American explorer.

He also depicted the many experiences encountered and praised the devoted spirit that was displayed by the followers of Columbus. This was the first of a series of talks to be given under the auspices of the Lyceum and the members considered themselves fortunate in having such an able orator as Fr. Scannell for the occasion.

At the conclusion of his remarks an entertainment was in order, in which many local talent participated. Refreshments were served and the event concluded with dancing which was enjoyed till midnight.

ANNUAL CONVENTION.

The 45th annual convocation of St. Stephen's Royal Arch Chapter was held in the Masonic apartments Wednesday evening. The reports of the secretary, treasurer and chairman of the permanent fund were most satisfactory. The officers elected were immediately installed by Excellent John H. Whitehead, acting Grand High Priest. After the installation Excellent Roscoe M. Horton, the retiring Grand High Priest, presented with a Past High Priests Jewel, the presentation being made by Ex. John H. Whitehead. The new officers of the chapter are: High Priest—William H. Parry. Excellent King—Walter E. Piper. Excellent Scribe—Lawrence D. Danforth.

Treasurer—Eben Hardy. Secretary—James J. Webb. Captain of the Host—Arthur F. Raymond. Principal Sojourner—Louis S. Cleaves. Royal Arch Captain—John G. Roberts.

Master Third Vell—David Hanson. Master Second Vell—Leroy Frout. Master First Vell—Jacob Peterson. Senior Steward—Lafayette Gleason. Junior Steward—Arthur Crowley. Organist—Herbert Y. Pollett. Tyler—Dexter Rebeck.

DRAMA PRESENTED.

"Fast Redemption," a New England drama in four acts, was presented before a large audience in Music hall, Wednesday evening, by the members of the old St. John's Dramatic club. The members who played in the different parts of the drama were: John J. Phelan, who played the part of the hero, created a reputation that still lingers in the minds of many to the present day, and great anxiety was manifested when it was learned the revival of "Fast Redemption" was to take place for the benefit of St. John's parish.

The play was fully presented and the various characters were portrayed in a splendid manner. John Maynard, a New England farmer, impersonated by John J. Bradley was a most conspicuous figure throughout and this part was looked upon with great interest.

In the first act, a husky scene at the old farm was shown. Harry Maynard, son of the New England farmer, who was none other than John J. Phelan, becomes influenced by the guile and chicanery of Robert Thornton, a speculator, portrayed by Edward H. McGinty, and leaves home in search of a fortune.

In the second act, Tom Larcum, another farmer, impersonated by ex-councilman Michael T. Walsh, created great roars of laughter assisted by Matthew Fay, as Nat Harlow, and Annie T. Connors, as Cora. Cora, the girl with two strings to her bow. Thornton returns home and states that Harry has fallen into the depths of ignominy and disgrace and is past redemption. Jessie Maynard, an adopted daughter, a part taken by Mildred H. Phelan, refuses to believe the story and determines to go in search of Harry in company with Mrs. Charity Goodall, who was Miss Julia B. Duffy.

In the third act is shown the search for Harry in the city. Capt. Bragg, cleverly impersonated by Thomas P. Shen, discovers Harry in a bar room on the verge of madness. Capt. Bragg believes himself to be the discoverer of Harry, but is afraid of him and doesn't stop to drink. Finally Harry Larcum, and Stuh, a negro rescue him.

In the fourth act is shown a Thanksgiving reunion at the homestead and the death of Thornton.

CHRYSANTHEMUM SHOW.

Local florists, William Patterson of Wollaston and James Noel of Codrington street are preparing to carry off some of the prizes at the annual Chrysanthemum show in Boston.

Nov. 9, 10, 11 and 12 are the dates and as usual the exhibition will be held in Horticultural hall, and every bit of space will be taken for the display, which will include contributions from all the leading growers. The committee in charge consists of John A. Pettigrew, chairman; William N. Craig, Robert Cameron, John K. L. Farquhar, J. Willard Hill and M. A. Patten.

OLD COLONY ASSOCIATION.

The quarterly meeting of the Old Colony Association of Universalists was held in Hingham, Wednesday. The morning was devoted to a conference the subject being, "The Church of today and its Finances." After dinner a visit was made to the Old Ship church, Universalist, built in 1681, the oldest in America. At the business meeting held at 2 P. M. the following officers were elected: President, Rev. O. Howard Perkins, Brockton. Vice president, Rev. C. F. Andrews, Plymouth. Secretary and treasurer, Eben Prescott, Braintree.

Executive committee, the above officers and Rev. L. B. Ballentine of Abington, Rev. Thomas Roscoe of Hingham, Rev. Fanny Austin of Quincy.

Rev. L. M. Powers, D. D. of Haverhill gave the address of the afternoon his subject being "The Reciprocal Duties of Country and City Dwellers."

"Don't forget Mrs. West's Piano-forte Recital, Oct. 20, 8 o'clock, Alpha Hall."

WOLLASTON UNITARIAN CLUB.

At the opening meeting of the Wollaston Unitarian club Tuesday evening, Lafayette G. Blair, a prominent Boston attorney, well known as a clever after dinner speaker delivered an address upon "Giants and Pygmies."

The speaker, being felicitously introduced by President C. S. Adams, declared that he knew nothing about the subject at hand. He always spoke at random but being told he must have a subject had chosen this one for the subject of the evening.

He was told that Wollaston was the well part of Quincy and that no one thought themselves bigger. Such being the case he was willing to play pygmy to their giant.

Mention was made of the French savant who computed Adam to be 123 feet, 9 inches in height and Eve 118 feet, 9 inches. The speaker had never believed in the fall of man but this puts new light on the subject. If Adam was 123 feet no wonder his fall shook up the human race.

Adam's fall really meant something for from that time we find the human race beginning to degenerate and we reach the age of Moses we find him a diminutive fellow of 13 feet.

This accounts for Moses' bad luck and proves that if you would be 13 feet in all history you will not find a giant 13 feet tall who had good luck.

While the Bible makes many references to giants, there is but one made to dwarfs or pygmies. This appears in Leviticus and forbids a dwarf to make any offering to the Lord. This must account for the slimmness of the contribution box at the present day for those who are short do not dare to contribute.

Reference was made to the Patagonian giants of the Straits of Magellan who are described by Captain Bouma as of a thievish, malignant and brutish nature.

It has been said by some that Rockefeller and Morgan were Patagonians, but as the latter have enough to answer for I will not add this last affliction.

In the world there are really no such things as giants or pygmies, as everything in the universe is relative and only by comparison is one great and the other small. Some call the great small and others the small great.

Dean Swift in that most marvelous satire in the English language "Gulliver's travels" shows how in "small" the Lilliputians had as comprehensive view of life as the larger man. In the visit to the giant Brobdignags, he also showed that what was fair to them was coarse and repugnant to Gulliver.

While Swift's book was a satire on the government of England in particular it nevertheless contains a wonderful lesson for us.

It is not as a thing really is but as it appears to us. Well may we agree with Longfellow that "to him with ear finely attuned a symphony of sweetest music fills the air and reaches to his soul, entering unheard to those of duller hearing."

Notes and Comments.

—Baedeker is dead and gone, we trust, to some place he can mark with his approving star—Boston Record.

—If citizens would pay more attention to the Bible study departments of the newspapers and less to the divorce dispatches, the prospects of good conduct might be more generally adopted.—Concord Patriot.

—Georgia now has a "Bird day" for observance in the public schools. Like Arbor day, it is not a holiday, but is to be devoted to instruction on the life and usefulness of our common birds. Too much teaching of the wise providence of nature cannot be given.—Somerville Journal.

—With an apparent deficit of approximately $1,750,000 and an admitted shortage of $300,000, the New York New Haven and Hartford R. Co., continues to pay a dividend of eight per centum per annum. And yet they put Charles M. Chase, a man of no repute, and a man of no money, to the head of the company. They are keeping him there!—Revere Journal.

—Philadelphia may well be envied in that most of her population of 1,500,000 live in real homes, as distinguished from apartments or flats. In more than one instance people have removed from Somerville, says the Journal of that city because of the difficulty in finding a single home, with yard room for young children, at a moderate price.

—Poor men cannot buy space in newspapers like rich men. They cannot hire workers to run for them. They cannot hire a hall to tell voters where they should be elected. Perhaps we shall conclude that no man shall be allowed to do anything whatever for himself as a candidate and no money shall be spent other than that spent by the public for necessary machinery of the election.

—A movement to raise funds for a monument in Washington in memory of the women of the civil war will prosper most if made nationally comprehensive. There is no need to distinguish between womenfolk who prayed for preservation of the Union and equally devoted wives, mothers, and sweethearts of men who fought for the confederacy. Their courage and tenderness are our common heritage.

—Just entering its 20th year as an educator of young men, Chase University has nearly 7,000 students and assets amounting to $37,250,000. It will be a good many more years, however, before it joins the same class with Harvard, Yale and other New England institutions, when it comes to prestige and loyalty. Every city and the other intangible things which to spend by the public for necessary machinery of the election.

—The Massachusetts election will be watched with keen interest not only in New England but all over the country, particularly because of the apparent hostility shown by the Democrats in Congress this year against New England industries. It remains to be seen whether Massachusetts people approve a movement calculated to injure the industries upon which the prosperity of the state depends.—Portland, Me. Express.

—The city of Boston is to give $2,000 toward the drinking fountain for horses and dogs to be placed in Post-office square as a memorial to the late George T. Agassiz. Every city or town in the state could have a suitable memorial to Dr. Agassiz says the Somerville Journal by providing a drinking place for dogs on fountains already standing. Any one who has witnessed the frantic attempts of dogs to reach water at these fountains will appreciate the need of such provision.

—Nine policemen in New York Tuesday surrounded a house to arrest two burglars, one of whom was nine years old and the other five. Just took up a five-year-old boy and sent him in the role of burglar. The police say the number of desperate criminals recruited from the nursery is growing, and blame the motion-picture shows. Yet these are carefully censured and invite censorship. Has any one a more plausible theory?—Milford Gazette.

—Senator Crane is quoted as saying that Massachusetts will elect a republican governor this year. That will be easy if republicans who last year kicked over the party traces return to their allegiance. Whether they do so is the sole question involved in the coming campaign. Republicanism elected Mr. Foss governor just as they sent him to Congress from the Cape district. If they like the way he has filled the office they may give him another term; if they don't, they don't. Crane's prediction will be fulfilled, as it ought to be.—Lowell Courier-Citizen.

FRATERNAL SPIRIT GROWING.

Rev. William R. Taylor, minister of the Brick church in Rochester, N. Y., one of the largest Presbyterian societies in the country, invited Rev. J. H. Crocker, minister of the Rosedale Unitarian church, to preach in his pulpit Sunday. At that time a week's campaign of religious effort was inaugurated in the church. This is probably the first time a liberal preacher has been asked to address a gathering of Presbyterians. The reason given by Dr. Taylor is the desire of the pastor and people to hear the author of "The Church of Today"—Transcript.

APPRENTICES SCHOOL.

The opening of the school for apprentices at the Fore River Shipbuilding Company, for the year 1911-1912, was officially ushered in Tuesday, when addresses were made by Admiral Bowles and Naval Constructor Bankson. The exercises took place in the school room and were attended by a large number of those who have enrolled in the apprenticeship course.

In his address to the boys, Admiral Bowles exhorted them to be mindful of three things, viz: the opportunity that was before them, the responsibility placed upon the company, and the fact that the shipbuilding industry was a most important one in the world.

He told the boys to be energetic and conscientious in their work, and urged them to be ever mindful of the fact that their accomplishments elicited the same reflection upon the company as upon themselves.

He said that the trait of being thrifty was an exceptionally fine asset and that it could be employed in a large measure in all apprenticeship work. He concluded his remarks by stating that the greatest pleasure would come to boys when they once realized that they had mastered their work.

Naval Constructor Bankson dwelt at some length on the marvelous work of the apprentices, of which can be seen at the Art Museum, and urged the boys to have such ideals as are embodied in their works of perfection. He said that there was no work being done at the present time like was accomplished by the apprentices, but insisted upon approaching that perfection as nearly as possible.

Both men were warmly applauded at the conclusion of their remarks. The remainder of the day was given over to assigning the boys to the different departments and in drawing up the plan of work for the coming year. James E. Neary, instructor of the Apprentices, was in charge of the opening exercises.

HAS NARROW ESCAPE.

Nicholas T. Murphy, the expressman, had a narrow escape from a serious injury on Tuesday at West Quincy. His team was standing in front of Mayo's hardware store when a passing stone team frightened his horse. It started to run and Murphy made a jump for it. As he did so the animal threw him violently against the curb.

In addition to receiving numerous cuts and bruises about the body, he was severely cut about the head. He was taken to the office of Dr. Ash and after receiving treatment was taken to his home.

MOHAWK A. C. DANCE.

The annual dance of the Mohawk A. C. an organization composed of young men of this city, was held in Alpha hall, Monday evening and was largely attended. Moore's orchestra furnished the music and dancing was in order until midnight.

The affair was in charge of the following committee: John Housenberger, John Flaherty, Joseph Wade, James Hogan, William Hadie, James O'Brien, Warren Blanchard and Jeremiah Moynihan.

BIRTHDAY PARTY.

A number of friends of Miss Harriett Baird daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Archie P. Baird, of Sea Street, gathered at her home Monday evening in observance of her eighteenth birthday. The homestead had been prettily decorated for the occasion and the birthday party was a gala one from every consideration. A handsome birthday cake, bearing a candle for each successive year of her life, was presented to the young girl by her mother, and after the feast, games of all sorts were in vogue.

Among those who participated in the affair were the Misses Cecil Hayes, Gertrude Scott, Harriett Baird and Mr. Frank Kenney, Mr. Reginald Pepper and Mr. Frank Haverly; also Mr. Baird, Mr. and Mrs. Baird, Mr. and Mrs. Baird, Mr. and Mrs. Hennessey, Miss Baird was also the recipient of many beautiful presents.

Miss Baird is widely known in local circles and while at the Quincy High school, where she completed her studies last year, she was one of the most prominent students. She is a great lover of athletics and is very proficient in the various branches. She is also a talented pianist and is at present a student at the New England Conservatory of Music.

INTERESTING MEETING.

An interesting meeting of Clan McGregor was held Monday evening. The entertainment committee made a report of a program for the coming winter months which was approved by the Clan. This program provides for something for every meeting, either the reading of a paper on some subject of local interest or an entertainment program.

The report of the treasurer showed the Clan to be on the best financial standing it has ever been.

WILL CANVASS VOTE.

The returns from all over the country that have been taken by the different branches of the granite cutters' union on the question of whether or not to affiliate with the International Union of Laborers, have been received at the union headquarters in Quincy and the vote was canvassed Tuesday night at a meeting of the council.

ASK FOR DIVORCE.

Charges that her husband "wounded" her are contained in the divorce suit which Mrs. Matilda Madeline Macleod of Boston has filed in the Suffolk superior court against Neil Murdoch Macleod of Quincy. She also asks that his property be attached to satisfy her claims for alimony.

Mrs. Macleod alleges that she was "wounded" while living in Quincy in November, 1909. She also alleges that she was assaulted, beaten, bruised and cruelly and abusively treated then and since. She says she is all neglected to provide her with the necessities of life in food, clothing and shelter, though she is of sufficient means to do so.

The Macleods were married in Chicago on Nov. 28, 1908, and lived afterward in Quincy and Boston.

HIGHMAN ANNIVERSARY.

The presentation by Ambassador James Bryce in the army Monday evening before more than 2,000 people of the ancient "mountain stone" of old Highman, in England, was the most notable event of the celebration of the 275th anniversary of the town of Highman.

The British Ambassador, in a felicitous address, made the occasion one of some international importance in the warmth of his expressions and the significance of the blood relationship which such a gift and such an event brought forth.

In addition to the "mountain stone," which weighs about 600 pounds, the Ambassador also presented a bit of woodcarving from the old church in Highman, Eng., and in return for these gifts the town fathers presented Ambassador Bryce the freedom of the American town which was founded by settlers from and named after old Highman in England 275 years ago.

The State Army was handsomely decorated for the occasion and about the platform were the British and American colors. The platform was also decorated with the battle flags of the United States and the British Empire. In the center of the platform was the large stone and beside it was a model of the memorial tower in which it is going to be placed.

There was a chorus of 100 voices, more than half of them sons, who sang the song "The Mountain Stone." There were present in the hall representatives of about all of the families in this section of the country and descendants of the first settlers from far distant parts of the country.

Ex-Gov. John D. Long was master of ceremonies and when shortly after 8 o'clock he and Ambassador Bryce came up the main aisle arm-in-arm followed by the committee and the town fathers, the entire audience arose and greeted them.

The exercises began with the singing of an old hymn by the chorus, followed by the singing of "The Reconciliation." Ex-Gov. Long introduced Ambassador Bryce, who presented the stone to the town of Highman. The latter presented the stone to William L. Gifford, chairman of the Memorial Committee, and then came the presentation of a scroll—the freedom of the town—to Ambassador Bryce after which a reception to Ambassador Bryce.

CHASE-GALLAGHER.

Miss Ruth Gallagher, a well known Milton young lady, was united in marriage Oct. 6th at her home to Fred Chase. The bride was attended by Miss Emily Emerson, a graduate of the Emerson of Dartmouth college and a classmate of the bride in the class of '05 at Smith college. The groom is a graduate of Dartmouth in the class of '05. Among those present was Karl Skinner, private secretary to the president, Nicholas of Denmark and Miss Fanny Hazen and Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Chase of Hanover, N. H.

JOHN EVANS INJURED.

John Evans, one of the well known residents of West Quincy, was severely injured Monday when he was run over by an automobile owned and operated by John Lavers. Mr. Evans had been to the granite yard of Mr. Lavers and was just coming out of the yard as the automobile, a Buick, driven by Lavers, turned suddenly into the yard and before the car could be stopped it ran into Mr. Evans who was thrown to the ground, the machine passing over him. He was severely bruised and shaken up. He was taken to his home nearby and a physician summoned who found that he had suffered a severe injury to his knee.

SEPTIMATE WEATHER.

The weather during September was generally cooler than usual with much cloudiness and frequent rains. The mean temperature for the month of 60.2 degrees was 1.0 degree below normal and 1.0 degree below that of September, 1910. There were few warm days, the highest temperature reached being 81 degrees on the 2nd and 25th. The minimum temperature of the month was 34 degrees on the 14th and this is the lowest recorded in September, 1910.

Rain fell on 16 days in generally moderate amounts, the total for the month of 3.26 inches being 1.04 inches less than normal. The most in one day was 1.07 inches on the 9th. In September, 1910, the total fall was 2.29 inches. There was more than the usual relative humidity, an excess of cloudiness and 18 per cent less than the average amount of sunshine. There were five days with no sunshine.

There was less wind than is customary and the mean hourly velocity for the month was 16.4 miles per hour the normal for September being 16.9 miles per hour. The maximum velocity was 40 miles per hour from the northwest on the 30th. The prevailing wind direction for the month was from the northwest. Thunderstorms occurred on the 11th and 25th and there were killing frosts in the neighboring lowlands on the 14th, 27th and 29th. Auroras were observed on the nights of the 19th and 24th. L. A. Wells, Blue Hill Observatory.

COLLECTION OF ASHES.

The Board of Health gives notice, today, that the collection of ashes will begin Monday Oct. 16. On Monday, teams will collect on the east side of the railroad tracks in Wards 1, 5 and 6. On Tuesday collections will be made in Wards 5 and 6 west of the railroad track between Beale and Granite streets. Thursday Wards 1, 3 and 4 west of the railroad, Friday and Saturday in Wards 2 and 3 west of the railroad.

SUNDAY IN THE CHURCHES.

WOLLASTON METHODIST.
Sunday was a rally and red letter day for the Wollaston Methodist church and the churches there. There was a very large attendance. After the sermon by the pastor, a baptism was held. The following were received into the church: Mr. and Mrs. Rhodes, Mr. and Mrs. Carter, Mrs. Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Heath, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Panton, Mr. Alton Panton, Miss Blanch Rhodes, Miss Florence Palmer, Miss Mildred Dhumane, Miss Marion Clifford. As the official board gave the hand of welcome to these new members, the choir sang "Blest be the Tie that Binds."

The Sunday school had the largest attendance in its history and seven new names were added to the roll of members. There was inspiring singing and Miss Mildred Dhumane sang a duet. Mr. Bromley, the new secretary of the Y. M. C. A. spoke. He said that the Sunday school should train the scholars to attend church.

Miss Marion Nevers, the new deaconess spoke in the Junior League. Miss Chamberlin led this service. Mrs. F. H. Morgan led the Epworth League. She gave a very inspiring talk. At the close of the service she conducted an altar service.

Mr. Wesley Rhodes spoke in the evening. He spoke of the church and every one were paying too much to the things of the world and too little to Christ.

Mr. Brooks led the praise meeting and sang solos at both services. Large audiences were in attendance at both meetings.

CHRIST CHURCH.

The regular services were held in Christ church Sunday and were as follows:—Holy Communion at 8:00 A. M. Morning prayer and sermon at 10:30. Sunday school at 11:00. Brotherhood at 12:05. Evening prayer and address at 7 o'clock. At the evening service, the pastor, Rev. E. E. Armstrong delivered an introductory address, preparatory to a series of addresses on the "Confession of Faith." In brief, he outlined, what Confirmation means and the mistakes usually made in considering this sacred rite. Confirmation means, the strengthening in body and religious life. It has great spiritual power.

In considering the first thing that there should be the preparation of the heart, and secondly the preparation of the mind. These are very important factors. The excuses usually made are, first, youth. Some say that they are too young, therefore cannot clearly understand the real meaning of this serious step in life. The second excuse is that they are not good enough. None of us are perfect, but it is to make us better, to strengthen our souls and bodies, to give us from temptation, etc., that we receive this sacred rite, the laying on of hands or Confirmation.

Some think of Confirmation as merely a matter of form and after being confirmed fail to be regular in church attendance. It is not the Confirmation that strengthens us, but the bread and wine, the body and blood of our Lord Jesus Christ, received in the Lord's Supper.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.
Rally day exercises were observed at the First Presbyterian church by the scholars of the Bible school. About 250 scholars, teachers and officers were present. The program consisted of chorus singing and responsive reading by the school and chorus by the primary department.

Rev. Mr. Matheson gave a short talk to the scholars and remarks were made by Mr. Clark.

The scholars after the exercises marched down to the vestry of the church and received little celluloid Rally day pins and the usual Sunday school papers.

The Christian Endeavor and evening services were well attended this being the last of Rally week, the different departments and organizations now start on their winter work.

FINISH CONGREGATIONAL.

The pastor returned from his trip to New York on Saturday reporting an active time in church engagements. An important meeting of the C. E. was held on Saturday night at which it was decided to have the Finishing C. E. become a part of the regular Norfolk Union. This was done at a meeting on Tuesday night at Wollaston.

Sunday school on Sunday at 10:30. The pastor gave a long talk about his trip to New York.

At the regular morning service the subject of the sermon was on "Imitations." The talk was enjoyed by a large congregation, as was the one at 7:30 P. M., on "Three Crowns."

This evening a special C. E. meeting will be held. The pastor will be assisted by Mr. J. E. Walker.

Next Sunday the Rev. C. J. McKelvey will deliver an address in the afternoon at 4 o'clock. Mr. Walker is a noted churchman, at present secretary of the Home Missionary society.

WOLLASTON UNITARIAN CHURCH.

This church accepts the Religion of Jesus, holding in accordance with his teaching, that practical religion is summed up in love to God and love to man.

We cordially invite to our working fellowship any who, while differing from us in belief, are in general sympathy with our spirit and our practical aims.

The National Conference of Unitarian and other Christian churches meets in Washington, D. C., Oct. 23-26. The delegates from our church are the Rev. Carl G. Horst, Miss H. E. Turner and Mrs. Charles L. Moore.

Miss Mildred Polt will conduct the devotional service of the Young People's Religious Union meeting next Sunday evening and Mr. Wesley Rhodes of the Fore River Works will give an address on "The Joy of the Task."

The Neighborhood Church of Christ in Stratford, Conn., has voted to join the Unitarian Fellowship.

After careful deliberation the Boston Benevolent Fraternity of Unitarian churches has voted to withdraw from active participation in the management of Morgan Memorial.

During the Provincial Exposition in Calgary, the Unitarian church, of which our former minister, the Rev. Frank Wright Pratt is pastor, established a temporary day nursery and mothers' rest.

rest. They put up a large tent (40x28 feet), furnished with cots, chairs, ice-chest, etc., where babies and children were fed and tended and mothers supplied with a cheering cup of tea. The Young People's choir and Orchestra will meet with Mrs. W. E. Rowe, 322 Winthrop avenue, tonight.

A special collection will be taken next Sunday morning to help defray the expenses of the National Conference of Unitarian churches in Washington, D. C.

ANCIENTS HOME AGAIN.

The Celebration of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery, held at Bermuda last week, and at which a number of Quincy people were in attendance, was pronounced by all present to have been a delightful one and all agreed that it was the most successful affair of the kind ever attempted by the members of the military organization. Everything was done by the inhabitants of Bermuda that would add to the pleasure of the visitors.

The members of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery marched through the streets in full uniform, carrying the flag of the United States. Everything was done by the inhabitants of Bermuda that would add to the pleasure of the visitors.

On Tuesday evening a monster banquet was held in the Hamilton hotel. The guests were the members of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery, the members of the military organization, and the governor's council from this district was chief of staff.

On Tuesday evening a monster banquet was held in the Hamilton hotel. The guests were the members of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery, the members of the military organization, and the governor's council from this district was chief of staff.

The local members of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company present were: Lieutenant William F. Hall, Lieutenant Frank O. Dean, George Hue, Sergeant George H. Wilson, Alfred Remick, Dr. Alonzo Durkin, Benjamin Johnson.

Henry P. Kittredge, prominently known in political circles, took the trip with the Ancients and arrived home Sunday. He was in Bermuda at this time in connection with the United States and he asserted that the Bermuda celebration was about the best he had ever attended.

CARRIER PIGEONS RELEASED.

Five hundred carrier pigeons were released at Herkimer, New York, last Sunday with the intention of having them fly from there to the pigeon house of John Clark on Willard street.

The distance is 288 miles and the first pigeon arrived home Monday afternoon, followed by the second pigeon which arrived two hours later.

The pigeons have all been raised at the pigeon farm of John Clark, and are the property of various sporting men, who frequently have them shipped to different points in the country. It is now, therefore, a considerable number of the birds himself, and was especially pleased when he discovered that the pigeon which was the first to return home Monday was his own property.

RIGHT TO THE POINT.

Former Gov. Draper goes to the point, when, in commenting on the comparative conditions of American and English workmen, he says: "For every dollar that is paid the English workman there is paid the American in the same occupation $2.50."

The new landing is to be located at the shore end of Bay View avenue and land recently purchased by the city for that purpose. Knowing to what the owners sold it at a very small price.

Along the shore end of the landing, a stone wall is to be built. This will prevent the embankment from being washed away. The high tides of the winters have made great inroads into this embankment and if a retaining wall was not built, as contemplated, it would not be many years before the shore end of the landing place would be entirely gone.

The landing consists of a run and two floats which will be located just south of the steamboat wharf, and they extend into the water to near the end of the present embankment. It is a protection for the landing, and yachts and other boats which tie up there during a storm will be in the lee and therefore considerably protected. As the channel also extends by the end of the embankment, yachts will have little difficulty in making a landing at any tide.

MONEY FOR CROP-MOVING.

This is the poorest season for borrowing money since the war. The highest rate of interest on prime commercial loans at New York for each week in the year over a period of nineteen years shows that the borrower in the latter part of September and the early part of October paid 10 per cent more than the borrower in February, May or June. The New York interest rate in this respect is a fair index to that for the country at large. As bank loans in the United States amount to about fifteen billion dollars, the higher rate on autumn loans represents a considerable tax.

The reason for the higher autumn rate is, of course, that money is then required to move the crops. From time to time other causes intervene, such as the war, and a half times as much currency as they receive. Chicago and St. Louis also are then shipping currency into the country at a brisk rate. Reserves fall, interest rates advance and the money market is tight.

The money, having moved the crops, speeds back however. In January and February the Eastern banks receive nearly two and a half times as much currency as they ship. Reserves rise, interest rates fall.

STREET CAR ACCIDENT.

The rear trucks of the 3.05 car out of Quincy for East Weymouth left the iron Sunday afternoon, as the car was rounding the curve between River and North streets, the forward end of the car crashing against a large elm tree. The car was in charge of Conductor John Eason and Motorman Charles Batson. When the motorman felt the car leaving the track he tried to apply the emergency brake but was unable to do so before the car struck the tree. The force of the blow filled the front vestibule with broken glass, but the motorman stuck to his post and broke out the power.

The force of the blow also broke some of the windows in the car throwing it over the passengers and creating quite a little excitement for a few minutes.

There were fifty passengers in the car at the time and they were considerably shaken up. Two passengers are reported to have been cut by flying glass. They were Roy Elms of Matrapan and George Guston of 124 Upland road. Elms had several cuts about the face caused by the flying glass and Guston suffered from a nervous shock. He was taken to the office of Dr. W. J. Middleton near the place where the accident happened.

The front of the car was somewhat damaged and most of the glass in the windows was broken. Another car was sent to the scene and the passengers were transferred. Traffic was delayed but a few minutes. The cause of the accident is said to have been due to the spreading of the rails.

SLIGHT FIRE.

The alarm from Box 126 at 9:05 A. M., Monday, was for a slight fire in the rear of the house at 32 Russell Park, owned by Miss Annie L. Prescott and occupied by Mrs. Edward Russell. Mrs. Russell had been burning some rubbish in the furnace and among it was an old book. This did not burn very well and it was taken out. After that fire there was in the book had been put out, as she supposed, it was thrown into an ash barrel.

A little later quite a blaze had been started, causing quite a thick smoke which gave warning of the fire. Just at this time Connelman Nowland and John Lynch were coming up the street and seeing the smoke, Mr. Lynch ran for the fire alarm box and sounded the alarm. Mr. Nowland ran into the cellar and filling a coal hod with water succeeded in putting the fire out. It was none too soon however for the flames had communicated to the bottom of the floor and a few minutes more and a good fire would have been in progress.

The fire damage was slight, although the house was filled with smoke. The smoke, which arrived at the fire after the recall had sounded.

PUBLIC LANDING.

The public landing to be built at Houghs Neck, for which the City Council has appropriated the sum of $2,500 will be much appreciated by the summer residents of this resort as well as by others who desire to visit the place in yachts. As it is now, there is no place where a stranger can make a landing except on private property. When visiting yachtsmen are always made welcome at the Quincy yacht club float, there are many who are not affiliated with any of the yacht clubs of the state and therefore in the nature of trespassers when they make a landing. If they were allowed to do so. There are some other landings at the beach but they are also private so that it is impossible to use any of them.

While the appropriation made for the landing will probably not be expended this year, the season is so far advanced, it will be done early in the spring of 1912. This is an assured fact as the Mayor has approved the order for the amount stated above.

The new landing is to be located at the shore end of Bay View avenue and land recently purchased by the city for that purpose. Knowing to what the owners sold it at a very small price.

Along the shore end of the landing, a stone wall is to be built. This will prevent the embankment from being washed away. IT'S GREAT FOR GRATES

C. PATCH & SON, Inc.

Office, 1422 Hancock Street, Quincy

ONLY.

Anna Frances Rice.

It was only a smile, but with love bestowed.
So it lightened a traveler's weary load.
And it shortened the way of the homeward road.
Only a smile!

It was only a touch, and so soft and light,
But it strengthened a hopeless one's failing sight,
And guided his feet to the path of right;
Only a touch!

It was only a rose in its tender bloom.
But it brightened a lonely and cheer-
less room,
And it helped in dispelling the deepening gloom.
Only a rose!

Yes, its surely white while to illumine
that way
With a bit of God's sunshine, tho'
small the ray,
For it may be, will gladden another's
day.
Always worth while!

IN THE FLORIST'S SHOP.

The opening of his office door did not cause Mr. Hunt to look up from the papers before him on his desk. But at the "Good morning, uncle," in a clear, vibrant voice, he wheeled around immediately. A girl of erect and slender figure came forward. "Good morning, uncle," she repeated.

Jonas Hunt stared at her without returning her salutation.
"I suppose you are surprised to see me," said his visitor, seating herself
near him so as to face him.

"I am very busy," was the curt answer.

"I shall try to be brief," said Louise Brent coolly. "I am come on business.
There is an opportunity for me to go to Europe with friends for two years.
I want to study art. But—your knowing of my income. Of course, it is impossible for me to have the means from that. I want to know if you will advance me a thousand dollars with the Western land that Aunt Mary left me as security."

Mr. Hunt turned half way around to his desk. "That Western land is probably not worth fifty dollars," he said, coldly.

"I have been told that one day it will be very valuable."
"Who told you so?"

"Old Mr. Carter said so, and advised me not to sell, but to keep it and."

"Why don't you apply to him for a loan?" interrupted Jonas Hunt dryly.
The color which had crept into the girl's cheeks deepened suddenly. "He is a stranger; I have no claims on him."

"Ah—and you think that you have claims on me?" The peculiar tone of these words and the glance accompanying them brought the young girl
to her feet.

"I am sorry to have taken your time, sir," she said, in a voice which trembled perceptibly. But she held her head well back as she walked out of the broker's office and down a corridor to the street.

Jonas Hunt sat for some moments with his eyes on the door through which the slender figure had passed.
He had a vague sensation of discomfort, but that presently gave way to self-justification.

"A member of that family to come to him! After all that had gone, what right had one of them to expect a favor from him? True, this girl was not responsible for those old wrongs. And anyway he had told her his honest belief about the land. And as for art,
there were enough dabbling at it now.
Why should she not get some work to do if she wanted money? But that would not suit a Brent! With a frown
he resumed his interrupted work.

Louise walked along the street in a tremor of indignation. Of course, her uncle had a right to refuse her proposition as he would any business proposition that was made him. But he need not have been so brutal in tone and manner. And that land was surely worth much more than a thousand dollars. He might have spoken kindly.

Her mother and sister Clara must not know that she had applied to their uncle. It would mortify them unnecessarily. But she had hoped that he was not so hard as they thought him.
The land was hers to do with absolutely as she wished. Then her mother and sister did not think her talent
a great one. They were content to live on their slender income with no effort to increase it. She—oh—she longed to do something. This chance of going to Europe with the Mays was such a splendid one. To have their clapnet and sympathy during two years. And she must give up all hope of it! There was no one else to whom she could apply for a loan on the land.

She had felt almost sure that her uncle would have been willing to advance the money. For he was running no risk of losing it. Her disappointment was quickly keen.

It was even more so a few weeks
later when a letter came to her mother saying that through depreciation of certain values their income would thereafter be greatly reduced. A girl Brent was dismayed. How would they live? Clara declared her intention of turning to account her ability to conductor, and in a few weeks she had secured numerous orders for fancy work.

Louise thought bitterly of her lost
chance of cultivating her talent.
"If I could only have gone—if I could have had the money—mother
and Clara would have been better off.
The income would have been for their use alone—and in a few years I could be earning money. Now there is nothing I can do except something in an office or a shop, and I would hate such work."

Her thoughts were busy thus one morning as she was returning from her eyes down town. It was a day in late September, the air crisp and invigorating. Ordinarily Louise would have rejoiced in it. However, absorbed as she was in gloomy thought,
she could not resist the allurements
of a gorgeous display of roses in a florist's window. She stopped to feast her eyes on the rich masses of color.
Her mother, who was never very strong, was quite sick that morning.
"I'll go in and buy one rose for her," the girl thought. "It will please her so much."

She entered the shop. There was but one attendant, an elderly man,
and evidently the proprietor of the place. He was engaged with a customer. Louise stood to await his leisure. For a while her glance wandered over the many beautiful plants and cut flowers around. Then her attention was attracted by the conversation going on between the florist and his customer. The latter was a woman, handsomely dressed and of evident culture.

"The scheme of color you suggest
would be effective," she was saying,
"but it seems to lack something—what is it?"

"It seems complete to me," returned the florist, "but let me give you the details again."

Louise involuntarily drew nearer.
Anything connected with combining of colors had a great attraction for her. As the florist proceeded in his description of his idea it came to her in a flash what the scheme lacked.
And she exclaimed imperatively as he paused, "I see what it needs."

But the florist and the lady turned to the girl in surprise.
"I beg your pardon," stammered Louise, in confusion. "I was so interested I forgot myself. I—"

"The lady's glance took in Louise's
well-bred air and the eager intelligence of her face. She smiled into Louise's gray eyes. "Please tell me what it needs, won't you?" she asked,
courteously.

"Yes," added the florist, "I see now myself that there is something lacking."

"There is too much red," returned Louise, "more white and dark foliage."
And she proceeded to give her thought.
When she had finished, the florist
exclaimed: "That is what I want;
that will be superb! O thank you!"

"Yes," agreed the florist. "I ought to have thought of that." He turned to Louise. "I suppose you are an art student?"

"No," returned Louise, "but I have always liked to think out color combinations."

The lady impulsively laid her daintily gloved hand on the young girl's arm. "I wish that you could see my rooms. I am giving a reception next week—perhaps you could suggest something else. It is too much to ask;
my house is not very far from here,
and my carriage is outside. Will you come there with me—can you spare
the time? My carriage will afterward take you to any place that you wish to go."

Louise flushed. "I would be glad to do it—but really, I have no technical knowledge at all."

"I think you have something better, so you will come?" The lady turned to the florist. "I shall see you tomorrow, Mr. Smith."

One day in November while looking through a newspaper, Mr. Jonas Hunt's glance was caught by a notice of some remarkable water colors then on exhibition in the city. It held no interest for him, but in some way reminded him of Louise Brent and he went to his office.

He wondered vaguely if she had succeeded in procuring money to take her to Europe. He had heard nothing of her since. He knew that her mother's income had been reduced through various losses.

"Art," he muttered, contemptuously; "she would better learn dressmaking."
Later that same day on his way to his office from lunch a business acquaintance stopped him.
"Say, Hunt, I have a diagram of that new sub-division out at my house.

Vijah O. Strickler, C. S. member of the Christian Science Board of Lectureship. Mr. Strickler is an authority on church work and his remarks were instructive and received with great favor by those present.

The discourse in full was as follows:

However much people may differ
in their attitude towards Christian Science every one will admit that it has done many good things. Entirely apart from the question of physical healing, it is generally conceded that it produces a happy and contented mentality, that it destroys fear, and makes people loving and kind.

When we add to this the fact that it has healed many sick people who had previously been unable to find relief
under other systems, that it has cured
many of the drug habit, and of the liquor habit, has restored harmony in many homes that were discordant, and has given hope and courage to people who were discouraged, it is easy to understand why Christian Science has spread from one end of the earth to the other with such wonderful rapidity.

Why should any one not wish to believe that God heals the sick? Is it a thing to be desired? No, it is not something for which humanity has been praying through the centuries? Now that it is here why should any one not wish to accept it? Let each one ask himself that question.

Christian Science shows that sickness and sin originate in mortal mind,
and result from the operation of this so-called mind. God did not create them, nor do they result from the operation of spiritual law. In destroying them Jesus did not work contrary to God's laws. Christian Science insists that Jesus was consistent. He did not do the will of the Father at one time, and at another seek to overturn His laws. It follows, then, that if Jesus performed his works in accordance with, and by means of,
God's laws, the same results must follow in every age whenever those laws are understood and applied.

Moses and the prophets, and Jesus
and his disciples, and followers, healed the sick, raised the dead, and performed many wonderful works by means of this power; and in every age the result of the operation of spiritual law in human consciousness
has been to destroy discord and to establish peace.

What is Christian Science?
Christian Science is a religion. It is the Science of Christianity—the science of God and man. It reveals spiritual law, and explains the operation of that law in its relation to man and the Universe. It defines mortal mind and immortal Mind, and so makes plain the difference between mortal men and man made by God in His image and likeness.

Christian Science pleads for a rational understanding of God in place of mere belief about Him, and it is urging mankind to look for the real causation in Mind and not in matter.
It declares that God is not the author of sin, sickness, or death, hence these conditions are illegitimate and can be destroyed by a knowledge of the truth.
It denies that there is any divine authority for man to sin, suffer, or die,
and recalls the solemn declaration of the Scripture that God gave man as his birthright dominion over all the earth, and over all that it contained.
Jesus said, "Ye shall know the truth,
and the truth shall make you free."
Christian Science says to the tired and suffering man who is wandering about without any dominion at all,
that the knowledge of the truth will set him free from the bondage to sin, suffering, sorrow, and failure, and will give to him that dominion which God said in the beginning belonged to man.

A correct understanding of God,
therefore, is necessary as the foundation of religion. Any system of religion teaching that is founded upon an imperfect or an erroneous conception of God must necessarily fail to bring to the believer the comfort and help that he seeks. When we look around and see the devotion and felicity of people to their religious beliefs, and then see how they fail to realize the benefits for which they seek, it is a far reflection that there is something wrong about their understanding of God.

The prophet Micah said a man's enemies are they of his own household and Jesus repeated the statement. I used to understand their meaning to be that a man's enemies were his own kin, but I now realize that a man's enemies are they of his own mental household. The mental guests or thoughts that we entertain in our mental homes are either our friends or our foes. Hatred, fear, self-love, and all evil qualities of thought are enemies that bind man to sickness
and death, and man will never gain
his freedom until he drives out these enemies and makes his consciousness
the temple of God.

We are told in Christian Science that fear is an ingredient of every disease, and if fear were entirely destroyed a large number of diseases would go with it. If we could imagine this world with all hatred,
fear, superstition, self-will, and self-
love destroyed out of it, it is conceivable that longevity would be increased and that happiness and health
would be more secure.

If Christian Science had never healed a case of sickness it would still be entitled to lasting praise for compelling this age to recognize the power and influence of thought.
Solomon declared three thousand years ago that as a man "thinketh in his heart, so is he." In other words, the quality of the man is determined by the quality of his thought. It is therefore of supreme importance that man should know the truth, to the end that he may know how to think correctly.

TEMPERANCE COLUMN.

By Q. W. C. T. U.

OUR PLEDGE.

I hereby promise, God helping me,
to abstain from all distilled, ferment-
ed, and malt liquors, including wine,
beer, and cider as a beverage and to
employ all proper means to discour-
age the use of and traffic of the same.

THE CALL TO PRAYER.

The National W. C. T. U. has been called to meet in annual convention at Milwaukee, Wisconsin, October 25-November 2, 1911.

The blessings showered upon our organization during the year past, and especially the victory in Maine, give cause for hearty praise. The fierceness of the conflict, and the closeness of the vote, in spite of months of earnest effort, show the terrible power of the forces allied against us, and summon us to united prayer to Almighty God
and to renewed consecration.

Therefore, will all women, as far as possible, gather on Friday, October 27, for a day of Praise and Prayer.
On this date, a day of prayer will be held in Milwaukee from 10 A. M. to 4 P. M. at the Hotel Milwaukee.

Address—The Entrenched Liquor Traffic.

Address—The Conflict in Maine, Texas and Elsewhere.

Address—Story of the Campaign.
Brief Prayer of Intercession.
Hymn or Solo.

Address—Sabbath Devotion.
Address—Wrongs of Women and Children.

Address—The Optimistic Vision.
Prayers, Closing Exercises.

HOME FROM EUROPE.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Sutherland have returned to their home on Federal avenue after an enjoyable vacation of nearly four months, one-half of which they spent in England and Scotland
and the remainder at Barney River, Nova Scotia, where they have a summer home. They returned from Europe by way of Montreal and took in that city and the city of Quebec on their way to Nova Scotia.

Mr. Sutherland made some interesting observations when interviewed by a Patriotic reporter. He is a man who keeps his eyes and ears open as he goes through life. He is not very enthusiastic about London although he says it is a wonderful city. He was more favorably impressed by the cities of Glasgow and Edinburgh
where he found the high standard of life and better lighted than in any other cities which he ever saw. The public buildings he considers models of architecture. Municipal government in those two cities is conducted on a high plane of efficiency.

In the Highlands of Scotland where he spent considerable time, Mr. Sud-erland found conditions quite prosperous, although the young men are feeling the lure of the Canadian West and leaving their native lands in large numbers to try their luck in Canada.
He says there is an excellent system
of free schools in the Highlands, as well as in the lowlands and although the land is largely owned by absent
landlords the rights of the tenants are so well secured by law that they are able to live well and educate their children.

It seems that in Canada the defeat of Prohibition has caused considerable surprise and regret. The feeling is that Sir Wilfrid Laurier made a lamentable mistake in allowing the people to vote on it, as his government had two more years to serve if it wished and could have easily put the Prohibition agreement through Parliament.

Now that the election is over there are no manifestations of distrust toward the United States. In Nova Scotia at least, Mr. Sutherland says
the question was treated as an economic one, and the false alarm of "annexation" had no influence, although unscrupulous politicians used
it for all it was worth.

In Canada as well as in England and Scotland the general sentiment was one of friendliness toward the United States, while for President Taft, he was constantly hearing expressions of profound respect.

STEBBINS-MITCHELL.

A pretty home wedding took place on the morning of Oct. 9, when Miss Isabella Shirriffs Mitchell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mitchell of Independence avenue, Quincy, became the bride of George Henry Stebbins of Wollaston.

The ceremony was performed at 10 o'clock by Rev. William Bingham
Ayres, pastor of the Park and Downs Congregational church. The couple were attended by Myron B. Stebbins, brother of the groom as best man and the bride's sister Miss Annie Mitchell as maid of honor. The bride was becomingly gowned in white with veil and carried a shawer bouquet. The wedding was attended only by the immediate families of the pair.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Stebbins of Bromfield street, Wollaston. Both young people attended the Quincy High school.

After a wedding breakfast the happy couple left on an extended wedding trip with New York as the first objective point. On their return they will reside with the parents of the groom where they will be at home to their friends after November 1st.

New Moon, Oct. 21, 11:07 P. M.

James J. Hill says there is too much political ghost dancing, but we hope he does not stop the ghost from walking.

A famous New York paper is getting tireless with its praise of "big business." If Solomon were alive he would say there is nothing new in the book.

Gov. Wilson seems to have started in early on his presidential campaign, but one must reflect that there are at least 15,000,000 voters with whom to shake hands.

Now that the federal government has resigned, those skittish Canucks need no longer go every morning to see if Uncle Sam has lugged off the boundary fence while they have been asleep.

Few appreciate what a great factor in patriotic life the G. A. R. is and has been, how they have been the great patriotic object lesson for our children and to those who have come to our shores to make this country their home. The Sons of Veterans is the organization next in kin that is taking up the work and carrying out the principles of the G. A. R. By helping them with their fair next week you will strengthen the camp and broaden the scope of their usefulness in patriotic circles.

If some of the city officials and councilmen would climb down out of their automobiles and take to walking they would soon see the need of better sidewalks, and more cross-walks in City Square. Five or six trips a day from Granite street to the Post Office or vice versa would soon convince them that the sidewalks are not to be placed to good advantage. With streets that are sloughs of despond in bad weather and deserts of Sahara in dry, a few oases in the way of cross-walks would surely prove blessings to pedestrians.

DOWN'S UNION CLUB.

The opening fall meeting of the Park and Downs Union club was held on Tuesday evening an interesting talk on "Arctic experiences" being delivered by Lieut. H. H. Rhodes, past assistant engineer of the United States navy.

Mr. Rhodes was one of the party who set out in 1872 to attempt the rescue of the remainder of the party of which Captain Tyson and his men were survivors. The speaker was introduced by Lieutenant Wilson a member of the club.

The fitting out of the ship at New York was described by Mr. Rhodes and their trip to Greenland where they first ran into ice.

The oppressive monotony of all daylight in the sun and the absence of the sun in the winter was emphasized by the speaker. This leads not infrequently in the far north to insanity.

The Eskimo and their dress were mentioned and the intense cold to which one becomes accustomed. Mr. Rhodes was the man who discovered coal on the island of Drisco which when the fuel supply was running low allowed the expedition to remain and continue its explorations.

Mr. Rhodes described the account of Doctor Cook's discovery of the Pole and stated that any of the phenomena described on the trip could be seen as far south as Cape York. The speaker holds the acquaintance of both Cook and Peary and is a personal friend and ardent supporter of the latter.

In conclusion, said the speaker, there is nothing heroic about arctic exploration. You simply need the determination and you will have the opportunity to undergo all sorts of interesting experiences.

WOLLASTON Y. P. S. SOCIETY.

The Wollaston Young People's Social society opened its season with a meeting in the vestry of the Wollaston Unitarian church Tuesday evening.

Following an informal reception Professor Bennett Springer kept those present on the qui with his many tales of the "Starling" and clever manipulations of cards the professor ran through the entire canon of card tricks and other sleight of hand performances.

The evening was one of the best the club has enjoyed and the present season is looked forward to with pleasant anticipation.

At the business meeting Clifton H. Baker was elected vice president and Jesse I. Littlefield and Mrs. Roy C. Baker members of the executive committee. Irving L. Shaw presided in his usual benign and cheerful and refreshments were served.

A COMMUNICATION.

Editor Quincy Patriot:

The following question has been sent by the Referendum Union of Quincy to each of the Senatorial and Representative candidates in the first Norfolk Senatorial District and the fifth and sixth Norfolk Representative District: "Will you, if elected support and vote for the Initiative and Referendum?"

Levi H. Turner, Secretary.

BOUGHS NECK LYCEUM.

A meeting of the Houghs Neck Catholic Lyceum was held at the house of Mrs. Mary Jones on Thursday evening and many plans were adopted for the coming year. President James P. Purcell occupied the chair and after the reports of the various officers had been read and accepted attention was then given over to the matter of winter social activities.

A heating apparatus will be installed in the clubhouse at once and besides the winter parties, held every week, there will be lectures and discourses delivered from time to time by noted men. Other entertainments will also be in order at different intervals. The committee on entertainments expects to have Hon. Michael J. Dwyer, the noted Irish leader, give one of his stereotyped talks to the members of the organization and their friends in the near future.

THANKSGIVING DAY SERVICE.

The parishioners of the Park and Downs Congregational church will have a double cause for rejoicing on Thanksgiving day, when they will hold their first service in the new church edifice.

The service will be a simple one, nothing of a dedicatory nature being contemplated until the early part of January, when a series of services will be held.

The new church as it stands today, practically completed directly opposite the Massachusetts Fields school and surrounded by green trees, makes a beautiful picture and is a notable addition to Wollaston.

The building is of Quincy granite and is of the Gothic and Spanish mission type, windows of colored glass lending a pleasing effect to the interior. James H. Ritchie of Boston was the architect. E. H. Sears of Wollaston is the contractor.

The building measures on the exterior 35 feet in length, 55 feet in width and with an approximate height of 65 feet.

The main entrance is on Rawson road, with side entrances on Hamilton street and the Beach street.

The main auditorium will have seating accommodations for 340 and consists of a clear story supported by pillars on each side. In the rear is a gallery with a seating capacity of 140. There is a choir loft for 36 people, pastors room, choir room and organ space. The chancel is 14 feet deep, 16 feet wide and 25 feet high. The interior of the building is finished in mahogany with exposed beams and spous.

In the basement is a ladies' parlor 48 by 15, a Sunday school department of divided class rooms accommodating 400 and a separate infant department of 240. Other features are a kitchen and pantry with a modern refrigerator, electric range, and modern appliances, library, dressing rooms, coat rooms etc. The entire vestry may be thrown open into one large space in event of entertainments and the like.

The lighting of the building is especially adequate, the auditorium being lighted by 25 incandescent lights of 12, 20, 25, 40 and 48 watt. The Sunday school has a series of 16 double windows. An excellent ventilating system is being installed, 3 ducts and an electric fan being placed to draw off the used air. The heating will be of the hot water type.

The ground was first broken for the new building on April 5, 1911 when a jollification meeting was held. From this time work has been rushed to completion. On June 4 impressive exercises attended the laying of the corner stone.

The first building of the society was dedicated on February 22, 1896 and stood on Rawson road, between Willet street and Hampden circle.

Following a vote of the society on August 24, 1899 the church was moved to its present site on Hamilton street. This was granted by the city. The old building in the class of 1908 and has been teaching in the Mt. Ida school for girls in Newton. The school is an Amherst 79 man. The pair were college friends. During her residence of over 12 years as daughter of the pastor of the Wollaston church, the woman, the wife has endeavored herself to an ever widening circle of friends from which her presence will be greatly missed.

Mention should be made of the numerous gifts that filled an entire room in the parsonage and testified to the popularity of the church. Many articles of work and costliness were included among other things a check for one thousand dollars being noted.

DOROTHY Q. LODGE SOCIETY.

A large number of members and friends enjoyed the social of the Dorothy Q. lodge of Odd Ladies held in Odd Fellows Hall, Wollaston, on Monday evening.

The following program of readings and vocal and instrumental music took place and was greatly enjoyed by those present:

Piano solo—Miss Marie Purdy.
Vocal solo—Miss Irma Douglas.
Banjo solo—Robert Bliss.
Song—George Cahill.
Violin Solo—Charles Purdy.
Song—Four young Misses.

The entertainment concluded with a mirth provoking farce entitled "The greatest play in life." This dealt with the servant problem and there were many laughable situations. The parts were all well taken and greatly applauded.

The business meeting which preceded the lecture with President Burgess in the chair, many club matters were discussed and reports read.

DUNLAP—CHASE.

At the Wollaston Congregational church on Wednesday evening, Miss Mary Hatch Chase daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Edward A. Chase became the bride of Mr. M. S. Dunlap of Batavia, New York.

The marriage was performed by the father of the bride, the ceremony being most impressive and beautiful. The bride was escorted by her sister, the bridesmaids by the maid of honor.

ENGAGEMENT LUNCHEON.

Monday evening, Miss Ardella Elizabeth Barber entertained friends at a pink luncheon at her home 26 Webster street, at 4 o'clock.

The occasion was the announcement of Miss Barber's engagement to Dr. John Lums of Wollaston.

At seven-fifteen the guests were ushered into the dining room which was artistically decorated with pink roses and ferns. A most appetizing and dainty repast was enjoyed.

The color scheme was carried out in all the decorations as well as in the delicacies served. The place cards especially brought forth appreciative comments. They were the work of a local artist and cleverly depicted Dan Cupid portraying each guest.

The guests were most attentive and the evening was a most enjoyable one. The color scheme was carried out in all the decorations as well as in the delicacies served.

IN VIRGINIA.

The roses nowhere bloom so white
As in Virginia;
The sunshine nowhere shines so bright
As in Virginia;
The birds sing nowhere quite so sweet
As in Virginia;
And nowhere hearts so lightly beat
As in Virginia;
For heaven and earth both seem to meet
Down in Virginia.

The days are never quite so long
As in Virginia;
Nor quite as filled with happy song
As in Virginia;
And when my time has come to die,
Just take me back and let me lie
Close where the James goes rolling by Down in Virginia.

There is nowhere a land so fair
As in Virginia;
So full of song, so free of care
As in Virginia;
And I believe that happy land
The Lord's prepared for mortal man
Is built exactly on the plan
Of old Virginia.

Notes and Comments.

—One fellow put it right when he said: "The man who gets mad at what the newspaper says about him should return thanks three times a day for what the newspaper knew about him and suppressed."—Spencer Leader.

The Lowell Courier-Citizen maintains the present campaign is this:
"Can you possibly stand Foss another year, when you've got a chance to elect a man like Frothingham?"

—A Boston man has been strangled to death in his sleep by a wad of chewing gum lodged in his bronchial tubes. Every school "marm" can now draw a lesson from the dangers of gum-chewing.—Medford Mercury.

—It is estimated that the automobile license fees for 1911, will exceed half a million dollars, but nobody has yet made an intelligent estimate of the number of persons killed and injured by the speed maniacs who operate under the license.

—Foss and Frothingham are hard at it and will keep doing so until the eve of election. Each party has a platform containing many mighty good planks, but we prefer to risk ourselves on the republican party, for it has been built strongly and with good judgment.—Mansfield News.

—At last we are able to agree with our distinguished and illustrious ex-president. He has struck his pace and has begun to talk facts and horse sense. Addressing the youngsters in a children's court recently he said:
"I never knew a boy named William
to be a bad boy."—Leicester Banner.

—In roundly denouncing the hymn,
"Beautiful Isle of Somewhere," Woodrow Wilson may have built up for himself a political St. Helena; at least there's a tremendous furor over the governor's criticism of what he called a "silly" hymn. The replies are pouring in from the four corners of the country.—Barre Vt. Times.

—An exchange remarks: "The number of postal savings banks is steadily increasing. People have a great deal more confidence in Uncle Sam
than some of the political orators would have us believe. The postal savings bank has been established, in spite of powerful interests." So say we all,
and hasten the day.

—Deliberately and knowingly to deceive newspaper readers by veiled advertising or fakes is not the practice of newspaper men of honor. A newspaper occupies a position that is in its nature fiduciary in its relation to the public. The public has a right to assume that matter in news columns is as near to the truth as it is possible to ascertain.—The American Press.

—Tech has seized on a fine location showing admirable judgment by getting land on the Cambridge side of the Charles, below the Harvard Bridge. If her lecture halls, museums, laboratories and shops are followed by dormitories and fraternity houses, Cambridge will be a different looking town in a very few years.—
Boston Globe.

—When it comes to working out the detail of courses that are to be taught in an industrial school that does not center its efforts on a single industry,
as a textile school, the limitations of such an institution, become conspicuous. Just at present Brockton is struggling with the subject. It does not know whether its school should be a shoe factory or a lot of other things.—Fall River Herald.

THE CRITICIZED HYMN.

Below we give the hymn "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere," condemned by Governor Wilson of New Jersey but appreciated and loved by thousands
all over the country.

BEAUTIFUL ISLE.

Somewhere the sun is shining,
Somewhere the song-birds dwell;
Hush, then, thy sad repining,
God lives, and all is well.

Somewhere the day is longer,

Somewhere the task is done;
Somewhere the heart is stronger,
Somewhere the garden won.

Somewhere the load is lifted,

Close by an open gate;
Somewhere the clouds are rifted,
Somewhere the angels wait.

Somewhere, somewhere,

Beautiful Isle of Somewhere,
Land of the true, where we are new Beautiful Isle of Somewhere!

ASSOCIATED CHARITIES OF QUINCY.

AN APPEAL

To the People of Quincy:
By most earnest personal work, and through the very generous response of the people some $1,200 has been pledged for the Associated Charities of Quincy.

We started out to raise at this time at least $1,000, as that was felt to be the very minimum without which the work of the Associated Charities could not even begin. To carry the work through the first year at least $300 more, making $1,500 in all, is needed;
and we earnestly appeal to the generous citizens of Quincy to now promptly give or pledge this balance.

It is estimated that over $10,000 is given in charity in Quincy each year—the Associated Charities being in touch with the charitable needs and the charitable resources of all the community, will help in preventing duplication in giving and in putting the money given to the wisest use.

The Associated Charities, therefore, is for the whole community, and should be supported as broadly as may be. Only a few scores have so far been asked to give—now the appeal is made earnestly to all our citizens.

Will YOU become:
A Founder by giving $25 for 2 years or one.
Or a Guarantor by giving $10.
Or a Sustaining Member by giving $5.
Or an Annual Member by giving $1.

Mr. Rupert F. Claffin, the Cashier of the National Granite Bank, is the Treasurer, and subscriptions may be left at the Granite Bank, or mailed to the Associated Charities, care of Cooperative Granite Bank, Quincy.

THE FINANCE COMMITTEE OF THE ASSOCIATED CHARITIES

OF QUINCY, INCORPORATED.

THE ASSOCIATED CHARITIES OF QUINCY.

(Incorporated)

To secure advice, assistance and co-operation along charitable,
philanthropic and social lines in the City of Quincy.

To secure the concurrent and harmonious action of the different charities of Quincy in order to raise the needy above the need of relief, prevent begging and imposition, and diminish pauperism.

To encourage thrift, self dependence and industry through friendly relations and sympathy, to the end that the poor
may help themselves.

To prevent children from growing up as paupers.

To aid in the diffusion of knowledge on subjects connected with the relief of the poor.

And to accomplish these objects it is designed:—

- 1 To provide that the case of every applicant for relief shall be thoroughly investigated.
- 2 To provide a confidential exchange of information between the overseers of the poor, charitable societies and agencies, and benevolent individuals.
- 3 To obtain for every applicant employment, if possible; if not, to obtain necessary and suitable assistance from charitable societies, benevolent individuals, or public authorities.
- 4 To make all relief, either by alms or charitable work, conditional upon good conduct and progress.
- 5 To send each poor family under the advice of a district conference, a friendly visit.
- 6 To hold public meetings and print papers for distribution.

At the meeting of the Finance committee at the High school last week it was found that over $1,200 had been pledged for the work of the Associated Charities of Quincy. The list of subscriptions to date is appended. If there are any errors or omissions please notify the secretary, Mrs. Wilson Marsh, 61 Irving place. A vote of thanks was passed by the committee for the good work done by the Ledger in giving this cause needed publicity. Cooperation is the spirit that brings about the best results. Associated Charities stand for that spirit in its best interpretation. Let us welcome it to our city.

REV. FANNY E. AUSTIN.

Following the regular meeting of the Neater and Farther Lights society
a young ladies missionary organization of the Wollaston Baptist church,
held at the home of Miss Eleanor Dunn on Newport avenue, a linen shower was given Miss Marion Cor-sey who was among those present. The affair came as a complete surprise,
the more so as she was the leader for the evening. She was the recipient of a large number of attractive gifts.

LINEN SHOWER.

A social hour followed in which dainty refreshments were served. The color scheme of the decorations was in pink and white.

FUNERAL SUNDAY.

The funeral of Frank S. Kirby was held Sunday afternoon from Hall's undertaking rooms. Services were conducted by Rev. Charles P. Marshall. The burial was at Mt. Washington cemetery. Quincy lodge of Moose, of which the deceased was a member attended the services.

CITY COUNCIL.

The impression was that Monday night's meeting of the City Council would be brief, for while there was a number of important matters to be acted upon it was not thought that any of them would meet with much opposition. The Council had on its fighting toes however and the air was full of fireworks until adjournment,
which was not reached until 11 o'clock.

The first debate started over a motion of Councilman Studley to have two polling places at the city casues in Wards Four and Six. There was considerable debate on the question but the motion was defeated.
There was then a little quibble resulting in the calendar were taken up. The first order was that appropriating $2,500 to replant Ne-poset bridge. There was a great deal of oratory on this order. President Bryant eventually took the floor, with Councilman Studley in aid. Just how long the debate on this question would have continued
is a question, if Councilman Branch
had not taken advantage of rule 11
and objected to any Councilman speaking more than twice on the question.

The Council was in a debating mood however and nearly every matter in the calendar was discussed.
Some were passed and others killed outright, while a number that were killed were reconsidered and laid on the table to be fought over again at another meeting.

Councilman Cherrington was the only absent member, although some of the Councilmen left early to attend
the rally.

The Mayor in a communication called attention to the need of an electric roller. The city was now hiring a roller, with the privilege of buying it if desired. Referred to the Finance Committee.

The Commissioner called attention to the electric wiring at the High school. It was useless to try and do any more repairs and he recommended an appropriation of $50 to rewire the school. Referred to the Finance Committee.

The Commissioner in a communication stated that it would cost $4,500
to furnish the Wollaston school and $2,500 to furnish the school at Brockton. Referred to Committee on Public Buildings.

Communications were received from the Mayor appointing Robert W.
Smith, Charles C. Powers and Carmine Coletti as constables. Confirmed.

The Mayor forwarded a plan for the widening of Washington street to 66 feet in width. Referred to Committee on Streets.

The Mayor forwarded a supplementary plan for the widening of Hancock street near the Ledger office. Laid on the table until later, when Councilman Gardner offered an order for a public hearing on the widening, Nov.
6, Adopted.

The Mayor forwarded a plan with estimate, for a retaining wall on River road, Houghs Neck, to protect the land from being washed away by the tide. The estimate was $4,000. Referred to Committee on Streets.

The Mayor forwarded a communication from the City Engineer asking for an appropriation of $500 to carry on the work of his department. Referred to Finance Committee.

A petition was received from the N. E. T. & C. Co. for attachments
on Granite street. Granted.

A petition was received from N. E.
T. & C. Co. for a joint location for poles Sea street. Referred to Committee on Streets.

A petition was received from the Bay State Street Light House company for a location of tracks at Squam-munk. Referred to Committee on Streets.

Several petitions were received for minor licenses and referred to the Committee on Licenses.

A petition for lights on Birch street was referred to the Committee on Streets.

A petition for lights on Farrington street was referred to the Executive Committee on Licenses reported orders granting minor licenses which was adopted.

The Joint Committee on Finance
and Public Buildings reported recommendations for the purchase of the estate of the Dr. Everett estate be referred to the next City Council. Report accepted.

The Finance Committee reported
an order appropriating street reparations assessments. Adopted.

The Committee on Sewers reported on the communication of the Commissioner asking for $6,000 for sewers on Willard and Centre street. The Committee recommended that the communication be placed on file. Accepted.

Councilman Richards offered an order for a crosswalk on Brooks avenue near Intervale street. Referred to Committee on Streets.

Councilman Ericson offered an order amending the salary ordinance so that the salary of the Sealer of Weights and Measures should be increased from $350 to $1,000 per year.
Referred to Committee on Finance.

Councilman Histen offered an order changing the incandescent light on the corner of Quincy avenue and Seamless street, to an arc light. Referred to Executive.

Councilman Richards offered an order for a crosswalk on Centre street and Nightingale avenue. Referred to Committee on Streets.

Councilman Ross offered an order for a crosswalk on Revere road at Washington street. Referred to Committee on Streets.

til later, when he offered an order changing the grade which was ordered to a second reading.

At 8:10 there was a hearing on pole locations. Supt. Gammon of the street railway appeared in favor and acted against. Hearing closed and order recommended.

Councilman Duffy offered an order
for a light at the foot of Edison park.
Referred to Executive.

Councilman Ericson offered orders
for a gas light on the foot way leading from Glendale road to Dixwell avenue and for other gas lights on Presidents hill. Referred to the Executive.

Councilman Gardner offered an order transferring the Miscellaneous Highway receipts to the appropriation for highways. Referred to Finance Committee.

Councilman Gardner offered an order transferring the receipts from Gypsy and Brown-tail moth to the appropriation for Gypsy and Brown-tail moths. Referred to Finance Committee.

The order for another crosswalk in City Square took its second reading
and the rules were suspended.

Councilman Richards objected to some crosswalks in City Square. The motion would be well expounded in the comprehensive plan for taking the square what it ought to be.

Councilman Ericson said if automobiles would not go through the Square at fifty miles an hour there would be no trouble.

Councilman Craig told of the many crosswalks in the Square, which now resembled a base ball diamond.

Councilman Sodergren and Said
berg also objected and on roll call the order was killed 18 no and 2 yes.

The order for $2,500 to replant Ne-
poset bridge took its second reading.
Councilman Sodergren took the floor argued at length against the order. Councilman Sandberg said that the Commissioner had told the committee that he had expended $2,000 on the bridge. This was all but between the railway tracks, which would cost $500. He believed that this was up to the railway to do.

He asked the Commissioner a number of questions in regard to the excise tax paid by the street railway and how it was that this was the first time that the city had to pay for planking between the rails.

Councilman Sodergren said that he had put it up to the railway to plank between the rails, but they had decided that it was not up to the railway and the City Solicitor said he could not make the railway do it.

Councilman Richards argued at length on the question. He said that corporations got everything they wanted, but would do nothing. He did not blame the Mayor for the expenditure as it was an extreme case
but he would not agree to the $500.

Councilman Smith was called to the chair and President Bryant taking the floor said that the legislature passed a law relative to the Excise tax and the amount paid by the street railway in Quincy was between $4,000 and $5,000. The purpose of this fund was to take care of that part of the street
tracks which were located.

Neopset bridge was in a dangerous condition and the Mayor did just right in ordering the Commissioner to fix it.

Mayor Shea said that the Councilman had no right to ask the Councilman questions of law. That was another department. The department law took the ground that in the franchise, when granted, nothing was said about the space between the tracks on the bridge and their lawyer had ruled that they were not obliged to pay for it. That question was undecided and being considered by the City Solicitor and the lawyer of the railway. As to the bridge, it became unsafe and he had ordered the Commissioner to go ahead and fix it,
for if there had been an accident the city would have been liable to a suit.
If it is not part of the duty of the street railway to take care of the street
we are going to make them do it.

Councilman Richards asked if the matter was under consideration now and the Mayor replied that it was.

Continuing, the Mayor said that the bill had contracted the bills and the people would have their money back if it was not for the bill. The Mayor said that he wanted to get home
some time and that under rule 11
he would object to any member speaking more than twice on the question.

Councilman Sodergren moved to lay
it on the table. He stood upon a rising vote 7 yes and 12 no.

Councilman Sandberg attempted to again speak on the question, but the acting President shut him off under the rules.

The question was on the suspension of the rules. On a rising vote of 12
yes and 6 no, the rules were suspended.

Councilman Nowland moved to make the amount $2,000. Motion lost.

The order was then put on its final passage and failed to pass 15 voting
yes and 6 no.

Councilman Sandberg moved that the order be referred to the Committee on Public Buildings. Motion lost on a rising vote. Eight yes and 11 no.

The rules were then suspended.
There was another short debate over this order but it was finally passed on roll call 14 voting yes and 6 no.

The order appropriating $2,000 for
garbage took its second reading.
Councilman Richards asked the City Auditor in regard to the amount of bonds coming due next year.

with a round turn by the acting President, who informed him that it was against the rules to refer to another member by name.

Councilman Sandberg took the call
good naturedly and spoke at length against the order. When the people asked if they would pay the whole of the difference, then he would vote for it.

Councilman Nowland thought there was a chance to find some money for garbage.

Councilman Bailey said that he regretted that the order was referred to but it was a fact that where such sidewalks had been put in, the next year the assessors raised the valuation.

The order was then passed on roll
13 voting yes and 5 no.

The order appropriating $1,000 for sewerage work met a Waterloo believed rejected on roll call by a vote of 11 yes and 7 no. The vote was reconsidered and the order laid on the table.

The order granting the Gas Co. permission to lay gas mains on Fenno
street was passed without a murmur.
Seventeen yes and 1 no.

The order appropriating $7,490.73
for contagious diseases was passed without a dissenting vote on roll call.

Councilman Nowland moved to reconsider the vote on the order for $700
to clean up and repair the bath house.
Motion lost on a rising vote 6 yes
and 11 no.

Councilman Sandberg moved to reconsider the vote on the order designating polling places for the caucuses.
This met with considerable objection.

Councilman Sandberg wanted a rising vote on the question.

A roll call was requested and taken.
On roll call the motion was rejected,
6 voting yes and 10 no as follows:

Yes—Craig, Jenkins, Nowland, Parson, Sodergren, 6.
No—Bailey, Butler, Hayes, Branch,
Campbell, Ford, Gardner, Histen,
Ross, Smith—10.

Adjourned at 10:55 until Nov. 6.

REPUBLICAN RALLY.

Holding forth in a celebration of the rare variety and "beckled" in no way
by any prospective or inquisitive sub-fragettes, the first republican rally, in local circles, in the interests of Hon.
Louis A. Frothingham, and the entire state ticket of republican nominees,
was held in Alpha Hall Monday evening, and was observed in an under-glorious conditions. It was indeed a grand rally, and the many interesting features that attended it, caused Quincy Square and vicinity to present
a spectacle, such as is wont to be noticeable on the evening of the Fourth of July.

The rally of the night was scheduled for 8 o'clock, but for many hours previous to that time, things had begun to take a lively boom.

A brass band had been furnished for the occasion and marched through the various streets in the Square section, playing the popular airs. Red fire

AT HALLOWEEN.

Williams Struthers.

The children played, as young folk
should, with hazelnuts 'mid hearth-logs flame; Watching them and the blazing wood,
There sat a hoary-headed dame.

The youngsters laughed and danced in glee; With the nuts seemed to draw near; Then poked at them, to set them free
And make the fire-flames snarl and sue.

The ancient lady joined them, too,
In sport about the spitting things; Yet by and by she grew drowsy; And to mind a memory springs
As when was such mirth for her:

Prom far, she felt more keenly thrilled—The hearth became a stage astir,
Where play a lad and lassie filled.

Hazelnut trees, October sun
Ash-blown on a leaf-strewn path;
The wood, and the wood and won
In autumn glowing aftermath.

And whilst the youngsters laughed away, Grandmother's musing grew so deep That from the past love-dreams did tray.

And put the dear old eyes to sleep!

A ROMANCE OF HALLOWEEN.

It all happened more than five years ago before Peggie, here, was married and when we were classmates at Vassar. We were juniors that year and had upper-class privileges so that we were able to accept Gretchen Van Marter's invitation for Halloween, although it meant leaving college in term-time. Gretchen lived across the hall from us and we had never visited her before, but we had heard glowing accounts of her beautiful home in New York and her country house on the Hudson. Her mother had died the spring before Gretchen came to college. Katrina, the eldest daughter, had been present
and we eagerly welcomed her invitation to Beechwood Hall. We had heard much of her sister; for Gretchen, jolly, athletic Gretchen, although not a bit the conventional society girl was nevertheless very proud of "Trina," as she called her, and we never wearied of hearing about her.
The night before we were to leave for Beechwood Hall, Gretchen came into our room with two letters. "I thought you girls would like to know what to expect," she said, "so I came to tell you about the news. I've just heard from Aunt Fran and from Trina.
"You see, to tell the truth, your entertainment was a bit of a problem for Aunt Fran. We are none of us out yet, you know, so we couldn't properly attend a ball, and yet we couldn't be treated like children home from boarding school. In that emergency, Trina has decided on the best scheme. We're going to have a barn party, a real, old-fashioned barn party, only of course there will be the modern fixings, trust Trina for that.
"Aunt Fran has invited the younger set; there'll be several house parties
nearby and some Harvard and Yale men will be there. I'm so glad it's going to be that way; I hate a stupid society dance." We laughed at Gretchen, although if the truth be told,
we were both relieved, for we had dreaded a formal function. We girls were invited as members of a weekend house party and as Halloween fell on Monday, the barn party was to be the first.

Miss Frances welcomed us in the great square hall and Trina, too, was waiting to receive us. The genuine hospitality of the one and the gracious manner of the other put us at our ease immediately. When we gathered in the dining-room we met Mr. Van Marter, a genial kindly man, who reminded us of Gretchen and made us feel quite at home.

For two days we frolicked and enjoyed ourselves to the utmost for the other guests were congenial and everything was done for our entertainment. Long drives, gay luncheons and an unexpected excursion to a big football game at West Point filled the two days and Sunday found us quite ready to rest before the Halloween festival
the next evening.

One feature of the great estate was a fine barn, recently built and fitted up. Its polished floors and ceilings were as fine as those in many a dwelling house. Here Miss Frances had expected to hold the party, but Gretchen had scorned the scheme.

"Of course," she said with determination, "we'll have the party in grandmother's old barn. If you want to come here for dancing, afterwards,
all right, but we'll have the husking
in the old barn."

"The husking!" exclaimed Miss Frances in consternation. "Gretchen Van Marter, what do you mean?"
Just what I said," replied Gretchen, unabashed. "Thomas has not taken all the field corn to the mill yet, and there is still enough for a respectable husking-bee. Halloween is an old-fashioned festival and I mean to celebrate it in the old-fashioned way. Do you suppose our grandmothers used to have a German or a cotton on Halloween?" Of course they didn't.

It was a pretty sight on Halloween
when, at the appointed hour, we all assembled at the old-fashioned barn.
Gretchen had made some concessions to comfort, and the barn floor had been swept clean, while cushions and Indian seats were scattered about for the huskers. But the walls were banked with great fragrant hay mows,
and from between the rafters overhead
peeped bales of straw and bundles of corn husks. One or two astonished-looking crows viewed the scene from one corner, for Gretchen had stoutly refused to have them taken away, maintaining that they needed one or two to furnish "local color."

In the center of the floor was a great stack of unhusked corn,
and around it gathered a merry party.
The hostesses of the house parties
in the vicinity had caught the spirit of the idea and transported their guests in gaily-decorated strawcushioned hay-racks. Under such circumstances stiffness and formality
were impossible, and the gay society
girls in their simple "tub gowns,"
and the men in outing clothes, entered into the frolic with right good will. The chaperons, too, were enthusiastic, and Miss Frances fairly radiated hospitality, for she realized that
"that child's wild scheme," as she called Gretchen's party, was really good
to prove a social sensation.

One of the members of the house party at Beechwood Hall was Reginald Nesmith, a student for the year at Katrina Marter, and the evident
choice of Miss Frances. He was rich, of good family, and considered "the match of the season," yet Trina was still unwon, and society wondered.

Several years previous the family had spent much of the year at Beechwood Hall. In those old days Katrina walked and rode, picnicked and frolicked with the young people of the neighborhood, and John Maxfield had fallen in love with her.

It was a mere boy-and-girl affair,
and the world knew nothing of it.
John was poor, the son of a widowed mother, who relied for support almost entirely on the pension she received from the government. She was a Southern woman who had incurred the displeasure of her family
by marrying a Northern army officer,
and so in her widowhood was entirely dependent on her own resources.

When John was eighteen, some old friends of his father had secured him an appointment at West Point, and he was now in the army and stationed in the West. He had always written faithfully to Trina, but of late she had answered his letters very infrequently, and Gretchen feared that their aunt's social ambitions for Katrina would prevail.

"You see," she said, in telling us
the story, "John never really proposed to Trina, but I know the reason why.
He feels that he will wait until he earns his promotion and can support
a wife as well as his mother. Then, too, I'm afraid Trina's being an heiress stands in the way. John's awfully proud."

Reginald kept close to Katrina's side during the husking bee, and Gretchen's disgust was obvious.
The husking was so noisy that it became fairly uncontrollable when,
just as the fun was at its height, Katrina husked a red ear and Reginald boldly claimed the forfeit as his due.

"I guess we've had enough of this,"
was Gretchen's meaning remark, although she really gave the signal to proceed to the other barn. "You're tired of this, I know. Aunt Fran has an orchestra in the new barn and we're going to have old-fashioned dances
there."

Just then a fiddle sounded, playing
"Money Musk," and the company
trooped gallantly towards the music.
The new barn was lighted by electricity, but the old one had been illuminated according to old-fashioned country custom by rows of lanterns, hung on pitchforks and stuck into the
hay. Fearful of fire, Gretchen turned back for a moment to see that all was safe, when a slight noise started her,
and John Maxfield stepped out of the dark shadows in the back of the barn. He had come home on a furlough to visit his mother, and hearing of the party, had walked across the fields in the light of the October moon to see whether he had not entered by a door in the rear of the barn just before the party broke up,
and had been in time to see Trina
husk the fateful red ear and Reginald claim the forfeit.

Of course the poor fellow thought

Fashions, Whims and Vagaries—Practical Suggestions for Clever Dressers.

All the world of womankind is especially interested in dress at this time of year when great demands are made to be made upon every garment in one's wardrobe. A new suit, hat or coat is sure to be needed and it's just as easy to make a satisfactory selection
as a poor one if only one can arrive at a definite idea of what one wants.

HAT WRINKLES.
Say it's a hat that won't be too
drowsy to go with one's tallmade
but good-looking enough to go to the theatre with the prettiest frock in the outfit. Buy a velvet hat of the style that suits face, figure and pocketbook best and insist first on having the hat done.

"You remember Uncle Ben's old studio, don't you? It's at the top of the house, and we children used to play there, years ago. It's the ghost-liest place on earth in the evening.
Well, I'll show you the way up there,
and then I'll put a chair in front of the mirror on the south wall, and you can do the rest."

"Tradition says that if a girl takes a candle and an apple and having first let down her hair, goes to a lonely room on Halloween and sits before a mirror, she will see her future husband in the glass while she combs
her hair and eats her apple. I'll see
that Trina is the one to try the charm,
and I guess you don't need instruction in your part. Do you see?"

John recognized the possibilities
and blessed Gretchen for her cleverness. Together they softly stole out
of the barn and around the house.
They entered by the front door, and no
one saw them, for the guests were
all in the barn, and the servants were busy in the back of the house. Gretchen
left John in the old studio, telling him
that he had some time to wait, and adding, mockingly, that he would
have time to rehearse his part.

No one missed Gretchen, she was
so short a time. We wondered,
though, when she joined us in the
new barn, why she seemed so strangely
excited. She was impatient for the dancing to stop, but more strange to relate, she was most friendly to Reginald Nesmith and talked to him con-
fidentially all through the beautiful old-
fashioned supper, which was served in the light of a hundred jack-o'-
lanterns.

When supper was over we tried various tricks and charms. It was Katrina who found the ring in the bran-pie which she stirred three times to try it," she finished. "Everything points to her as the next bride."

"I'll help you make up your mind,"
she whispered, under cover of the general laugh. "You must go alone,
you know," she added.

"That's hardly fair, Miss Gretchen," cried Reginald Nesmith, but Katrina flashed him a laughing glance and began to loosen her beautiful hair.

"What a foolish child you are," she said to Gretchen, "but I'm going to do this just to please you, and to show that I'm not afraid of that ghostly excursion."

I have never forgotten how Katrina looked that night as she stood on the landing at the turn of the staircase,
and waited a moment to look down on the laughing crowd gathered beneath her.
The apple in one hand, the lighted candle and comb in the other, with her curly locks falling over her white gown she was truly a picture for an artist. I didn't blame Reginald Nesmith for waiting to steal away after her,
but Gretchen was too quick for him.

"I'm going to play some college songs," she said, "will you turn the music for me?" He couldn't refuse,
but as he escorted her to the piano
he said in a low tone, "I see you are still opposed to having me for a brother-in-law, Miss Gretchen, but I shall win never fear. I'm not afraid of a phantom lover!"

Gretchen didn't reply. She just struck into a popular air, and we gathered about the piano where the time passed so quickly that no one noticed the clock until the half-hour chimed.

"It's half-past twelve," said someone, suddenly. "Do you suppose Miss Katrina has eloped through the looking-glass?" Everybody laughed, but Gretchen would allow no one to go in search of her sister. In a few minutes Katrina herself appeared on the staircase. She was evidently excited for her eyes were as bright
as stars and her cheeks rosily flushed.
She laughingly refused to tell her experience to anyone, but we girls noticed that she exchanged one or two mysterious glances with Gretchen and that for the rest of the evening she treated Reginald Nesmith with marked indifference.

For a wonder Gretchen kept the secret until we were safely back at college. Not long afterward, however, she came bursting into our study one day with a great box of vi-lets in her arms.

"See," she said. "John sent me
these, and Trina's refused Reginald at last, and even Aunt Fran can't change
her mind now."

Then she told us the whole story
and we learned for the first time that Trina had really seen the face of her future husband in the mirror that fateful night and that Gretchen was to be maid of honor at the Christmas wedding.—Sarah Gertrude Pomeroy.

band in the glass while she combs
her hair and eats her apple. I'll see
that Trina is the one to try the charm,
and I guess you don't need instruction in your part. Do you see?"

John recognized the possibilities
and blessed Gretchen for her clever-
ness. Together they softly stole out
of the barn and around the house.
They entered by the front door, and no
one saw them, for the guests were
all in the barn, and the servants were
busy in the back of the house. Gretchen
left John in the old studio, telling him
that he had some time to wait, and
adding, mockingly, that he would
have time to rehearse his part.

No one missed Gretchen, she was
so short a time. We wondered,
though, when she joined us in the
new barn, why she seemed so strangely
excited. She was impatient for the
dancing to stop, but more strange to
relate, she was most friendly to Reginald Nesmith and talked to him con-
fidentially all through the beautiful old-
fashioned supper, which was served in
the light of a hundred jack-o'-
lanterns.

When supper was over we tried various tricks and charms. It was Katrina who found the ring in the bran

NANCY WATERHOUSE.

Quincy has lost another of its venerable women in the passing on of Mrs. Nancy Waterhouse, widow of Cyrus Waterhouse, at her home in Newbury avenue, Atlantic, on October 24th at the age of eighty-eight years, five months.

Mrs. Waterhouse was a resident of Atlantic for nearly thirty years, and saw North Quincy grow from a region known as "The Farms," to its present status as a thickly-settled portion of Greater Boston.

She survived her husband twenty years, and during all her life she was a home for an unnumbered son. She was justly proud of this domestic accomplishment at the age of nearly four-score years and ten.

Her sterling character, together with her simplicity and sincerity of manner, and above all, her gentle sweetness, won for her many friends and have rendered mourners indeed, her son, Seth Waterhouse, a daughter-in-law, Mrs. Ida Waterhouse, widow of Gilbert Austin Waterhouse, and a grand-daughter, Miss Lillian Waterhouse, all of Quincy.

Funeral services, conducted by the Rev. Clarence Lathbury, of Elmwood, Mass., were held Thursday afternoon at her late residence. Interment was in the family lot at Mount Wollaston.

Mrs. Waterhouse had lived to be the "last leaf on the tree" of her own generation, but of her many friends of a later generation, "none knew her but to love her."

RURAL LODGE.

The annual communication of Rural Masonic lodge was held Thursday evening and these officers elected:—

Worshipful Master—Frank A. Reed. Senior Warden—H. Everett Crane. Junior Warden—Frederick E. Tupper.

Treasurer—Alexander Falconer. Secretary—Walter E. Stannard.

The officers will probably be installed at a special communication to be held Nov. 23.

TWO PLAYS PRESENTED.

The Quincy Gym girls held forth in a most enjoyable entertainment at the Colonial hall, Thursday evening, with two plays which keenly interested the many who were present. The first was called "A Psychological Moment," while the second was termed "The Bargain Counter."

Both plays were ably presented by the amateur actors. After the conclusion of the last play, dancing was enjoyed up till midnight.

The casts of both plays were made up of members of the Gym Girls' club and were presented as follows:

"A Psychological Moment."—Miss S. Sisson, Ruth Hildebrand, Miss Hutchins, Irene Williams, Emily Childs, Edith Mullin, Ruth Gordon, Lena Clark, Josie Roth, Helen Mitchell, Daisy Ralph, Mildred Smith.

"The Bargain Counter."—Mrs. Marsh Marigold, Miss Veronica Speedwell, Edith Mullin, Miss Daisy Chaine, Lena Clark, Mrs. Crosston, Helen Mitchell, Nora Flannigan, Berlye Turner.

WOLLASTON ALLIANCE.

Rev. Carl G. Horst was the speaker at the meeting of the Alliance of the Wollaston Unitarian church, Thursday afternoon. Rev. Horst spoke of "Our church and its needs." He congratulated all on the beautiful church in which they had met. Also on the fact that it was all paid for, as well as the adjoining lot.

One of the greatest needs of the church was a parish house so that the vestry might be kept solely for the use of Sunday school and for formal and educational purposes.

Another need was the developing of our church ideals and missionary work in Wollaston.

Mr. Chandler W. Smith made a report of the recent general conference at Washington and Mrs. N. S. Huntling sang a group of songs.

AWARDED DAMAGES.

Miss Susan Holloran daughter of Officer John Holloran of Atlantic, has recovered the sum of $5,000 from the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad in her suit for personal injuries. Miss Holloran was a passenger in the rear car of a Granite branch train which was telegraphed to a train following the South Boston station on the evening of Nov. 28, 1908. She was severely injured and for a time her life was despaired of. Her injuries consisted of a broken collar bone in addition to internal injuries.

The train upon which Miss Holloran was coming home had stopped at the South Boston station and had just left the depot when a train following crashed into it. The latter train following was sent out over a circuit cut and before the engineer could bring his train to a stop it had taken the train in by the Granite branch train.

A large number of persons were injured, including several from West Quincy, some of whom lost their lives.

FAREWELL PARTY.

Wednesday evening a farewell party was tendered S. Corliss Berry at his home, 44 Spear street by the employees of the firm of Berry Bros. Mr. Berry leaves Friday for Portland, Oregon. The evening was spent pleasantly with games, singing and a collation. A beautiful token of remembrance was presented Mr. Berry by those present, the presentation being made by Louis Smith.

Mr. Berry was graduated from the Quincy High school as president of the class of '09 and that fall continued his studies at Bryant & Stratton business school where he finished the business course in the remarkable time of thirty-one weeks, graduating with a very high mark; the first to graduate of the entering class. Since then he has been with the Holtzner-Cable Electric Co., of Brooklyn, and saw North Quincy grow from a region known as "The Farms," to its present status as a thickly-settled portion of Greater Boston.

She survived her husband twenty years, and during all her life she was a home for an unnumbered son. She was justly proud of this domestic accomplishment at the age of nearly four-score years and ten.

Her sterling character, together with her simplicity and sincerity of manner, and above all, her gentle sweetness, won for her many friends and have rendered mourners indeed, her son, Seth Waterhouse, a daughter-in-law, Mrs. Ida Waterhouse, widow of Gilbert Austin Waterhouse, and a grand-daughter, Miss Lillian Waterhouse, all of Quincy.

Funeral services, conducted by the Rev. Clarence Lathbury, of Elmwood, Mass., were held Thursday afternoon at her late residence. Interment was in the family lot at Mount Wollaston.

Mrs. Waterhouse had lived to be the "last leaf on the tree" of her own generation, but of her many friends of a later generation, "none knew her but to love her."

Orville Wright says man is a natural flier, but you'd never think it to ride on some of our accommodation trains.

Doc Wiley favors woman suffrage. He no doubt believes that the hand that makes the pie should guide the state.

It is said that no Vassar graduate was ever divorced, but this may have been because two men were never found who would marry one of 'em.

Seems the joke has been at work in Ward 5. What's up? All parties, however, claim there is nothing to it so we will wait and see whether the affair "fizzes out."

The British tax payers are discouraged because a war ship that cost $250,000 twenty years ago has just been sold for $18,000, but that's about the percentage of shrinkage in five years on an automobile.

Many newspapers have always made strong Mr. Pulitzer's college to tell off hand the exact number of killed and wounded in the battle of Majuba Hill in the Boer war, we have decided that a newspaper man can not know too much.

Don't forget to register. Don't forget to vote. Don't be a stay-at-home. Don't become indifferent as to who governs you. Don't allow yourself to be one of those who have no interest in national, state, county or town government. Be a man and exercise the privileges that are given to a man.

Senator Barnes was a visitor in Quincy Friday morning, calling on friends and attending to affairs incident to his campaign. He made a pleasant call at the Patriot office and when asked regarding that much discussed 8 hour bill, exhibited a good deal of copy of the way he voted on that momentous question. There is no room for a doubt that he voted for it.

Citizens of Quincy and other cities in the Metropolitan district opposing the idea of annexation to Boston will be interested to hear that no less a personage than President Eliot condemns the idea just now. He says: "While the annexation of the suburban towns and cities to Boston might be desirable, it was not so until a better municipal government had been secured."

Quincy has been highly favored so far this campaign in the size of the various rallies and the calibre of the different men who have come out to do the speaking. Of course both sides are out with the best of intentions, but the fact remains that some mighty good arguments have been made on both sides and whoever wins, no fear of a collapse of the Commonwealth experienced.

Now that the papers of the various candidates for office have been opened, the sky clears somewhat, and an effort may be concentrated by both parties for the selection of suitable nominees for the important positions to be filled at the coming municipal election. It may truly be said that it has been a long time since such a large number of really good men were in the field seeking honors. Safe to say that in any event the affairs of the city will be well looked after.

Street widening is in the air at present, two main thoroughfares being under consideration, Hancock street from the Ledger office to Elm and School streets; and Washington street from Temple to Chubbuck street. It is to be hoped they will both receive full consideration and the widening be of a permanent nature. Other streets badly in need of widening or at least of establishing a street line for future widening are School and Franklin. Something should be done to relieve the congestion on these streets and also to prevent building on the present street line, as it will be expensive in years to come to pay for their removal.

Is there any one that makes your blood run hotter at all hours of the day than the man at the wheel on the auto? Why is it that the majority of drivers seem to think their responsibility ends with the turning of the steering wheel? How the people scurry when that horn toots! It does not matter whether they are on a street crossing and presumably have the right of way, it is all one, the horn toots, the auto does not slow down and every one dashes madly for some safe spot. And that safe spot may be a very narrow one only the other day that an auto climbed upon the sidewalk after one of our good citizens and worse luck caught him to. But in all seriousness does the average chauffeur think of the people on the street crossings as having a right to the street, as they cross in comfort and safety, or as something to be hustled out of his way so that he won't have to slow down? We do not think the duty ends with the blowing of the horn. The driver should also slow down and not frighten to death those who avoid killing by sheer good luck.

Many do not take seriously the move of Houghs Neck residents to cut loose from Quincy and become a separate township, while others think it would be a good thing for Quincy. Houghs Neck has only recently become an all-the-year round residential district and in the short time has had a good many bouquets thrown its way, so many in fact that some of its residents are reaching out for the next one. It has as good a school building as Centre, has electric light, gas, sewer, water, garbage collection, postal delivery, etc., and for the matter of that, just as good streets and sidewalks as will be found in most parts of Ward One.

They seem to expect more improvements than in meted out to the business heart of the city. In proportion to what residents of the Centre are paying in taxes and what the Houghs Neckers are paying, Houghs Neck gets more of the plums. Some of the more conservative residents there know it and do not favor the present move.

Another thing for Quincy residents to consider is the temperance question. If Houghs Neck should become a separate township and exercise its right to go for license, which would be a bad thing for Quincy as its residents would be bottled up, the only way out of the town being by way of Quincy or the "joy" line.

State and County politics seem to be crowding out local politics just now but after next week they will warm up again. Although little is said about the various candidates for mayor there are those who are doing considerable thinking and the contest promises to be a lively one before it is finally fought out at the polls.

Staunch old Republicans say that the city is, and always has been Republican in the core and there has been a long enough term of the Democratic-Citizen reign, that it is time now to swing back into line. Others say the present administration has been a good one and the party should be continued.

Everyone admits that if the Republicans are again to gain control, they must be united in its ranks, personal prejudice and ambitions must give way and a strong man put up to win. If the Republicans select the best man in the party and then all pull together, their chances are usually good this year, as the trend in state and city politics seems to favor the Republicans. The outcome of the State election for this reason is being eagerly looked forward to, for it will undoubtedly influence local politics.

A strong Democrat and an equally strong Republican up for Mayor, will give Quincy the most exciting contest it has had for several years, and may be the best man win.

REPUBLICAN NOMINEES.

Nomination papers of candidates to be voted for at the annual caucus Nov. 14 were opened at Republican headquarters Thursday night. Vice President John R. Richards presided and the papers were opened by Secretary John O. Hall, in the presence of a large number.

LITERARY AFTERNOON.

Although a day of clouds and rain nearly fifty club women assembled at the home of Mrs. William H. Doble on South Street Wednesday afternoon for the second lesson in Modern Literature in charge of Mrs. Herbert J. Gurney under the auspices of the Literature committee of the Quincy Women's club.

Mrs. Gurney's talk was most interesting and entertaining as well as highly instructive and she proved a most admirable exponent of Maurice Maeterlinck's peculiar genius the topic of the afternoon, which she said was most opportune while the Blue Bird was being given in Boston and Maeterlinck's wife Mme. Leblanc who is now in this country taking a leading part in several of his operas including "Pelleas and Melisande" Mrs. Gurney contrasted Maeterlinck's treatment of the problem played out much out of life, it is the passion of life against conventionalism, while Maeterlinck is narrow Maeterlinck sees about him, living close to life. He was born in Ghent in 1862 and all his life has been something of an enigma to his intimates friends. He was graduated from the Jesuit college of St. Barbe and admitted to the bar but law did not appeal to him and he devoted himself to short story writing but even literature was not to all certain in their minds as to their real worth and he was 27 when he wrote "The Blue Bird" which his friend offered to set up the manuscript in type if he would turn the crank of a hand press and he agreed. The edition comprised 25 copies.

His success was assured when Maeterlinck was so impressed with the review of it in "La Pigeon" and the world talking.

Inter his later dramas Maeterlinck has woven the ideas of destiny the unknown determining force of life, and he has accomplished this with a spiritual sensitiveness more delicate than that displayed by any other modern writer. He gives no detailed plan or scheme of predestination save in the simple symbol of "The Blue Bird." Mrs. Gurney spoke of several of his essays including "The life of the Bee" all dealing with the mystic. She read the story of "Sightless" which is his contribution to the modern question. His Blue Bird has caused a great amount of discussion and it is expected he will receive the Nobel prize because it has a distinct moral uplift. Mrs. Gurney said Maeterlinck's wife was a woman of rare intellect and charm with a total of genius herself and that she had been an ideal helpmate to her husband and inspired him where inspiration was needed.

He takes pleasure in doing things for the sake of doing them in the best way possible and it has been said that his contribution to the modern world is as whimsical and mysterious and as interesting as the author of "The Blue Bird" who slept in an arm chair in a friend's study utterly oblivious of the fact that an English audience had sat in judgment on his drama and acclaimed it a masterpiece and informed him he had stretched himself and went to bed. Mrs. Gurney brought her lecture to a close by reading in her delightful manner from Ardiane and "Barbe Bleue" and the "Land of mystery" from the Blue Bird. Mrs. George E. Plattmann of 65 Goffe street is to open her house for the next lesson on Wednesday, Nov. 15, Schenck-Wilde and Shaw the English writers.

President Bryant of the City Council takes exception to the allusion made to him in a local paper relative to his attitude toward the candidacy of Councilman Leslie for representative from the sixth Norfolk district. He states his position clearly in the following letter to the Editors of Patriot:

I notice in the Oct. 21st Telegram it makes certain references in regard to how I stand on the representative fight in the Sixth District. I want to distinctly state I was not asked to preside at any rally in the interest of any candidate in the Sixth District, that I have tried to make it plain to various newspapers in Quincy that this year I declined to be a candidate for any office and so consequently it seems to me that the newspapers ought to let me alone, and not bring me into the political situation in any way, shape or manner, as I am absolutely out of anything pertaining

ADAMS SCHOOL ASSO.

Fully 250 were in attendance at the meeting of the Parents' and Teachers' Association of the Adams school, held in the school hall Thursday evening. The principal topic of the evening, and which attracted the most attention, was the proposed location of the new school building. At previous meetings some opposition had been expressed and a few were in favor of Water street, although the majority held tenaciously to the Madison avenue site.

On this occasion the entire sentiment seemed to swing in favor of the Madison avenue location and when a rising vote was finally taken, there was not one dissenting vote to be recorded against it. President O. Diack was in the chair and a list of speakers proved to the many present that the Madison avenue location was, without a doubt, not only the most suitable, but the most ideal spot that could have been selected, no matter what phase of the situation is taken into consideration.

The great surprise of the evening took place when Councilman Robert J. Craig announced that he had been delegated by Mayorality candidate John L. Miller, to inform those present that he latter had retracted his opposition to the Madison avenue location and was willing to abide by the will of the majority in asking that the new Adams school be built on the Madison avenue location, selected by the Building committee and the teachers and parents at large.

The school site committee had reported in favor of the Madison avenue site and the report was received with great pleasure. Mr. Diack also formally announced that Mr. Miller had withdrawn his advocacy of the Water street lot and was willing to have the school built on Madison avenue.

School Commissioner Arthur W. Newcomb spoke at length upon the desirability of the Madison avenue location and gave the many reasons why it would be of greater advantage to have a school located there instead of on Water street. He pointed out the many places dealing with the proposed location and gave numerous instances where the benefits to be derived would far eclipse those that would accrue in the event of a school house being erected on such a site as the one proposed on Water street.

Dr. G. Gardner Smith, physical director in the schools and the prime mover of the sewer football project, has been confined to his home with illness this week.

Mr. T. L. Williams of Newcomb place was one of the successful contestants in suggestions for the new Pile Building of Boston, having been awarded four prizes.

Mr. Louis B. Bradford and daughter Dorothy are leaving today for their home in Baltimore after a month's visit with her parents Dr. and Mrs. Clarence B. Underwood of Spear street.

There seems to be a general opinion that after the municipal caucuses Nov. 14, an independent democratic candidate will appear in the field. Just who he will be has not been mentioned.

Mr. and Mrs. Perry Lawton of Presidents Hill returned Monday night from a visit to the city. They enjoyed a few weeks' outing, and Mr. Lawton convalesced from his recent illness.

The burial of Rev. John D. Wells, a former pastor of the First church, was held in Quincy Thursday afternoon. Prayers were said at the grave by Rev. C. B. Ames, recently assistant pastor of the First church.

Margie W. Taylor formerly of Quincy, is first "toll" in the Broadway High school orchestra, Seattle, Washington. The school contains over two thousand young men and in that country runs rampant.

Mr. and Mrs. John Quincy and sons of Weymouth have moved to Quincy and are now settled at 25 Spear street. Mr. Quincy for years has been foreman of the large Kendall farm which has recently been cut up into house lots.

Mr. William Holde of Quincy will be guests of Neponset lodge Monday evening when the first degree will be conferred on several candidates. It is desired that a large gathering be on hand to encourage the degree class.

Rev. Paul Hallin of the Iowa Missionary field, who has recently accepted a call to become the pastor of the Swedish Baptist church, succeeding Rev. A. P. Hanson, who resigned, assumed his new charge Sunday. His sermon for the morning was "Working together."

GRIEFS

G. F. Whitcomb has severed his connection with the Hancock market for a visit of several weeks to his daughters.

Mr. and Mrs. Calvin G. Fletcher of Garfield street left Monday for a ten days' visit at Stonington, Me.

Mr. William Holde of Quincy will be guests of Neponset lodge Monday evening when the first degree will be conferred on several candidates. It is desired that a large gathering be on hand to encourage the degree class.

Rev. Paul Hallin of the Iowa Missionary field, who has recently accepted a call to become the pastor of the Swedish Baptist church, succeeding Rev. A. P. Hanson, who resigned, assumed his new charge Sunday. His sermon for the morning was "Working together."

At the conclusion of the discussion on the matter a unanimous vote was recorded in favor of the Madison avenue location and a resolution was adopted to have the school built on that site.

A meeting of the Madison avenue site committee will be held next Tuesday and petitions will be put in circulation.

TO BE A RECOUNT.

A recount of the votes cast in both the Fifth and Sixth districts at the election Tuesday for the city council will be made. While the petition for it had not been filed up to 11 o'clock, it was definitely known that the papers or rather the petitions would be in today. The recount will be held on petition of the Democratic City Committee and are asked on the usual grounds that the petitioners believe that votes counted for Sullivan and that votes counted for Leslie should have been counted for McDevitt.

No one expects that there will be any material change and the main object of them in the past has been simply to afford an opportunity to see the ballots, that it may be known how many Democrats who voted for Foss, voted for the Republican representatives. It has not been definitely decided when the recount will be held. Thetime for filing petitions for recounts expires at 5 o'clock tonight.

TWO PLANS.

Two plans for the redistricting of the State into sixteen congressional districts, as allowed by the recent Congress, have been submitted. One is offered to the special congressional redistricting committee by ex-Senator Elmer C. Potter and the other by Rep. Geo. E. Stevens of Braintree. Senator Barnes is a member of the committee and Norfolk County's interest will be well looked after.

WILL HOLD RALLY.

A rally in the interest of Eugene R. Stone for Mayor will be held at Hibernian hall, South Quincy this evening. As this is the home ward of John L. Miller it looks like hearing the lion in his den.

WOLLASTON

Miss Marjorie S. Gould, whose engagement to Theodore T. Penley was announced, was given a linen shower last Saturday evening by fourteen of her young lady friends at the home of Miss Abbie B. Penley on South Central avenue. The gifts were numerous. Instead of the usual giving the name of the giver, each gift was accompanied by a short original verse in which the name of the donor was hidden. Refreshments were served and the evening proved to be one of enjoyment to all.

Rathbun E. Sprague, Dartmouth 1911, who spent two months in Europe last summer, returned to his home in Wollaston, Mass., and is now located at Chaparral, Cuba.

His father Mr. Sprague will meet Sunday at 12:05 in the Wollaston Baptist church. In addition to the discussion of live up to date subjects there will be great songs and music by an orchestra of at least seven instruments. All men not in other similar classes invited.

QUINCY POINT

Luther T. Stone of Washington street has gone to New York on a business trip.

MILTON

The first of a series of sunset services, to take the place of the usual vespers was ushered in Sunday in the Unitarian church. The service is held just one hour before sunset and will be held on the first Sunday of each month.

The Alliance fair was held in the parish house, Canton avenue, Wednesday 11 A. M. until 10 P. M.

The annual meeting of the Social Service League was held at the public library Thursday. The speaker was Carl C. Carstens.

On the evening of November 18th, a concert is to be held in the Town hall, under the auspices of the Phonolary quartet.

Judge Harvey W. Baker will be the speaker at the meeting of the Woman's club on the afternoon of Nov. 29, and his subject, "Juvenile Courts."

Roger Pierce called from New York Tuesday, in company with President Emeritus Eliot of Harvard on route of their tour around the world.

Richard B. Wiglesworth, a well known figure here, has been elected secretary of the student council at Harvard.

John Dugan and family of Grove street, have moved into their new house on Houston avenue.

Walter Bronsdon, of Brook road, has been elected to the Cape, where he has been doing some shooting the past few days.

The many friends of John Kelley were pleased to be informed this week that he is able to be about again after a serious illness.

Mrs. Julia E. West, of Canton avenue, has returned from a visit to relatives in Springfield.

QUINCY CHORAL SOCIETY.

The Quincy Choral society has set the date of its "Golden Legend" concert for Tuesday Jan. 23 and subscription tickets were distributed.

These tickets offer an extra inducement to the early purchaser this year, not only giving the right of choice of seats before the public sale, but also giving the holder the right to attend rehearsals. Musical people who will enjoy the concert in addition to having a very interesting and useful music have here an opportunity of listening to the practice of it if they choose to do so. Singers who wish to study the choral methods of instruction may find it valuable.

The executive board of the Quincy Choral society is working always with an eye to the future, believing that this opportunity of study should

The Quincey Patriot is published every Saturday morning at 10 o'clock.

Now let the redoubting planer forward. With Barnes, Piper, Leslie and Wolcott it surely looks hopeful.

The German people are much stirred up about the high cost of living, but if they will only turn to the speeches of any of our candidates, they will learn how that little difficulty can be attended to.

A New Orleans woman says the women of that city are interested in their homes and flower gardens, not in suffrage. Now if they would be interested in vegetable gardens too, it would be a paradise for mankind.

Amidst the clamor, who is beginning his service at the German court, will not stir the diplomatic world if he does happen to break all the Ten Commandments, but neither he nor his wife must ride down to market on his bicycle.

A reduction in the price of gas is still under consideration, the question now having reached the Gas Commission. Here's hoping that some way may be found to give Quincy the same benefits as received by Milton and other nearby towns.

The beloved trust is to be divided into three parts, and perhaps to comply with the law and avoid the appearance of constituting a combination, they all may kindly agree to raise their prices to various points above the present level.

We note that candidates for Speaker of the House and president of the Senate have begun in earnest with our own Senator, George L. Barnes as one of the candidates. It is to be hoped that he will land the honor, so more capable man could be given the honor.

Apparently very little interest is shown in the further aiding and improving of Hancock street. No one appeared at the public hearing on the subject Monday evening at City Council and the affair went over on that account. Probably the feeling is that the matter can wait for many others of a vastly important nature.

The most successful business men agree with Nat B. Fowler who addressed the Get Together club of the Jordan, Marsh Co., the other night at their fifth annual dinner. The address was interesting because it confined its publicity to newspapers instead of advertising, billboard fashion. No advertiser, he said, has a right to place advertisements in places where a person who doesn't want to see them is virtually compelled to see and read such ads. They should only be placed in newspapers and periodicals so that purchasers who wish may see and read. The newspapers and periodicals are the only natural and legitimate advertising mediums, and I hope to see the day when all will advertise exclusively in them. The advertising industry has increased more rapidly than any other line of business and gets best results through the newspapers.

Through the smoke of battle one thing, at least, looms large and its worthiness of notice is obvious. The endorsement of the voters to put the head of the Police Department under the ban of the Civil Service law. By the vote one municipal office, is removed from politics.

The rigor or laxity with which restrictive laws that affect the conduct of the individual citizen are enforced depends largely on the attitude of the head of the police force. It is, therefore, essential for the efficient administration of the department, not only that the chief shall be a man of strong character and intelligence, but also that he shall have all possible protection in carrying out his duties. Any police chief will testify that there are at times almost overwhelming obstacles in the way of those who wish honestly and impartially to enforce the law. The chief is often faced with the unpleasant choice of either losing his position or of closing his eyes to flagrant infractions of law and order. Moreover he becomes of necessity involved in local politics, and is obliged to give much of his time to political work at the expense of his official duties.

THE ELECTION.

The election is over with a divided prize. Returns Wednesday show that Fox and Lane are winning substantial majorities. The fight was a strenuous one and much credit goes to Mr. Frothingham for the nature of the one he waged.

Although impossible to go into detail a few facts are of an interesting nature.

In New York state the Democrats lose the Assembly, dealing a stinging blow to Boss Murphy of Tammany, but also crippling the power of Governor Dix.

New Jersey appears to stand by Governor Wilson with a Democratic Legislature. The Governor appears bigger than ever as a presidential candidate.

If reports from the newest state, New Mexico, are true a Republican legislature is elected, thereby assuring the Republicans of two more members in the United States senate. Democratic tendencies exist in the election of Ohio, the home state of President Taft.

Taken altogether nothing has happened of a landslide nature and it would be impossible to use the day's results in the nature of a prophecy.

QUINCY FAVORITE.

For a town to be located near a large city of course, from a business standpoint, has its disadvantages. But there are many things of an important nature in its favor, among them the possibility for public service of men of fine executive ability, who hold positions of high trust in the trades and marts of the metropolis and make their homes and spend their leisure hours in the delightful surroundings of a suburban community. Here in Quincy we are especially favored and we need not feel that we are in a position of disadvantage. A personal cognizance of the fact. A personal list of our public servants will bear out the above. There's Bailey—a ranking officer in a financial institution; Bryant, the executive of a leading paper warehouse; Rand, manager of the greatest news gathering combination in the world; Murray, the brains of one of Boston's large printing establishments; Shaw a notable civil engineer; Gillott of the Robbins Iron Works and Richmond, a peer in his field as an adjuster. And so it goes, a small city with the cream of a metropolitan community at its disposal. Such being the case it behooves the voters to see that only superior men are placed in line for public service.

POWER OF THE PRESS.

At a recent meeting of the Sphinx club, an association of advertising men in New York, Hon. Norman Thomas, chairman of the Democratic national committee did not hesitate to express himself concerning what is, in his opinion the best means for presenting the claims of any party to the favor of the voters. Mr. Mack declared the newspaper the best reliance of the politician for the purpose of securing the national committee "that the only way to promote a campaign nowadays is to advertise in the newspapers. I would spend 50 per cent of all the campaign funds for newspaper advertising."

Such comment from one so admirably qualified to give an opinion on such a subject should be pretty nearly conclusive. As a matter of fact, it goes almost without saying now that, in the promotion of anything, from politics to religion or the sale of whatever the public may want or need, the newspaper is the most effective and most far-reaching of all the mediums of communication. It is circulated everywhere and now reaches classes of people who, twenty years ago, acquired their views only from the expressions of others. Now they read and think for themselves. The newspapers are very nearly "running things."

VOTING MACHINES.

One of the latest voting machines was on exhibition in Boston recently and given a severe test when put through its paces.

When in transit to and from the polling places, the machine is set up in a substantial case 2 by 2 by 1-1/2 feet in dimensions. Set up for operation the keyboard stands at a convenient height for the voter to manipulate the keys which register his vote.

When used at the polls, the machine is so situated that no other person than the one voting can possibly see what candidates are being voted, being capable of more secrecy, if anything, than the Australian method.

In approaching the machine, a voter qualifies in exactly the same way as he would at the polls. He is approved he gains access to the keyboard by raising a bar, which automatically unlocks the key board, and prepares machine to receive his vote.

The candidates' names are clearly printed and arranged in columns, according to the office to which they are running. To register his vote, the voter simply turns a key, thereby scoring one vote for that candidate and locking up the entire column, so that he cannot possibly vote for another candidate in that column; although he can, if he chooses, turn back the key, canceling his vote and unlocking the column, so that he can again vote for any one candidate in the column. The machine may be adjusted to allow two or more votes in the same column if that number are to be selected for the same office, but when the eligible number have been voted on, the column locks, as in the case of the Australian method.

After completing his vote for all candidates, the voter leaves the machine by raising another bar which causes from the face of the keyboard all trace of how he voted, registers how he did vote and the interior of the machine and prepares the keys for the next operator.

The voter has thus cast his vote in about 60 seconds, in absolute secrecy and without any possibility of an error which could disqualify his ballot.

When the polls are closed the total vote of all candidates is automatically stamped on paper ribbon, of which as many copies may be obtained as is desirable and the absolutely correct totals are thus in the possession of the officials within one minute of the closing.

REV. JOHN D. WELLS.

Rev. John D. Wells for many years pastor over the First Church in Quincy died at Cambridge Monday. Speaking of his pastorate over the First Church of Quincy, he said: "In the year 1850, Rev. John D. Wells received a call and accepted. Rev. Mr. Wells was ordained over the First Church Thursday, December 27, 1850. The ordination exercises were as follows: Prayer by Dr. S. K. Loring; sermon by Dr. J. H. Morrison of Milton; benediction by Dr. Ezra S. Gannett; charge by Dr. A. P. Peabody; right hand of fellowship by the Rev. Rufus Ellis; address to the people by C. A. Bartol, D. D.; concluding prayer by Wm. Newell, D. D.; benediction.

For a town to be located near a large city of course, from a business standpoint, has its disadvantages. But there are many things of an important nature in its favor, among them the possibility for public service of men of fine executive ability, who hold positions of high trust in the trades and marts of the metropolis and make their homes and spend their leisure hours in the delightful surroundings of a suburban community. Here in Quincy we are especially favored and we need not feel that we are in a position of disadvantage. A personal cognizance of the fact. A personal

GAS HEARING.

The special committee of the City Council, appointed under a resolution of Councilman Richards, to consider the question of a reduction in the price of gas in Quincy and to consult with the Citizens Gas Co. and to consult with the board of Electric Light and Gas Commission.

The committee went over the gas situation in Quincy from the start, bringing out the fact that Milton and other places, controlled by the Consolidated Gas Company were paying considerably less than consumers in Quincy. The committee also told the commission that the citizens of Quincy felt that they were entitled to cheaper gas. After the hearing the Gas Commission took the matter under advisement and will make a report to the committee at a later date. The committee is desirous of having the commission to hold another conference.

EDWARD J. KEEGAN.

Edward J. Keegan, the son of Mrs. Catherine Keegan of Quincy, died Tuesday at the Boston City Hospital after a long illness, aged 21 years. Mr. Keegan served in the 2d United States Light Infantry in the fighting in China which followed the Boxer uprising and afterward saw considerable service in the Philippines.

Such comment from one so admirably qualified to give an opinion on such a subject should be pretty nearly conclusive. As a matter of fact, it goes almost without saying now that, in the promotion of anything, from politics to religion or the sale of whatever the public may want or need, the newspaper is the most effective and most far-reaching of all the mediums of communication. It is circulated everywhere and now reaches classes of people who, twenty years ago, acquired their views only from the expressions of others. Now they read and think for themselves. The newspapers are very nearly "running things."

After doing service in the Army Young Keegan served as lieutenant in the New York Boston trains on the New Haven Railroad.

SUPPER AND ENTERTAINMENT.

There were many present at the Universalist church, Wednesday evening at the supper given by the Ladies' Aid society and the entertainment which followed by the Murray club.

At 6 o'clock a baked bean supper, with all that goes with it, in the way of brown bread and pies was served. The committee in charge of the supper were Mrs. Frank Hobart who was assisted by Mrs. Jennie E. Holton and Mrs. George E. Sprague.

The entertainment which followed was very pleasing one and included a series of popular songs illustrated by tableaux. The songs illustrated were as follows:

"Sweet bunch of babies." Entire club Everett Andrews at the piano. "Sambonee Sue." Irene Howes. "Call me up some rainy afternoon." Mildred Smith.

"Waiting at the church." Bessie Gray. "Mafine." Annie Wright. "Come Josephine in my flying machine." Harriet Lombard.

The four songs: "Spring, Marion Wright. Summer, Elizabeth Reed. Fall, Katharine Reed. Winter, Edith Hyland. "Silver threads among the gold." Mrs. Robert G. Reed. "Alexander's Rag Time Band, entire club in costume.

CRANES SCHOOL ASSO.

A feature that added greatly to the meeting of the Parents' and Teachers' Association of the Cranen school Tuesday evening in the school house was the presentation by the Young Women's club, of a play entitled "Love and a Way." Previous to the play, a business meeting was held, and the minutes of the previous assembly were read and accepted.

The spirit of animation manifested itself strongly at the Galahad Brotherhood of Christ church business meeting Tuesday night. Final plans for the social to be held Nov. 21 were arranged. The nominations of officers proved a lively issue. One of the most important transactions of the evening was the forming of a dramatic society in connection with the organization. This is an entirely new move for the Brotherhood and it is hoped that it will culminate in success. A committee was also elected to secure a speaker for the social and to arrange for the refreshments.

The speakers for Sunday's discussion held a meeting at the close of the business session from which it is expected will come some surprises when they come together in real action. Some enjoyed a game of bowls, while others enjoyed a game of cards, including in operatic and popular music until a late hour.

Superintendent of Schools George R. Aldrich of Brookline spoke at the Melrose Woman's club. 2 on "Some Problems of the Public Schools." He said that he favored all round training for the school children, and that the present vocational method, He deprecated the attitude of the home in leaving the disciplining of the children so largely to the school teachers and urged more earnest co-operation between the home and the schools.

At its monthly meeting Nov. 15, in Bethany chapel the Women's Missionary society will listen to a paper by Mrs. F. P. Horton on "Our work for the Indians."

ORDER OF MOOSE.

At the regular meeting of the Quincy Lodge, No. 413, Loyal Order of Moose, 21 new members were admitted. A number of applications are now on the waiting list and there are up to the present time 45 who have yet to be initiated. A smoke talk will be held by the local order in Electric Hall, November 22.

A special effort is being made to have the membership increased to 600, for when that number is attained in the membership of the local organization, preparations will then be made to erect a new clubhouse. A clubhouse is already contemplated in Boston, the cost of which will be in the vicinity of $120,000, and the members of the local branch are in hopes of seeing a clubhouse erected in Quincy in the near future.

The first anniversary social and dance will be held in Alpha Hall, on Thursday evening, December 7, and the committee in charge has already planned many interesting features to celebrate the occasion.

The following is the selections rendered on the piano by Mrs. Evans: 1—A Ballade (a ball scene) by Nicolo. 2—Three Dances—From music of Shakespeare's Henry VIII by German. 3—A Spanish Dance by Moszkowski.

While the serving of refreshments was in order, Miss Clara Lundy and William Beach, both graduates of the Cranen school officiated on the piano and violin respectively and played for the dancing, which was enjoyed up to a late hour. A wide abundance of chrysanthemums adorned the hall, and caused it to present a very enticing appearance.

GIVEN VERDICT.

An echo of a trolley accident which happened in 1908, came Thursday at the Quincy Women's club, of Weymouth, was given a verdict of $4,000 by a jury in the civil session of the Norfolk Superior Court, sitting before Chief Justice Aldin, in her suit of $20,000 for injuries against the Old Colony Street Railway Co.

The injuries are alleged to have been received when a car of the company on the way to Nantasket jumped the tracks near Real street, West Hingham, crashed through a fence and fell down a steep embankment.

WHY HIGH PRICE GAS?

Editor Quincy Patriot:

Referring to the high prices which are continually being added upon the people of Quincy I would like to inquire of the general manager of the Citizens Gas Light Co. how it is that the Old Colony Gas Co. is able to lay several miles of mains in the city comparatively sparsely settled towns of Braintree, Weymouths, Abington, North Abington, Rockland and Whitman, and also erect a costly plant at Weymouth Landing and offer to sell the gas to the inhabitants of these towns for $1.25 per 1000 feet, 15 cents cheaper than the Citizens Company is charging to its Quincy consumers?

As the president of the Old Colony Gas Co. quoted to me the $1.25 rate I have reason to believe that it is correct.

I have no doubt but that the 3,500 consumers, including 2,302 owners of gas stoves, would be pleased to have the manager of the Citizens Gas Co. explain why it is that the Old Colony Gas Co. can open up sparsely settled territory and sell its gas through these country villages, so to speak, for $1.25 per 1000 feet, 15 cents cheaper than the Citizens Company is charging to its Quincy consumers?

The Atlantic Shakespeare society has held two meetings at the home of Mrs. C. L. Coe. The first play of the season to be studied is Coriolanus. Mrs. P. J. Peirce read an introductory sketch at the first meeting that was very interesting and instructive. The members are taking a great interest in the readings, and are studying hard.

Preparations for the fair of the Woman's Guild of Christ church are progressing under the excellent guidance of Mrs. Hazen E. Ricker, president. All the organizations connected with the church are cooperating with such readiness and willingness to help is sure to bring most satisfactory results.

ORDER OF OWLS.

The members of the Quincy Nest, No. 1517, Order of Owls, launched forth in their first social and dance, Thursday evening, at the home of Mrs. P. J. Peirce, in Alpha Hall, under most favorable auspices. Many of our best nests were in attendance and the occasion was attended by fully 100 people.

Refreshments were served in Union Hall from 9:30 to 11 P. M. All in all, the affair was a great success and all the members of the local branch felt thoroughly satisfied that their opening social was a gala one, showing the club to be a most flourishing organization.

Thomas P. Flaherty was floor marshal. Henry E. Selden was floor director, and he was assisted by the following ladies:

Leon C. Claffin, Sherman Hayden, Nestore Falli, John Connors, Thomas Lewis, C. H. Finn, E. F. Sashbury, J. Kingdon, Charles Jones, R. Sullivan, Charles E. White, P. Coligan, H. Baker, J. J. Byron, Leo Rhine, Walter Brooks.

The reception committee was comprised of the following:

Albert H. Taber, chairman, G. W. Grant, F. E. Hayden, Charles Schofield, William O'Brien, H. Finn, E. C. Claves, George Bolster, A. H. Smith, H. E. Selden, J. F. Allen, Archie Thayer, Don H. Coleman, Dr. J. T. Reynolds, Dr. J. H. Ash.

Charles E. White, W. J. Nott, J. Donahy and Charles H. Hersey composed the refreshment committee.

AMONG THE CLUBS.

The Friday, Nov. 17, meeting of St. Margaret's Guild of Christ church, in the hands of Mrs. Walter E. Burke, which ensures a delightful meeting. The Guild is preparing for its annual play which will be given Nov. 24, at Colonial hall and will be for the benefit of Women's Guild fund.

ADAMS CHAPTER, D. R.

Adams Chapter Daughters of the Revolution held its November meeting on Monday afternoon at the birthplace of President John Adams. After the opening exercises and routine business a poem entitled "Seth Pomeroy's Ride" was read by Mrs. Mary A. Chapman which was heartily enjoyed.

The call for the meeting announced that it would be the annual donation day and each member brought a gift for the faithful caretaker, Mrs. Alexander Smith. At the close of the meeting she was called upon and presented with many mysterious packages in appreciation of faithful work and interest in caring for the historic old house and the comfort of the Daughters at their monthly meetings.

Mrs. Antoinette S. Paige of Davis street, Wollaston Park will open her house for the December meeting and also extends an invitation to members to stay in the evening and play whist.

An interesting meeting of the Quincy Women's club is assured for Tuesday afternoon at the clubhouse. The Education committee has arranged for a lecture on "Echoes from the Balkans" by Rev. W. W. Sleeper and Miss May Sleeper Huggles will sing Bulgarian folk songs.

The class in modern literature under the auspices of the Literature committee met Nov. 1st with Mrs. W. H. Doble and was particularly interesting and enjoyable meeting, the subject being Maeterlinck. The next meeting on Nov. 15 will be with Mrs. George E. Pfaffmann, Presidents hall.

Under the auspices of this committee also the current events class began Nov. 3 and there was a large attendance to greet Mrs. May Alden Ward, the lecturer. She gave a very clear idea of the Congo states and the political and social conditions prevailing in Italy and Turkey, showing why most of Europe was interested.

The Civic committee has plans well underway for the annual assembly at Quincy hall, the date for which is Friday, Dec. 1st, the next night after Thanksgiving.

The Quincy Day Nursery Association met Tuesday afternoon at the clubhouse of the Quincy Women's club. The matron's report for October showed that 320 children were present during the month. Donations were received from the harvest concert of the Wollaston Unitarian church as follows: Jar of peaches, plums, cherries, crab-apples, two jars tomatoes; 3 cans corn; bottle pickles; 13 jars jelly; 2 baskets cookies; 2 quart jars jam; 1 pumpkin; 1-1/2 barrels apples; 2 baskets pears; 1 barrel sugar; 1 can condensed milk; 1 can evaporated milk; 1 can corn; 1 can peas; 1 can beans; 1 can macaroni and basket mixed nuts; Mrs. O'Reilly from Wollaston Market.

Following this there was a social hour during which refreshments were served.

FEDERATION NOTES.

Members of the Massachusetts Federation of Women's clubs, who will be delegates from their individual clubs to the autumn meeting, in Haverhill Nov. 16, by invitation of the Hannah Dustin club of that city, will be interested to recall that the federation of 1898 assembled there on Dec. 1st, after a year by invitation of the Women's Literary Union. The federation was then only three years old, and Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, its first president, still held that office as she did until 1898, when she was made honorary president.

It is worthy of notice, perhaps that the subject discussed at that first meeting in Haverhill was "Some Problems in Civics," and the subject of one of the addresses at the coming meeting is "Civics," by the Rev. Dr. Frederick W. Perkins of Lynn. The other subjects are akin to it. They are "City Planning" by John Nolan of Cambridge and, in the afternoon, "Our Future City" by President William De Witt Hyde of Bowdoin College.

The morning session begins at 10:15 and the afternoon at 2. The luncheon will be served in the hall. Tea and coffee will be

Notes and Comments.

—If the public is educated to appreciate how billboard advertising blots the landscape and disfigures nature, advertisers will see the folly of such unpopular methods, however conspicuous they may be.—Leslie's Weekly.

—Mr. Taft will go down in history as one of the great presidents. He is not at all spectacular, but he grows on the people as a man of steadfast purpose, who stands firmly in his shoes and moves straight to the point.—San Francisco Call.

—October passed without making any serious inroads on the average household's coal supply, and so it is remembered with some satisfaction that the Brocton Enterprise, even though it was wet and sloppy and disagreeable in spots.

—Cheapening the price of upper berths having failed to popularize them, the Pullman company is considering a suggestion that an upper be "thrown-in" with a lower to the passenger who is willing to pay 20 cents additional.—Haverhill Gazette.

—Dr. Flexner's discovery of the means of curing cerebro-spinal meningitis is another splendid triumph for science in the interest of humanity. Here is an example of the power of money used to endow a noble institution. Such a work is blessed indeed.—Boston Transcript.

—A London clergyman in New York says Londoners are better than men because they have not had the rough and tumble of life. A large number of women who labor for a living, or who run a household of riotous children will wonder just what the London man considers the "rough and tumble of life."

—The post office department has raised the ban on Santa Claus mail. Rescinding a recent decision, Postmaster Gen. Hitchcock has directed that any letters addressed to "Santa Claus" may be delivered to charitable organizations or benevolent persons that ask for them, instead of having such mail returned to the senders or destroyed.

—Lieut. Gen. N. A. Miles has been mentioned as a running mate for Speaker Clark on the Democratic ticket. Gen. Miles has a military record equal to the very best. A large number of women who labor for a living, or who run a household of riotous children will wonder just what the London man considers the "rough and tumble of life."

—Advice to motorists to run slowly while passing schools is timely. Speed laws are debatable things, but when the highway commission reports 100 deaths and 1100 injuries from automobile accidents in 11 months, the need for some better restriction on automobiles than the existing one is plain. Technically, many of these accidents are not the fault of the motorists. No one will go so far, however, as to assert that the deaths were necessary. With the school-going season in full swing the need for extra caution is particularly impressed.—Boston Record.

—The State Board of Health finds 45 jails in the Commonwealth unfit for human occupancy. They are unsanitary and not properly managed. Such jails should be reformed forthwith. The community has no desire to properly punish its offenders, and locking them up in dirty cells is doing just that. Law breakers should not be mollified—there is too much of that as it is—but they are entitled, no matter how low they may be, to human treatment. Having shown its fault, the State Board should apply the remedy to the jails in question.—Lowell Courier Citizen.

—The rumored resignation of Postmaster-General Hitchcock calls attention to the noxious procedure of getting a reputation in Washington by denouncing one's own department. The prominent official who makes good in the government service usually has no trouble in obtaining a comfortable berth in private life, as in the case of Mr. Cortelyou, to mention one of many striking cases. The movement in regard to Mr. Hitchcock coming at the same time as the news that, for the first time since 1883, the postoffice department shows a profit, it may fairly be assumed that, irrespective of the methods which he has used, Mr. Hitchcock has made good, even if the profit is paper balance only.—Boston Herald.

—With the holiday season upon us the shop lifters here and there are about to start business. Yet it would seem that in Boston, for one place, the experience of last year would be a deterrent. Last year there were in that city 625 cases of shoplifting in court and the prosecutions resulted in jail sentences for 150 thieves, fines aggregating $4830 for 200 others, probation for 64, and 18 cases filed. To be caught as a shoplifter is to lose reputation irretrievably, and the professional shoplifter is generally looked upon as one of the lowest of thieves. Also there is a fair chance that the captured one may be inside of a prison for a term. The average shop lifter gets no great profit from his or her thefts, and takes a long chance of being punished in a way for which the successful thief of a fortune would not be adequate compensation.—Brocton Enterprise.

FIVE CHRYSANTHEMUMS.
James Nicol, who makes a specialty of raising chrysanthemums, opened his greenhouse Sunday for public inspection and many took advantage of the opportunity to visit them on Codrington street and admire the truly handsome display of these beautiful fall flowers. Mr. Nicol is to exhibit this week at the Horticultural bazaar, and as the blossoms do not go in until Thursday morning, Sunday was an exceptionally good opportunity to see them at their best.

The raising of chrysanthemums is the hobby of Mr. Nicol and his family. He has been growing them for 15 years, and his greenhouse, there is a more beautiful display in the state. Sunday, upwards of three hundred blossoms were seen, in pinks, whites and yellows, some of the blossoms being almost as large as one's head. While he always has a fine exhibit, this year is, if anything, a little the best of any, and to one who loves flowers, was well worth seeing. It was not publicly announced that the flowers were to be on exhibition, but had become noised about, with the result that there was a constant stream of visitors all day, one automobile party offering $20 for a dozen of the blossoms which offer however was not accepted. Mr. Nicol is a member of the Horticultural society and competes every year with some of the wealthy chrysanthemum growers of the state and the fact that he always carries off prizes shows only too well the excellence of the flowers which he raises. As noted above it is his hobby and even should he not be awarded prizes he would still continue to raise the flowers.

HARVEST FESTIVAL.
A meeting of the officers and teachers of the First Church Sunday school was held Monday evening, at which arrangements were made for the annual harvest festival to be held Nov. 26. On this occasion vegetables are contributed by the Sunday school

CITY COUNCIL.

A regular meeting of the City Council was held Monday evening and although it was the night before the great battle of ballots, the meeting was an important one and several orders involving the expenditure of money were passed.

The absent members were Councilmen Branch, Ford, Gardner and Studley. A communication was received from John P. Averill for the appointment of street betterment. Granted.

The Mayor forwarded a communication from the Metropolitan Park Commission relative to the abandonment of the Quincey shore boulevard and Hancock street, to the Park committee on Streets.

Later on motion of Councilman Sandberg the communication was taken from the committee and he offered an order transferring that part of the street to the city.

Councilman Cherrington thought that the matter should go to a committee as the people of Atlantic were interested in this street. As he understood it, when the park commission took a street, the use of the street for traffic was prohibited.

If a great wrong done here, it would be the great injustice to the people of Atlantic, as coal and other teams would have to go to the village by a round about way.

In reply to questions, the City Solicitor read a letter from the Commission in which it was stated that they intended to maintain a part of the street as a traffic road.

The City Solicitor further said that if the city refused to concur in the taking, an appeal could be made to the Governor and Council, who would concur in it.

Councilman Leslie wanted something definite that the street would be open to traffic teams.

The letter of the Commission was then read in full after which the order was passed for the abandonment of the street was adopted.

A communication was received from Samuel G. Beale asking that the soldiers' relief paid to his wife be paid to him.

A communication was received from the Overseer of the Poor relative to the alms request, stating that he had investigated the case and asking that the relief be continued to be paid to Mrs. Beale. Referred to Committee on Soldiers' Relief.

The Mayor forwarded a communication from the Chief of Police and Secretary of the Commission relative to the incorporation of the Town River Boat Club. Referred to License Committee.

The incorporators named are Eugene R. Stone, Arthur A. Richardson, James M. Gibb, William H. Godfrey, Jethro R. Mollen, Eliph P. Barrows and Thompson B. Clegg.

A petition from the Telephone Co. for permission to attach its wires on Adams street was granted.

A number of applications for minor licenses were received and referred to the Finance Committee.

The Finance Committee reported to pass on the order transferring $1000 for garbage. Order passed.

Councilman Bailey, Councilman Jenkins and Soderberg voting no.

The Finance Committee reported an order for $299 for the City Engineer transferring same from supplementary tax receipts. Passed.

PUBLIC DOCK DEBATED.

The discussion "That there should be a public dock established and maintained in Quincy" was taken up by the Chamber of Commerce of Christ church Sunday. Roy Prottie eloquently presenting argument in the affirmative while William Walker took the negative. The discussion that followed was quite animated.

With an undeveloped waterfront we are in a position to transport business with ease by steamers running to and from seaport towns, and South America. If a public dock was established it would bring about an unbroken chain of business from the Panama canal to the Dominion of Canada.

Boston has failed in many instances by not investing along these lines and we should be benefited by our mistakes. Our products could be placed on the various markets better thereby proving our efficiency in competing with outsiders.

It would prove an incentive to bring in the goods, and also bring better facilities for transportation in competing with the railroads. It would be a great help to the granite industry.

It should be a public dock and not a private one. Quincy would grow more rapidly, increase the population, develop a great field for the church to work in.

The negative was in sympathy with the project but thought we would waste our usefulness instead of reaping a benefit. We could not make it pay when we are convinced in our minds that no private enterprise could.

It was a little after 8 o'clock when, in answering a summons to the door, Mrs. Carlson was surprised to find gathered about the door a large number of the parishioners of the Swedish Lutheran church and others, who quietly informed her that they had come to celebrate her silver wedding anniversary.

A messenger was dispatched to Mr. Carlson, who was at his restaurant, and a few minutes later he joined his life companion in receiving congratulations and well wishes for the future.

The guests did not come empty handed, for Mr. and Mrs. Carlson were not only showered with presents, but the younger people were not long in transferring the house into a floral bower with pinks and chrysanthemums.

During the hours that followed, good cheer prevailed. Several spoke of the high regard in which Mr. and Mrs. Carlson were held and in addition there was instrumental music. Refreshments were also served during the evening.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Carlson were born in Sweden, and both came to this country about the same time, although they were not until their arrival that they met. Coming to America in 1881 Mr. Carlson went to Providence, R. I., where for a time he was employed in a printing office.

He remained there about two years during which time he formed the acquaintance of Miss Johanna Anderson of Pontiac, R. I.

He came to Quincy in 1883, but although far away from his lady love, the mails brought them into frequent communication and on Nov. 6, 1886 Mr. Carlson went to Pontiac and claimed his sweetheart as his bride.

They returned to Quincy where they have since resided.

Three children have been born to them, two sons and a daughter, the latter however has gone to her heavenly home. Mr. and Mrs. Carlson now reside on Saville avenue with their two sons, Carl and Hilma.

Six months after Mr. Carlson's arrival in Quincy, he was the victim of a quarry accident by which he lost his leg. Recovering from the accident he opened a small store near the Quincy depot where he continued to prosper for the next few years.

Mr. Carlson's business and today he conducts an up-to-date store for the sale of newspapers and periodicals, and in connection conducts a restaurant.

It was in Mr. Carlson's home on Granite street that the first meeting of the Quincy Home-Grange for the formation of a Swedish Lutheran church in Quincy took root.

At first, meetings were held at his house, being conducted by clergymen from Boston and Cannello. Later as the society grew larger quarters were secured and eventually the present church home on Granite street erected.

Mr. and Mrs. Carlson have always taken a deep interest in the affairs of the church and Mr. Carlson has served as one of its deacons and is at present one of the board of trustees.

ST. CHRYSOSTOM'S CLUB.
In the liveliest meeting in its history on Monday evening, the Men's club, of St. Chrysostom's parish discussed many matters pertaining to the church and club.

High discussion was waged over questions of the future policy of the society, the building of a new church and parish house, the reorganization of a boys' choir and the admission of women to the club.

ANNAL DANCE.
The Atlantic baseball club, the champion combination of the national pastime in this city, held forth in its seventh annual dance in Alpha hall Monday evening. Not only were the local rooters who have closely watched the team this season present, but delegations of friends and representatives of organizations were on hand from Braintree, Weymouth, Brockton, Roxbury, Dorchester and Charlestown.

Wilson's orchestra furnished the music and dancing was enjoyed till midnight. The weather was rather unfavorable, yet fully 150 couples enjoyed the dance.

THEATRICAL LECTURE.
Liverpool hall of the Quincy Masonic school was filled Saturday evening for the presentation of a lecture by Mr. Seman MacManus, who showed his beautiful stereoscopic views and as most of the audience remembered his highly interesting talk of last April, he was greeted with applause.

Mr. MacManus proved an expert teller and master in the art of story telling, and his most admirable exponent of his peculiar genius, his splendid insight, his characters so real.

His collection of views so aptly and interestingly shown, of "Ramblings around Ireland," a lovely country, his lecture for the evening, was a masterpiece in a descriptive, tale or poem of noteworthy excellence, mostly humorous, sometimes pathetic.

Over 100 pictures included the castles, ruins of the 16th century, the Giants' causeway, castles, ruins of the 16th century, the Giants' causeway, castles, ruins of the 16th century, the Giants' causeway, castles, ruins of the 16th century.

Several of the most interesting of the 16th century, the Giants' causeway, castles, ruins of the 16th century, the Giants' causeway, castles, ruins of the 16th century, the Giants' causeway, castles, ruins of the 16th century.

The most beautiful book in the world hand illuminated by a priest in the 7th century, with tracery so fine that a magnifying glass is necessary to see the wonderful work done with a pen, it is the wonder of modern students of ancient art.

The thatched school building where the lecturer taught the boys and girls for seven years. The wonderful views of moor and mountain, vale and country, of stock and herds, of the old man with his pipe, of the old woman at her doirde carding wool, interiors of kitchen showing women spinning, weaving and making lace, the arts are being preserved.

At the close, Mr. MacManus told of the wandering beggar, who, whose wonderful knowledge of folk lore and stories are listened to after prayers and the rosary have been said. Mr. MacManus' story of how "Daniel O'Connell saved the honor of Manu College" was enthusiastically received.

Mrs. Willard requested him to tell of the story of the "Giant's Causeway" and her keen understanding of human nature. All the compulsive information which she acquired with the voluntary advice which she gave caused much laughter.

The evening was a pleasure that stays with you, to use a familiar phrase "The flavor lasts."

The Rayo Lamp
The Lamp That Saves The Eyes

Children naturally never think of pouring strain on their eyesight when peering over a fascinating book.
It is up to you to see they do not run their young eyes these long evenings by reading under a poor light.

The Rayo is a low-priced lamp, but it is constructed on the soundest scientific principles, and there is not a better lamp made at any price. It is easy on the eye because its light is so soft and white and widely diffused. And a Rayo Lamp never flickers, never saves time, money and often the point.

Household Recipes.

Butter Cakes. Cream one cup of butter, add two cups of sugar and beat. Add the yolks of five eggs beaten on until light colored, one cup of milk, three and one-half cups of flour sifted with five level teaspoons of baking powder. Flavor with a teaspoon of any flavoring preferred and fold in the stiffly beaten whites of three eggs.

Creamed Walnuts. White of one egg, two teaspoons cold water, three-fourths teaspoon vanilla, confectioner's sugar, English walnuts. Beat together the egg, water and vanilla, and add gradually enough sugar to make the half a cup. Score the outside with a knife in balls, flatten and place the shape of a walnut on each side.

Fruit Filling for Layer Cake. Take four tablespoons of very fine chopped citron, four tablespoons of finely chopped raisins (seeded), half a cup of blanched almonds, chopped fine, and a quarter of a cup of finely chopped figs. Beat the whites of three eggs to a stiff froth, adding half a cup of sugar, then mix in the chopped ingredients. Put it between the layers of cake while the cake is very hot, so that the egg may cook a little. This filling is delicious.

Roasted Stuffed Leg of Pork. Get your meat cut to bone the leg for you and stuff it with an onion stuffing. Boil your onions—the quantity depends upon the size of the leg—until nearly done, take them up and drain well, now chop them and add butter, sage, pepper and salt to taste. To a quart of the prepared onions add one-half cup of stale, dry bread crumbs. Put the stuffing into the leg where the bone was taken out and sew up. Score the outside with a sharp knife in squares, season well with salt and pepper, sprinkle with a generous handful of dried crumbs and bake until a nice golden color.

Country Fruit Cake. Soak three cups of dried apple, cover night, chop them fine and boil them in two cups of molasses and one cup of the water in which they were soaked. Mix with one cup of butter and one of brown sugar creamed together, one pound of seeded raisins, one-quarter pound of citron, two well-beaten eggs, the juice and rind of one lemon, two teaspoons of soda and one pound and a small cup of flour. Flavor with nutmeg, cinnamon and cloves, beat thoroughly and bake.

The Wrights think they have a device that can be balanced in the air at any time, but a taborer over the barn yard fence is as far as we care to go in that direction.

BEYOND.
It seems a little way to me,
Across this strange country, the Beyond:
And yet not strange, for it has grown to be
The home of those of whom I am so fond.
They make it seem familiar and most
dear.
As journeying friends bring distant countries near.
So close it lies that when my sight is clear
I think I see the gleaming strand:
I know I feel that those who've gone
from here
Come near enough to touch my hand.
I often think but for our veiled eyes
We should find heaven right round about us lies.
I cannot make it seem a day to dread,
When from this dread earth I shall journey out
To that still drearier country of the dead.
And join the lost ones so long dreamed about:
I love this world, yet I shall love to go
And meet the friends who wait for me
I know.
I never stand about the pier and see
The seal of death set on some well-loved face.
But that I think—one more to welcome me.
When I shall cross the intervening space
Between this land and that one over
there—
One more to the strange Beyond more fair.
And so, to me, there is no aching in death,
And so, the grave has lost its victory:
It is but crossing with abated breath,
And white, set face, a little strip of sea,
To find the loved ones on the other shore.
More beautiful, more precious than before.

TRANSFORMATION OF "HIM."
Mrs. Mitten came to the mothers' meeting with a child of five years and another of three clinging to her un-tidy skirts while she carried an infant six months old in her arms.
Mrs. Mitten had made a feeble effort at "fixing up" herself and the three children, and the result had not been entirely successful. More soap and water might have been used to advantage, and the garments of none of the quartette were in repair. Pins were taking the place of buttons;
rents were gaping; an inch or two of an extremely dirty and badly frayed
white skirt hung below Mrs. Mitten's black skirt, on the front of which was a streak made by the yolk of an egg;
and a spot as big as a saucer was evidently caused by carelessness in handling kerosene. A shirt-waist that had once been white had not been able to remain so under Mrs.
Mitten's system of laundry work. It gave evidence of too much blueing,
and there was a gaping rip of three or four inches in one shoulder seam.
The limp collar of the waist was fastened with a diamond sunburst from the ten-cent store, and several of the diamonds were missing. Mrs. Mitten's attempts at pompadouring her hair
had been so unsuccessful that one could see under her hair the "rat" made of a roll of black rag. And yet there were traces of the prettiness
of her younger years in the face of Mrs. Mitten in spite of all the years of trial and tribulation of her married life.
Mrs. Mitten's roving eye gave evidence of the fact that she was not concentrating her attention entirely on the paper entitled "The Mother and the Home" that a lady from a settlement house was reading. Mrs. Mitten seemed more interested in a table in a corner of the room. The table had a snowy cloth and an attractive array of china, and there was a large and gorgeous bouquet of many-colored asters in a tall green glass vase in the centre of the table. An angry because of anything I say or do if I assure you that it is all meant for your own happiness?"

"Me angry at you, ma'am? I guess
not. I ain't so smart as some, but I know the difference between a real friend and one that only pretends. I I've had proof, as the children says,
"I am your friend, Mrs. Mitten, and that is why I want to say and do some things before I leave you. I believe that many and many a man who spends his time in the saloon would spend it in his own home if he had a neat and clean home, with a tidy
wife and clean children around him.
Now you said that if you had known
I was coming, you would have sleeked up your self and your home for my benefit. I want to say that I think it is much more important that you should sleek up your home
for the benefit of your husband and children. Have you ever thought of that?"
"What's the good of sleeking up for him, an' him so full that—"
"Perhaps he wouldn't be 'full' if things were different in his home.
Now, Mrs. Mitten, let's try a little experiment. Let's give Mr. Mitten a little surprise. You and I working together could transform this place in one day so that Mr. Mitten would hardly know it, and I believe it would be worth the effort. Can you give me an answer, Mrs. Mitten?"
"Lay, yes. I got a big one with sleeves that was in a box o' things his sister sent me Christmas. He's got a real 'well-off' sister in Brooklyn,
and now an' then she sends us a box
I'll get the apron."

"Now, Mrs. Mitten, let's begin on the dishes. I'll wash them, and you wipe them; and then we'll take hold and work wonders here. I feel as if some real hard physical work would do me good, and—"
"He's making it seem as if I oughtn't to have a lady like you cleanin' an'—"
"O, yes, you ought. 'You know I want to help you and him.'"
It was eleven in the morning when Mrs. Buxton began her labor of practical help. It was five in the afternoon when she pulled off the big apron. Mrs. Mitten had been childlike in her obedience to all that she was told to do. By half-past five the transformation of that home was complete. Everything was in perfect order. The windows were clear as crystal, and the kitchen stove was shining. The floors were spotlessly clean. Every child had had a new and white apron. Her hair had not been so well combed nor so becomingly arranged for months.
"You are such a pretty woman
when you are 'sleeked up' that you ought to be in that condition all of the time," said Mrs. Buxton laughingly as she gave a finishing touch to Mrs. Mitten's hair. "What a real transformation we have made here!
And now will you promise me that you will keep this home just as it is now for a month at least, and see if it does not have some effect in keeping your husband sober? Will you promise me that?"
Mrs. Mitten looked around the
transformed home, and suddenly
burst out with unexpected enthusiasm.
"Yes, ma'am, I will! I'll keep this home like this if he gets drunk as
a lord every day. It does look nice
for a month at least, and see if
it does not have some effect in keeping your husband sober? Will you
promise me that?"
Mrs. Mitten looked around the
transformed home, and suddenly
burst out with unexpected enthusiasm.
"Yes, ma'am, I just will! I'll keep
this home like this if he gets drunk as
a lord every day. It does look nice
for a month at least, and see if
it does not have some effect in keeping your husband sober? Will you promise me that?"

ANNUAL PROVISION SHOWER.
The annual provision shower for
the Quincy Day Nursery was given Wednesday Nov. 8 in the chapel of Bethany church. It is the third year that Bethany circle has planned this delightful occasion and each year the interest has grown and the contributions become more generous until now the Nursery is quite dependent upon them to help out the winter supplies for the ever growing family.
The chapel was made most attractive with decorations of green and white, and a dainty tea table at which Mrs. Gilson presided; the tea being served from 3 to 5 by Miss Parks.
The president of Bethany circle, Mrs. Everett E. Crane was a most gracious hostess, assisted by Mrs. John Welch, making the afternoon one of social interest as well as of practical value.
It has been the custom formerly for the matron of the Nursery to be present to receive donations, but as she was unavoidably detained Mrs.
Hart acted as her substitute.

FIRST CHURCH ANNIVERSARY.
Sunday was the 83d anniversary of the dedication of the First church.
Pattee's history tells us that the cel-bration was commenced April 9th, 1827,
and on the 11th of June the corner stone was laid with appropriate solemnities. On Wednesday, Nov. 12, the new church was dedicated to the service and worship of the one living God. Rev. Dr. Gray offered the introductory prayer; Rev. Mr. Brooks
read selections from the Scriptures;
Rev. Dr. Lowell offered the dedicatory prayer; the pastor of the church
Rev. Peter Whitney preached from Genesis xxviii:17 and Rev. Dr. Porter offered the concluding prayer.
The work included in the original estimate made by the architect, was performed at a cost of $2,000, without the estimate. The total cost of the building with the improvements was $20,488.56 to which must be added the sum of $4,350, voted to be paid to the proprietors of the pews in the old meeting house and to the cost of the furnace. The debt incurred by the erection of so costly
an edifice, was finally, in the year 1835, wiped out.
It is interesting to note that the red chalk marks made by the granite cutters on the large pillars in front of the church, when cut, can be seen today.

NEW YORK FASHIONS.
Importance of Accessories—New Footwear—Muff, Scarf and Bag
Sets—Long Coats and Trimmings.
Smart accessories go a long way toward accounting for the style notable wherever a crowd of Knickerbocker women get together.
Given a fairly presentable suit and a stunning matched up set of muff,
scarf and bag or hat, and a much more expensive get up without such short-date finishes, and honors will rest with the first wearer. Nothing changes the appearance of a costume
so completely as the small things worn with it, and a woman who aims to present an attractive ensemble can not be too particular about the gloves, hats, neckwear, muff, etc., that complete or spoil the effect of any costume.
NOVELTIES.
Never were there more novelties
to select from than this season, infact their variety is somewhat bewildering, unless one keeps in mind the limitations. In choosing a "Matched Set" for instance it should go well with the various coats, suits and dresses of the outfit, and be of that happy medium that can be worn for almost any occasion, if economy is studied. Otherwise there is no limit to possibilities in matched accessories for day or evening wear.
FUR FASHIONS.
It is not an overstatement to say that fur enters into the make up of almost every fashionable costume
seen from tailor made to dancing frocks. The various pelts of all furry beasts are employed for women's comfort and adornment. The perfection of treatment of the skins,
whereby they have lost all odor, stiffness and the weight that was formerly characteristic, is accountable for much of this popularity, though elegance of appearance and becoming-ness are their chief recommendations.
NEW MUFFS.
Among the newest muffs are those that have a wide rosy pocket fl-
front with or without an overhanging pointed flap that conceals the opening. With such muffs, the ubiquitous bag can be dispensed with, a consideration that appeals to many women. All muffs are very large, very flat and without any stiffness in the lining or any appreciable padding of the skin. One can find in the most fashionable stores, sets made up of single furs, or of combinations of two or more pelts in an endless variety of styles, prices, and colors, so that any taste or pocketbook may be satisfied and smart fur accessories acquired for any occasion. C. S. Shayne shows especially charming creations in fur, that embody the latest in style and quality.
FOR THE YOUNG GIRL.
For the young girl there are dainty sets of white fox, ermine, white or blue mouffon, Iceland Lamb, sable squirrel, Raccoon or skunk. The last two probably the best wearing pelts known among the long haired furs, and for evening, the coolest sort of long white cone coats that cost little more than a pretty cloth garment. For more general wear nothing is more desirable than the Caracul coats that stand the hardest usage admirably and can be bought from $65 up. With a light brocade lining these black coats become dressy enough for almost any wear
and as they are made to completely conceal the dress they give the effect of a fur costume, the last word of elegance from Paris.

LONG SCARF STYLES.
Long scarf styles of fine quality
caracul with huge muffs to match constitute a very complete fur garment, since the scarfs extend nearly to the foot of the skirt, and are about 18 inches broad. A distinct novelty seen was a set of mole skin in smoke color, the scarf having three equal length ends that when adjusted formed a very complete and novel
covering for the chest and shoulders.
Tassels to match finished the ends
and the huge muff was similarly adorned. The flat furs, or those with short pelts like seal and ermine, ar-
the ones used for scarf styles.
THE LATEST FOOTWEAR.
The latest in fashionable footwear is the boot that buttons all the way down to the very sole with from sixteen to eighteen buttons. These have very short patent leather lams,
with tops of kid or cloth. The uppers are white, tan, black, russet, or they match the color of the gown. Velvet shoes have gone out, fortunately, for they were never suitable for anything but carriage wear.
A NEW WRINKLE.
One of the latest wrinkles is to have the fancy bag carried with a dressy get up, match the little waistcoat, or fancy reverse worn with the suit coat. The vivid touch of contrasting color now so much desired,
can be easily supplied in this way
and varied at will.

ANNIVERSARY SURPRISE.
Mr. and Mrs. Elmer E. Gray of Newton street, Wollaston, were given a party Saturday evening by members of the Bethany circle. The party was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. O. L. and relatives from Haverhill and Lynn to the number of fifty. It was given to celebrate Mr. and Mrs. Gray's twentieth wedding anniversary and was a complete surprise to them.
They were presented with a beautiful linen table cloth and two dozen napkins by John V. Leland in behalf of those present.
During the evening refreshments
of ice cream and delicious homemade cake were served and music was enjoyed including some of the songs which were sung at the mis-triel show which is planned for next month, and Mr. Leland read an original poem of 25 verses.
At a late hour their friends departed wishing them many more years of wedded happiness.

TEMPERANCE COLUMN.

OUR PLEDGE.
I hereby promise, God helping me,
to abstain from all distilled, ferment-
ed and malt liquors, including wine,
beer, and cider as a beverage and to
employ all proper means to discour-
age the use of and traffic of the same.
DROPPY DROP.
A settlement worker came in contact with a girl, who had evidently been well brought up, and carefully guarded in her early youth, but who was fast deteriorating in character.
The settlement resident was possessed of a certain magnetism and had the ring of true sympathy in her voice,
and found no difficulty in capturing the girl's heart and she soon discovered unmistakable signs that intemperance had been the cause of the young woman's downward course. But how she could have started in this descent
was the question.
So intent was the settlement worker on helping the young woman to reascend the ladder of virtue and self-respect, that she persuaded her to come to her room one evening.
"What was the beginning of it all,
Alice?" she questioned earnestly.
"Just something that was called a medicine," replied Alice, as the tears
began to fall.
"Ordered by a doctor?"
"No, a girl friend was taking it,"
she answered. "It seemed to do her so much good, and I was feeling worn out from my office work, so I thought I would try it, too. I bought a bottle
at the grocery from a very reliable man. It was a malt preparation, my friend said, and I bought another.
I thought it might be of the same nature. When I reached home with it,
I read on the label: 'Only five per cent alcohol.' Then I made some careful calculations, and decided that would be only a few drops to a tablespoonful, which I supposed was the dose. On taking the first one, I noticed brown froth spurting from the hole. I had made with the cork-screw. I noticed, too, that a wine-glass full three or four times a day was the specified quantity to take. I took it as directed, and it did make me feel better, or at least I fancied it did. When the bottle was empty, I bought another,
and then another, and another, for I began to miss it when I left it off even for a day. Then one night I happened to meet a young man that I walked with on Sundays; he persuaded me at dinner to take something stronger, and he said better.
Here the poor girl broke down and sobbed as if her heart would break, crying, 'If I could only get back my old self, what wouldn't I give.'
Her new friend tried to comfort her,
assuring her it was not too late, and that the Heavenly Father would help her to overcome the appetite which had mastered her, provided she tried hard to help herself.
"You can't go back as you began,
Alice, drop by drop. You must determinedly refuse anything of an alcoholic nature, even if it is labeled
'only five per cent.' My physician
will help you every step of the way,
and with good food and a change—
with God's blessing—you will be your old and better self again!" Louise A'muty Nash, Portland, Oregon.

PRATT-MARDEN.
A quiet but pretty home wedding was solemnized November 19th at the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Marden in North Hanson,
the bride being their daughter Eva L.
and the groom Henry F. Pratt of Charles F. Pratt of East Bridgewater.
The house was tastefully decorated with cut flowers, plants and foliage.
Only the immediate families were present at the ceremony, Rev. Robert Bryant of North Hanson being the officiating clergyman. Miss Edith Olson of Quincy was bridesmaid and the best man was John B. Pratt of Whitman. The bride was given in marriage by her father.
An informal reception followed the ceremony after which the happy couple left on a wedding trip to New York. The bride's going away gown, which was also the one in which she was married, was of dark blue with hat to match.
Mr. and Mrs. Pratt are to reside at East Bridgewater where they will be at home to their friends after Jan.
1st.
The bride is well known in this city
where she has resided for several years, her father W. M. Marden being familiar to many as local correspondent for the Boston Herald but more recently holding the responsible position of Court Officer at the District Court.

INSPECTING OFFICERS.
Grand Commander Lafayette G.
Blair of the Grand Commandery K.
T., has appointed the following inspecting officers:
Em. Sir, Charles R. Hunt G. L. as inspecting officer of Quincy Commandery.
Em. Sir Albert W. Fay, G. L. as inspecting officer of Milford Commandery, Milford, Sutton Commandery of New Bedford and William Parkman, commandery of East Boston.
Em. Sir Walter F. Medding G. C. C. as inspecting officer of South Shore Commandery, East Weymouth.
OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC.
The year 1911 is fast drawing to a close, the fact being forcibly brought to our attention this week by the arrival of the Old Farmer's Almanac for 1912. It is published by William Ware & Co., Boston. As it is numbered 120 it is surely entitled to call itself "old," but its contents are just as timely as ever, and a household necessity.

The Quincy Patriot

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 18, 1911

ANTI-TUBERCULOSIS ASSO.

Many attended the annual meeting on Tuesday of the Quincy Anti-Tuberculosis Association which was held at the office of the President, Henry M. Faxon. Great interest was displayed in the most encouraging reports. Paramount among the many things necessary for the proper development of the great work in this section is the urgent need for a new and larger "shack" for the accommodation of the female patients.

Dr. N. C. Hunting reported that the number of patients treated at the camp numbered 25 in all. His interesting record told of cures, improvements, discharges, transfers and deaths.

Expenses for the year for the maintenance of the work amount to $2500—necessitating a monthly income of $100 from private sources. Donations of money are, therefore, always thankfully received as well as vegetables, fruit and groceries. Especially needed just now are sheets, pillow cases, bed spreads and hot water bottles.

A grateful acknowledgement was made for the good work displayed in the collection of over $300 in annual dues as well as for the donations of fruits, jellies and other articles during the year.

Acknowledgement is made as follows:—

Mrs. Horbert Pinkham, Ward 5, $25.00

Miss M. Flora Underwood, Pres. Hill, $25.00

Mrs. Jos. A. Dasha, Ward 2, $20.00

Mrs. John R. Richards, Ward 2, $20.00

Mrs. Alex. Hill, Ward 6, $15.00

Mrs. George Able, $10.00

Mrs. Arthur Haywood, $10.00

Mrs. Anna Hunting, $10.00

Mrs. John L. Dow, $10.00

Miss Katharine Shea, $10.00

With returns from others to follow.

It was voted to push the sale of Red Cross stamps.

The success of the work during the year was also guaranteed by the donation of $600 from six persons in sympathy with the movement and an additional $500 from societies including the Quincy Woman's Club, Knights of Columbus, Granite Mfgs. Assn., Mrs. Hunting's Entertainment, Unity Circle, King's Daughters, St. Margaret's Guild, Christ Church, Philanthropic Bible Class, Quincy Club and Wollaston Baptist Church.

The treasurer reported all bills paid and a balance of $75 in the treasury, exclusive of donations as noted above. The following officers were elected:—

President, Henry M. Faxon

Vice Presidents, John A. Gordon, M. D.

Treasurer, Perry Lawton

Secretary, Mrs. Wilson Marsh

GOLDEN WEDDING.

Thursday was the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Cushing of Rockland and the event was celebrated by a large reception in the evening at Odd Fellows hall.

They have three children: H. Waldo Cushing of Rockland, Mrs. Eva B. Blake of Wollaston and Mrs. Amy M. Mann of Braintree also nine grandchildren. Lester Cushing, a teacher in the Lowell textile school; Burton L. Cushing of M. T. 13, Robert, Arthur May, Wilson and Henry Blake of Wollaston and Mildred and Carlton Mann of Braintree.

Mr. and Mrs. Cushing enjoy good health and are leaving soon to spend the winter in Florida.

WOLLASTON DRAMATIC CLUB.

In the Wollaston Unitarian vestry, Thursday evening, the opening night of "The Sisterhood of Bridget" the play given by the Wollaston Dramatic club for the benefit of the Wollaston Free Kindergarten took place.

Wollaston society also gave a large and successful concert in the evening.

The play was a farce in three acts and was well staged the scenery being especially made for the production by Willis Henry and Haves M. Sweet the well known illustrator.

The action takes place in the drawing room and dining room of Edward Mason a wealthy stock broker.

The plot hinges on the whim of Mrs. Mason a woman of social tendencies who in order to acknowledge the equality of her servants, plans a dinner party for their friends in her house.

Bridget, the cook, is to provide and undertakes to train the other servants in social customs and polite demeanor while Mrs. Mason and her daughter Eleanor cook and serve the dinner.

Ward Leighton, a lieutenant in a regiment leaving for the Philippines, is in love with Eleanor who returns to her mother's house to spend the winter in Florida.

The English lord appears at this point and Mrs. Mason is compelled by circumstances to introduce Bridget as his wife. The play runs through a number of incongruities occasioned by the reversal in the position of mistress and maid.

In the last act the true character of Lord Cusson, who is a fake, is discovered and Eleanor and Leighton are happily reunited. The play was a merry one and held many opportunities for clever acting.

An orchestra consisting of Ninon Lacey, violin; Lucien H. Thayer, flute; Everett Rhodes, violin; Arthur W. Robin, violin; and William Weston, played during the evening.

The ushers were well known Wollaston members: Miss Gertrude Lacey, Miss Helen Jones, Miss Frances Jones, Miss Carolyn Bragg, Miss Helen Seavey and Miss Carolyn Lewis.

ATLANTIC

Morning chorus at Memorial church has steadily improved under the leadership of Mr. Ward, and the music is greatly appreciated by the people.

At the annual fair of the Ladies Benevolent society of Memorial church on Tuesday and Wednesday the interest was shown by the crowd in Atlantic, and being the first fair in the new church it manifested what could be done by having a definite aim.

The "Trimming was done under the leadership of Mrs. Alfred W. Jenkin, and her artistic taste was most delightfully seen in the beautiful féteaux, crosses draped on the corners and sides of vestry to the center. The useful table of which Mrs. Jenkin was chairman presented a mission rocking chair to the Ladies Society for the church parlor. This was solicited by Mrs. Lucetta J. Fuller and the price of chair was raised by the sale of useful table. Mr. Davidson made the presentation speech for the table and Mrs. Sarah Butler responded. At the close of the sale, the reports of money thus far received from the fair was put on the black board by Kenneth Blake. Mr. Davidson gave the report of the sale of the work of all children and committees stating that even the table which might have the smallest amount had done valuable service and that the larger amounts would be according to opportunity and goods which were sold, and exhorted all to rejoice in the sale of the lives which made new pipe organ possible. The following ladies acted as chairmen and the amount indicates what they turned over to the treasurer. Mrs. James Glick, lunch table $2.00, Mrs. Burkhart, baby table $16.00, Mrs. George A. Deane, baby table $16.00, Mrs. J. N. Anderson, tickets $16.00, Mrs. Roger White, tickets $16.00, Mrs. Robert Harding, apron $25.00, Mrs. W. F. Cummings, Christmas gifts $82.50, Mrs. Alfred W. Jenkin, gifts $300.00, Mrs. T. W. Davidson, gifts $571.00. The men's table was not worked, but received $12.50. When the figures were completed some one called for applause for Mr. and Mrs. Davidson for their part, and requested a speech from the minister, but the only response received from Mr. Davidson was that the people made things successful, and that he and Mrs. Davidson appreciated their help. The amount of $1201.62 from a fair was something of a surprise to Atlantic, and several chairs were reported to the president, Miss Sarah Butler, that the full proceeds were not all in. The ladies will meet Wednesday and give full reports of extra money received.

Mrs. Alfred Rogers has closed her home at Marshfield Hill, and will spend the winter in Wollaston with her daughter.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Pierce of Haverhill and Mrs. Thomas Cunningham of Lynn spent the week end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gray of Newton street, and will attend the celebration of Mr. and Mrs. Gray's 20th wedding anniversary.

E. E. Morgan has moved from Avenue street to South Central Avenue, Wollaston.

George A. Bolter, has moved to the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Bolter, 303 North Central Avenue, Wollaston.

Three, having moved from Verchid street to Carruth street, Wollaston.

SOCIAL RECEPTION.

There was a large attendance at the social reception held in the Union Chapel Bay View Avenue, by the parishioners Thursday evening. The affair was held for the purpose of forming a building fund, with a view to having a larger edifice built at the Houghs Neck section in the near future.

The entertainment started at 8 o'clock and was furnished by Wallace Higgins, Miss Ella Acorn and Miss Shawwhite, all of whom received great applause for their splendid work. Refreshments were served under direction of the entertainment committee, and the remainder of the evening was devoted to speechmaking.

The gathering was addressed by the pastor Rev. W. B. Sayre, also by Michael C. Coughlan, William Southwick, Mrs. Clarence Rose, Waldo Hutchins, and Angus A. Brown. James E. Wall, Democratic nominee for majority honors, presented himself during the latter part of the evening and was given a great reception. He spoke for about ten minutes and was warmly applauded at the conclusion of his remarks.

Frank J. Collett of Squantum street has been laid up by illness.

A shed belonging to Dennis F. Crowley near the new Montclair school was blown down in Sunday's storm.

A movement is on foot to start a men's club in connection with the Atlantic M. E. church, the first meeting was held Saturday evening, and the next will be this Saturday evening.

Invitations are out for the marriage of Rev. Manfred Wright former pastor of the Atlantic M. E. church and Mrs. Martha M. Smith on Nov. 20, at College Avenue M. E. church, Greentacrest, Indiana.

THE beautiful Lighting Fixtures, comprising Electric Showers, the newest production, and the display of Electric Gas and Oil Table and Floor Lamps, as shown by McKenney & Waterbury Co., 151 Franklin street, corner Congress, Boston, should be seen by everybody desirous of brightening their homes. All fixtures are guaranteed to be perfect, to meet all decorations, at prices unequalled in our market.

PARK AND DOWNS.

Mrs. Edward M. Burnham of Merrymount avenue entertained twelve children, November 10th, in honor of her twin sons Donald and Philip's birthdays. The boys were three years old and the affair was thoroughly enjoyed by the little ones. In the prettiest of the room, refreshments were served. The confetti of birthday parties dear to the hearts of youngsters, included a Jack Horner pie which pleased them most of all.

John F. Tobin of Rawson road, left last week for Atlanta, Ga., to attend the convention of the American Federation of Labor, which opened there, Nov. 13. Mr. Tobin is a delegate from the Shoe Workers of which he is president.

Miss Lillian Sutherland of Rawson road, Norfolk, Downs, is home from New Hampshire, on a two weeks' visit.

BRIEFS

J. S. Swingle, Quincy's "Extra Lark" man is in New York this week on a business trip.

Notes and Comments.

Hyde Park voted for annexation to Boston by a majority of 157, but if a similar question were voted on in Somerville there would be a majority of thousands the other way.—Somerville Journal.

A man in Malden, married last August, killed himself because he couldn't save enough money to begin housekeeping. It was inconsiderate of him to postpone his efforts at saving and his suicide until after marriage.—Brookline Times.

The 16,000 residents of Hyde Park who voted to become a part of Boston will help increase that city to a small extent, but it remains to be seen whether the benefits to the former place will make up for certain disadvantages.—Old Colony Memorial.

The decision of Rhode Island on biennial elections leaves Massachusetts as the only State which still clings to the system of yearly elections. Here the custom takes the place of a recall, which is becoming so popular in the West, and change is hardly likely.—Attleboro Sun.

Western apple growers advise people to eat five apples a day. That advice, if taken, would certainly increase the demand for the fruit. But it would be rather expensive with apples at their present prices. However, the advice is good, even if it can be followed only in part, as apples are very wholesome food.—Framingham News.

The most important State election, that in Massachusetts, resulted in something of an enigma. Again Foss alone is saved out of the Democratic State ticket, but by a narrow margin. It is a faint triumph for Foss, still fainter for Democracy. The party gets little comfort out of Massachusetts, for it has experienced a loss, rather than a gain there.—New Haven Register, Indt.

The Brooklyn canal project still continues to show traces of vitality, and the matter will be brought before the Rivers and Harbors Congress in Washington, early next month. The project calls for an expenditure of about $50,000,000, and would be 52 miles long. Brooklyn may yet be a seaport, but it will doubtless be some years before the consumption of her desire in that line.—Old Colony Memorial.

"Sorry sir," was the apology of the drug store attendant, "but we are not permitted to sell you soap on Sunday." As the would-be customer turned to leave the brilliantly lighted store, he noted a dozen men buying various brands of cigars and cigarettes. A young woman prying the boxes of candy and other customers sampling hot chocolate, hot onion and cold sodas. In the expressive slang of the hour: "What is the big idea?"—Boston Record.

"Everybody's Saint Francis" is the interest-provoking title of the biography which The Century will publish in 1912. The text will be by Maurice Francis Egan, a poet and an authority on church history, now American Minister to Denmark. The illustrations will be by the noted French artist, Boute de Monvel, famous for his Jeanne d'Arc pictures. M. de Monvel has made special studies at Assisi for these illustrations, some of which are to be reproduced in color.

ACCEPTED CALL.

Rev. Edward A. Chase, for 12 years pastor of the Wollaston Congregational Church and one of the best known clergymen of the city, tendered his resignation Sunday to accept a call to the Washington street Congregational Church in Beverly where he will begin his duties on Jan. 1.

Rev. Mr. Chase came to Quincy in September, 1899 from the South Congregational Church, Lawrence, where he was pastor 11 years, in which time he built a new church.

He is a graduate of Amherst College and the Hartford Theological school. His first pastors in Hamden, where he remained four years, and from there he went to Lawrence.

Rev. Mr. Chase is secretary of the Suffolk South Congregational Conference and also secretary of the Congregational Ministers' Association as well as chairman of the Congregational State Missionary Committee. He is chaplain of Wollaston Lodge of Masons and Massachusetts Lodge of Boston. Through his great-grandfather, Stephen Abbott of Salem, the first commander of the Salem Lodge, in 1786, Rev. Mr. Chase is a member of the Order of Cincinnati, and is also a member of the standing committee of that organization.

THE CENTURY IN 1912.

One of the most timely features of The Century for 1912 will be a series of five papers on the American under-graduate, by Clayton Sedgwick Cooper, author of "College Men and the Bible." These papers will cover such important phases of the subject as the under-graduate's general characteristics, "education a la carte," society life in American colleges, choosing a college, and the American under-graduate in the world today. Prof. Edward A. Ross, author of "The Changing Chinese," will contribute to the Century during 1912 four papers on the characteristics and influences of the Ohio and Mississippi valley states, differentiating that section from the East and interpreting it to the country at large. He will consider his subject from many points of view; social, political, educational, financial, etc.

FREDERICK C. POPE.

Frederick C. Pope, one of the long residents of Atlantic and one of its most prominent citizens passed away at his home on Ocean street, Monday, Nov. 14, 1911. Mr. Pope was not in good health for some months, but he has been able to be about up to within two weeks.

Mr. Pope was one time prominently identified with the affairs of the city, being the assessor from Ward Six during the first two years of the city government. He was appointed as Principal Assessor by Mayor Fairbanks in 1891 and served in that capacity during the years 1891 and 1892. He then dropped off of the board until 1894 when he was appointed as assessor from Ward Six by Mayor Hodges.

Since retiring from active political life as a city official, he has served for many years as Warden of the Prison One of Ward Six, and was re-appointed to that position the present year.

He was a large real estate owner in Quincy, the Pope farm at Atlantic being one of the most desirable residential sections of the city. It was not until within a few years however that the estate came into the market. Mr. Pope was a widower, his wife having died some years ago. He is survived by a son and two daughters with whom he resided.

WOLLASTON SCHOOL ASSO.

A large number gathered at the meeting of the Parents' and Teachers' association at the Wollaston school Monday evening. A business meeting in charge of the president Mrs. Walter S. Pinkham opened the evening.

Two interesting lectures were given, Dr. Dana W. Drury of Boston speaking on "The ear" and Dr. W. H. Lowell of Boston on "The eye." Both men are specialists in their line and by means of large colored charts made plain the complicated organs under discussion. At the close of the lecture an opportunity for questions was offered and refreshments followed, served by the social committee.

The committee was composed of Mrs. Charles L. Seavey, Mrs. C. J. Hogue, Mrs. H. C. Seymour, Mrs. John Payson, Mrs. Frank Cross, Mrs. Arthur Ford, Mrs. James Brown, Mrs. Sidney Baker, Mrs. Edward Capen and Mrs. Albert Rhodes.

The farmers who keep on reading papers at Grange meetings on "Does farming pay?" must have difficulty to keep from sulking as they think of the price they are getting for all their labor and the products they sell.

Granting the N. E. T. & T. Co., a location for poles on Cottage avenue. Ordered to a second reading.

Granting the Q. E. L. & P. Co. a location for poles on Copeland, Belmont, and Delford street, North Central avenue, Winthrop avenue, Clairmont avenue and Bates avenue. Ordered to a second reading.

Granting the Bay State Street railway a location for poles on Maple street. Ordered to a second reading.

An order for a public hearing Nov. 29, on petition of the Bay State Street Railway Co., for a change in location of its tracks on Squantum street. Adopted.

Councilman Erickson offered an order for $1,500 for grading and draining the Cranch school lot. Referred to Committee on Public Buildings.

Councilman Sodergren offered an order for $425 for a granolithic sidewalk on West Elm avenue. Referred to Committee on Streets.

Councilman Cherrington offered a resolve requesting the Mayor to confer with the Metropolitan Park Commissioners relative to a temporary foot bridge over the railroad track at Atlantic street during the construction of the bridge. Adopted.

Councilman Bolster offered orders for lights on Carruth street and on the corner of Hamilton and Hampton streets. Orders adopted and referred to the Executive.

Councilman Ross offered an order establishing an ordinance relative to movers of furniture. The order provides that all persons or corporations engaged in the moving of furniture shall file with the City Clerk on blanks provided for that purpose the name of the party moved, the place moved from and the place moved to. The idea of the ordinance is to put a check upon persons who buy furniture on credit and then without permission move to another section of the city, or as it often happens to another town thereby putting the owners to considerable trouble in locating it. Referred to the Committee on Ordinances.

Councilman Leslie offered an order for a culvert over Sachem brook. Referred to Committee on Streets.

Councilman Leslie offered an order for lights at the corner of Waterston avenue and Sewall street and at the corner of Waterston avenue and Phillips street. Adopted and referred to the Executive.

On motion of Councilman Smith, the order for $2,500 for plankton Naponet bridge was taken from the table.

Councilman Smith said that argument was not necessary. The only question was if the city is to provide the money to pay for the labor and material on the bridge. As to the question if the railroad or city should pay for the plankton between the rails, that was a matter to be settled by the law department.

Councilman Sandberg spoke at length on the subject. The Commissioner stated to the Street Committee that he thought that the railroad should pay for the plankton between the rails and he thought that they would do it.

In reply to a question by Councilman Richards the Commissioner stated that the whole amount would be required to pay the bills. That he had already expended $2,400 on the bridge. He did not think that $2,000 would clean things up. It would pay the lumber bills but would not pay the department for the work done.

Councilman Gardner asked if he did not say that the railroad should pay that $500 for plankton between the tracks?

Commissioner Bainbridge replying, said that he did say that they ought to pay. That they had always done so before. He also said he thought that the railroad would be fair.

Councilman Sandberg then asked the Commissioner a number of questions as to the kind of wiring to be installed.

A motion of Councilman Sandberg to lay on the table was lost on a rising vote of 5 yeas and 12 noes.

The order was then passed Councilman Sodergren and Sandberg voting no.

The order for a far concrete sidewalk on Payne street took its second reading and the rules were suspended.

Councilman Craig spoke in favor of the order. People on that street had built houses twenty years ago and did not have a sidewalk.

Councilman Branch believed it was too late in the year to pass a sidewalk order.

A motion of Councilman Sandberg to lay on the table was lost.

The order was then put on its final passage and failed to pass 12 voting yeas and 5 noes. Councilmen Bailey, Branch, Erickson, Parlee and Sandberg voting no. The vote was then reconsidered and the order laid on the table.

The order transferring $1,000 to Police Miscellaneous took its second reading. The rules were suspended and the order passed.

CITY COUNCIL.

Considerable important business came up at the adjourned meeting of the City Council Monday evening. The only debate of any consequence, however, was on the order for $2,500 for replanking the Naponet bridge. This order was taken from the table and after a discussion, was passed. The absent members were Councilmen Boyd, Campbell, Nowland and Studley.

A communication was received from the Teamsters' union, inviting the council to attend the second annual ball of the union Dec. 8. Placed on file.

The Mayor forwarded a communication from the Commissioner of Public Works, stating that the estimated cost of paving City Square with vitrified brick would be $20,500 and that if the square was tar macadamized the cost would be $7,500. Referred to the Committee on Streets.

The Mayor forwarded a communication and petition from the Board of Trade for three street lights on the easterly side of Hancock street, between Temple and Maple streets. Referred to Committee on Streets.

A petition of the N. E. T. & T. Co. for attachments to poles of the Q. E. L. & P. Co. was granted.

The Committee on Public Buildings reported an order for $6,450 for furnishings for the new Wollaston school building. Referred to Finance Committee.

The Committee on Public Buildings reported an order for $1,500 for draining and grading the Wollaston school lot. Referred to Finance Committee.

The Finance Committee reported an order for $2,500 for the purchase of a new steam roller. Ordered to a second reading.

The Committee on Elections and Returns reported the result of the election in Quincy Nov. 7. The election was declared to have been read.

The Committee on Licenses reported an order approving the granting of a certificate of incorporation to the Town River yacht club. Adopted.

The Committee on Streets reported the following orders:

Granting the N. E. T. & T. Co., a location for poles on Cottage avenue. Ordered to a second reading.

Granting the Q. E. L. & P. Co. a location for poles on Copeland, Belmont, and Delford street, North Central avenue, Winthrop avenue, Clairmont avenue and Bates avenue. Ordered to a second reading.

Granting the Bay State Street railway a location for poles on Maple street. Ordered to a second reading.

An order for a public hearing Nov. 29, on petition of the Bay State Street Railway Co., for a change in location of its tracks on Squantum street. Adopted.

Councilman Erickson offered an order for $1,500 for grading and draining the Cranch school lot. Referred to Committee on Public Buildings.

Councilman Sodergren offered an order for $425 for a granolithic sidewalk on West Elm avenue. Referred to Committee on Streets.

Councilman Cherrington offered a resolve requesting the Mayor to confer with the Metropolitan Park Commissioners relative to a temporary foot bridge over the railroad track at Atlantic street during the construction of the bridge. Adopted.

Councilman Bolster offered orders for lights on Carruth street and on the corner of Hamilton and Hampton streets. Orders adopted and referred to the Executive.

Councilman Ross offered an order establishing an ordinance relative to movers of furniture. The order provides that all persons or corporations engaged in the moving of furniture shall file with the City Clerk on blanks provided for that purpose the name of the party moved, the place moved from and the place moved to. The idea of the ordinance is to put a check upon persons who buy furniture on credit and then without permission move to another section of the city, or as it often happens to another town thereby putting the owners to considerable trouble in locating it. Referred to the Committee on Ordinances.

Councilman Leslie offered an order for a culvert over Sachem brook. Referred to Committee on Streets.

Councilman Leslie offered an order for lights at the corner of Waterston avenue and Sewall street and at the corner of Waterston avenue and Phillips street. Adopted and referred to the Executive.

On motion of Councilman Smith, the order for $2,500 for plankton Naponet bridge was taken from the table.

Councilman Smith said that argument was not necessary. The only question was if the city is to provide the money to pay for the labor and material on the bridge. As to the question if the railroad or city should pay for the plankton between the rails, that was a matter to be settled by the law department.

Councilman Sandberg spoke at length on the subject. The Commissioner stated to the Street Committee that he thought that the railroad should pay for the plankton between the rails and he thought that they would do it.

In reply to a question by Councilman Richards the Commissioner stated that the whole amount would be required to pay the bills. That he had already expended $2,400 on the bridge. He did not think that $2,000 would clean things up. It would pay the lumber bills but would not pay the department for the work done.

Councilman Gardner asked if he did not say that the railroad should pay that $500 for plankton between the tracks?

Commissioner Bainbridge replying, said that he did say that they ought to pay. That they had always done so before. He also said he thought that the railroad would be fair.

Councilman Sandberg then asked the Commissioner a number of questions as to the kind of wiring to be installed.

A motion of Councilman Sandberg to lay on the table was lost on a rising vote of 5 yeas and 12 noes.

The order was then passed Councilman Sodergren and Sandberg voting no.

The order for a far concrete sidewalk on Payne street took its second reading and the rules were suspended.

Councilman Craig spoke in favor of the order. People on that street had built houses twenty years ago and did not have a sidewalk.

Councilman Branch believed it was too late in the year to pass a sidewalk order.

A motion of Councilman Sandberg to lay on the table was lost.

The order was then put on its final passage and failed to pass 12 voting yeas and 5 noes. Councilmen Bailey, Branch, Erickson, Parlee and Sandberg voting no. The vote was then reconsidered and the order laid on the table.

The order transferring $1,000 to Police Miscellaneous took its second reading. The rules were suspended and the order passed.

Adjourned at 8:55 until Nov. 26.

As he walked down the hall he paused to listen to the sad little song she was singing. Pushing open the door of her room he entered. She was sitting before the mirror doing up her red-gold hair. Captain Jinks sat down on the floor beside her, a favorite place of his. She paused in her occupation, and taking his face in her hands she raised it so that her grave eyes looked into his, and said:

"Do you love me, boy?"

His only answer was to kiss her finger tips. She released her hold and smoothed his head with tender touch. The captain knew that it was no use to try to make her understand his purpose. He knew that there was only one thing to do—go and let his loss bring them into closer sympathy.

"Now you have bothered me enough," she said, and pushing him gently from her, began to twist the heavy coils of hair in place. He waited a moment in the doorway but she was too intent on her own reflection to notice him. Then, with one last look at his dear mistress, Captain Jinks with drooping head turned and walked away.

As he stepped out into the snow he looked up at the window to see if she were there, but the curtains remained discreetly closed, and with a sense of disappointment he went quickly down the street and was soon lost to view in the hurrying crowd.

Jack Hodgeman swung into a brisk gait as he started on his morning's constitutional around the reservoir. At one time Jack had acquired a good deal of weight; not nice, healthy, firm looking flesh, but the flabby, pallid kind, which makes a fellow's friends worry about his health.

Every one knew that it was a hard blow for him when Miss Hargraves broke the engagement. And some mutual friends of the parties concerned said rather unkind things about her when they noticed a nice, healthy, well-to-do young man making a beast of himself. Suddenly, to the surprise of relatives and comrades, Jack took a brace and entered on a frantically dissipated work. For three years he kept at it with the help of constitutional cocktails and horizontal bar highballs.

As he stepped quickly along, the blue blowing keen on his face, the old sense of loneliness returned to him. Sometimes it would hide away for months, and just as Jack was beginning to congratulate himself on his permanent departure it would pound back, as it was invigorated by his long rest, torture him almost to distraction. He would set for one usually played a prominent part in this mood; maybe because he had always imagined her pouring coffee for him in the morning. That morning the solitary soldier stood out a little more boldly than usual. He moved savagely in the warm luxury of the apartment.

Gradually the mind of Captain Jinks recalled many little incidents, and in his morbid mood the more he thought of them the more injured he felt. His devotion had been that of a dog.

In his way he was immensely proud of her, and in his heart there was a true affection which no one else could replace. Still, was there any reason why he should be led around all of his life like an irresponsible animal? This last Summer had taught him the meaning of freedom, had given him a realization of his own strength, and in the awakening the blood of his fighting ancestors, so long in abeyance to her caresses, cried aloud for activity. Yet here in the city all that he could do was to spend the time between growls and yawns in the warm luxury of the apartment.

Finally he turned and saw a pale, sinking, half-starved creature keeping at an apologetic distance. There was no asking for alms, no suggestion of liquor, just a pitiful appeal for companionship. His coat was soaked with sweat and down his face was a line of dull, dry brown which in the name by which she called herself when they held those long confidences in the twilight, in which she had told him about "the other one" in every woman's life (or if not she pretends there is), Captain Jinks was not roused by jealousy. It was hard for the captain to relinquish the mental companionship he had enjoyed with her, but he had made up his mind with the bulldog determination of which she had accused him to go undisturbed by the thought of her.

THANKSGIVING DINNER.

Hilton R. Creer.

Just enough of frost in the vibrant air To sharpen the pulses tingling.

Just enough of gold on the meadows bare With the sunlight's sheen commingling.

To wake in my bosom a song of praise For the generous gift of living.

To wait my thoughts through the long-gone days For an old-time Thanksgiving.

And of that dinner—what need to tell Of joys that are past expressing.

Of the sad destruction which their befell—The turkey and sauce and dressing.

Of harvest sweets from the cellar's board, Of ham from the smokehouse rafters.

Of cheer that flowed round the festal board Of the wit and the mirth and the laughter?

For the years may come and the years may go In a fleeting panorama.

With April's tears and December's snow, And the June-tide's golden glamour.

But whenever to crimson the sumacs burn And the russet leaves grow thinner.

My thoughts from the present will gladly turn To that old Thanksgiving dinner.

MISSION OF CAPTAIN JINKS.

Captain Jinks reclined among the sofa cushions and gazed with bored eyes on the passersby. "What a day for rabbits," he thought, as he noticed the light fall of snow that was quickly being defied by the muddy boots of pedestrians. Out there where the leafless trees swayed softly in the wind its purity was unmarred save by the wild inhabitants of the wood. A yearning came over him for that great quiet, and for the first time he felt that she had shown him an injustice. If she had only been content to remain in the country; but—no, she had to return, and drag him with her. For three long years he had sacrificed everything for her. His devotion had been that of a dog.

In his way he was immensely proud of her, and in his heart there was a true affection which no one else could replace. Still, was there any reason why he should be led around all of his life like an irresponsible animal? This last Summer had taught him the meaning of freedom, had given him a realization of his own strength, and in the awakening the blood of his fighting ancestors, so long in abeyance to her caresses, cried aloud for activity. It was hard for the captain to relinquish the mental companionship he had enjoyed with her, but he had made up his mind with the bulldog determination of which she had accused him to go undisturbed by the thought of her.

As he walked down the hall he paused to listen to the sad little song she was singing. Pushing open the door of her room he entered. She was sitting before the mirror doing up her red-gold hair. Captain Jinks sat down on the floor beside her, a favorite place of his. She paused in her occupation, and taking his face in her hands she raised it so that her grave eyes looked into his, and said:

"Do you love me, boy?"

His only answer was to kiss her finger tips. She released her hold and smoothed his head with tender touch. The captain knew that it was no use to try to make her understand his purpose. He knew that there was only one thing to do—go and let his loss bring them into closer sympathy.

"Now you have bothered me enough," she said, and pushing him gently from her, began to twist the heavy coils of hair in place. He waited a moment in the doorway but she was too intent on her own reflection to notice him. Then, with one last look at his dear mistress, Captain Jinks with drooping head turned and walked away.

As he stepped out into the snow he looked up at the window to see if she were there, but the curtains remained discreetly closed, and with a sense of disappointment he went quickly down the street and was soon lost to view in the hurrying crowd.

Jack Hodgeman swung into a brisk gait as he started on his morning's constitutional around the reservoir. At one time Jack had acquired a good deal of weight; not nice, healthy, firm looking flesh, but the flabby, pallid kind, which makes a fellow's friends worry about his health.

Every one knew that it was a hard blow for him when Miss Hargraves broke the engagement. And some mutual friends of the parties concerned said rather unkind things about her when they noticed a nice, healthy, well-to-do young man making a beast of himself. Suddenly, to the surprise of relatives and comrades, Jack took a brace and entered on a frantically dissipated work. For three years he kept at it with the help of constitutional cocktails and horizontal bar highballs.

As he stepped quickly along, the blue blowing keen on his face, the old sense of loneliness returned to him. Sometimes it would hide away for months, and just as Jack was beginning to congratulate himself on his permanent departure it would pound back, as it was invigorated by his long rest, torture him almost to distraction. He would set for one usually played a prominent part in this mood; maybe because he had always imagined her pouring coffee for him in the morning. That morning the solitary soldier stood out a little more boldly than usual. He moved savagely in the warm luxury of the apartment.

Gradually the mind of Captain Jinks recalled many little incidents, and in his morbid mood the more he thought of them the more injured he felt. His devotion had been that of a dog.

In his way he was immensely proud of her, and in his heart there was a true affection which no one else could replace. Still, was there any reason why he should be led around all of his life like an irresponsible animal? This last Summer had taught him the meaning of freedom, had given him a realization of his own strength, and in the awakening the blood of his fighting ancestors, so long in abeyance to her caresses, cried aloud for activity. Yet here in the city all that he could do was to spend the time between growls and yawns in the warm luxury of the apartment.

Finally he turned and saw a pale, sinking, half-starved creature keeping at an apologetic distance. There was no asking for alms, no suggestion of liquor, just a pitiful appeal for companionship. His coat was soaked with sweat and down his face was a line of dull, dry brown which in the name by which she called herself when they held those long confidences in the twilight

Miss Ruth Hardy, soprano.
Mr. Roscoe Ricker, violinist.
Miss Ada Hinchey, organist.
Girls' Vested Choir.

The minister's theme will be "Mrs. Deland's Picture of Life in the Iron Woman."

PEACE SUNDAY.

All the churches throughout the nation have been requested by the Association for International Conciliation to observe the Lord's day Nov. 26 as Peace Sunday. The object is by prayer and instruction to "arouse the interest of the American people in the progress of the movement for promoting international peace and relations of comity and good fellowship between nations," with special emphasis upon the ratification of the treaties of arbitration between the United States and Great Britain and France. Anyone who feels the burden of taxation through the high cost of living should reflect that debts for past wars and preparations for war are in large measure responsible for this burdensome condition.

MEMORIAL CHURCH.

The regular meeting of the Ladies' Benevolent society of the Memorial Congregational church on Wednesday was of unusual interest.

Mrs. W. P. Cummings of the Christ-mas gift committee reported more money from her table and Mrs. H. D. Gearwar and Mrs. T. W. Davison gave reports of more progress on their tables of goods sold since the fair, so that the full amount from the fair work will be about $1,200.

At the close of the meeting Rev. T. W. Davison spoke of the earnest efforts, and self denial put forth by all the women, and suggested that the men were glad to let the women have all the honors, and that men were valiant lower. He also assured the ladies' society that the men had done noble work in the last year, and would do just as much this year.

In closing his remarks he presented Mrs. Sarah Butler, president of the Ladies' society with a hand painted fringed dish from the china committee. He assured Mrs. Butler that while the dish came from the china committee all the ladies put their good wishes into it even though they did not have the chance to contribute towards it.

The note accompanying the present read: "It gives us pleasure to present to you this little piece of decorated china in loving appreciation of your Christian loyalty and service as our president, and as a member of our church."

"We feel that you are an inspiration to every worker, an honor to the church and society, and a blessing in God's service to show the beauty and dignity of true Christian womanhood. Ever yours in Christian womanhood, Mrs. T. W. Davison, Mrs. A. H. Hall, Mrs. George Hight, Jr., Mrs. C. P. Lettewy, Mrs. E. E. Wiley, Mrs. F. B. Blake, Miss Caroline Hermann, Mrs. Alva Beede, Mrs. H. F. Thomas, Mrs. Linda T. Gurney, J. H. Houston and Rev. T. W. Davison."

After the presentation refreshments were served by Mrs. F. Cummings, Mrs. Walter Hill, Mrs. D. Bartlett and Mrs. Rogers.

RURAL LODGE INSTALLATION.

The officers of Rural Masonic lodge were publicly installed Thursday evening, at Masonic hall, in the presence of a large gathering of brothers and their ladies. The installation ceremony, always impressive, was unusually so on this occasion. The installing officer was Wor. Hartley L. White, District Deputy of Wardley 1, who was assisted by Wor. Joseph P. Prout as Grand Marshall. Music during the ceremonies was by the Harvard quartet.

The new officers assembled in the anti-room and marched into the lodge room and took their stations, after which they were introduced to their respective offices.

After the installation Wor. Frank A. Reed, presented Wor. Albert M. Parker, the retiring Master with a Past Master's apron.

An adjournment was then made to the banquet hall where a banquet was served by Westover & Foss, under the direction of Henry P. Farnall, which closed the evening.

In relation to the officers installed it is interesting to note that Walter E. Simmons was installed for his 27 years as secretary of the lodge. There were quite a few changes in the list of officers from last year. The officers installed being as follows:

Worshipful Master—Frank A. Reed.
Senior Warden—H. Everett Crane.
Junior Warden—Frederick E. Tupper.
Secretary—Walter E. Simmons.
Treasurer—Alexander Falconer.
Chaplain—Albert L. Hayden.
Marshal—Wor. Joseph P. Prout.
Senior Deacon—Henry P. Hayward.
Junior Deacon—Edward B. Marsh.
Senior Steward—Horace W. Rice.
Junior Steward—Roy Prout.
Tyler—Dexter Remick.

MUSICAL SERVICE.

Sunday evening at the 7.30 service at Christ church a special musical service will be given as follows:

Processional Hymn—492.
Versicles Response—Choral.
Psalm—Psalm 147—Chant.
Magnificat and Nis Dimittis.
Hymn—471.

Presentation, "To Dora"—A. Parker.
Recessional Hymn—420.

BRIEFS

One seal for a penny, you'll take how many?
Red's for the glow of the Christmas cheer.
White's for the peace of the brand new year.
Green's for the brow, not for the bier.
Who'll lessen a penny instead of a tear.
To lessen the list in the brand-new year?

Robert P. Powers of Hancock street, has gone to Portland, Maine, for two weeks.

Mrs. William P. Barker of Greenleaf street is spending the winter with her daughter Mrs. Arthur Benson of Dedham.

Mr. Randall recently came into prominence in national affairs when he was the successful competitor in the open contest for designs of tablets to be placed in Portsmouth in commemoration of the peace treaty that was enacted there.

Doctors and nurses are much interested in the Nurses Registry to be opened at the home of Mrs. Emory L. Crane, 20 Whitney road. It will be under her personal supervision and be helpful to doctors, nurses and those needing reliable nurses. Other towns have such agencies and it is well that Quincy should not lag behind, especially when one so capable will be at the head.

Mrs. Leonard Thompson of Hingham has sent out cards announcing the marriage of her daughter Laura May to Walter Franklin Farrar of East Weymouth on Wednesday evening November the fifteenth. Mr. and Mrs. Farrar will be at home after February first on Main street, Hingham Centre. Mr. Farrar is with the National Bank and Quincy friends are extending congratulations.

The second regular meeting of the Unitarian Sunday School Union of Boston was held Monday evening in the parlors of First Parish church, Dorchester. Rev. Charles T. Billings delivered an address on "The Supreme Aim in Sunday School Instruction," after which there was a half-hour discussion by the delegates. President Charles H. Johnson of Quincy presided. The next meeting of the union will be held Dec. 18 in the Bulfinch Place church, Boston.

Roscoe R. Ricker of Quincy was prominent on the programme of a pupils' recital given at the New England Conservatory of Music, Boston, Saturday, which was largely attended. Mr. Ricker is studying in the violin department and on this occasion, assisted by Evelyn Tozier of Concord, N. H., and Ora Lathard of Malden, rendered Mozart's Trio in C major (Kochel 496) for piano, violin and violin-cello. Mr. Ricker's performance was greeted with applause and commendation by the audience, composed of critical music lovers who attend the Saturday recitals regularly.

Draw near the board with plenty spread
 And if in the accustomed place
 You see the father's revered head,
 Or mother's patient, loving face,
 What'er your life may have of ill,
 Thank God that these are left you still.

And though where home has been you
 stand
 Think you are lonely?
 Though you may miss no brother's
 hand,
 And claim no sister's tender kiss,
 Though with no friend nor love you
 high,
 The past is all your company;

Thank God for friends your life has known
 For every dear, departed day,
 The blessed past is safe alone—
 God gives, but does not take away;
 He only safely keeps above
 For us the treasures that we love.

Notes and Comments.

—Boston's "Little Citizens" have started a crusade to make the streets cleaner and to pick up the litter which careless people, both big and little, throw about. The movement might well be initiated in Quincy and all the rest of the suburbs.

—Chelsea has got enough of being governed by a commission and has gone back to the old fashioned government of mayor and councilmen. Possibly there is more politics in the old way. Political pulls have a great attraction—Rockland Standard.

—There is need of a large Bible at Dedham Jail and House of Correction. Who will donate same?—Dedham Transcript. Perhaps, says the Weymouth Gazette if there had been more of the Bible in the homes of some of the inmates and more education as to earning an honest living, there would have been less call for the Bible at Dedham.

—We challenge any advocate of the justice system to demonstrate from criminal records that prohibition fosters crime and disorder or that license contributes to the peace and order of a community, and we challenge any enthusiastic friend of the saloon to state candidly why, in times of excitement and riot, the authorities invariably step in and order the saloons to close—Richmond Virginian.

—Work on the Cape Cod canal has reached the stage that the railroad trains to Woods Hole now cross the Monument river end of the canal by the new roll-till bridge. The old bridge at this point will be removed at once, thus permitting the dredges to enter the canal from the Buzzards Bay side where they can push the digging with greater speed than ever. The insular days of Cape Cod are near at hand—Medford Mercury.

—The tentative plan of the Home-Strand Commission to lend the credit of the State on a 2 per cent basis to the provision of cheap but sanitary and attractive suburban homes for workmen will naturally bring before the next Legislature a sharp issue between the public welfare and private speculation in land values, as the State has already decided to go into dock development on a large scale, it will find some difficulty in discovering a logical reason why it should not likewise go into home development—Boston Common.

—There are many people who loudly shout that they never read advertisements. Such people are, well, foolish to say the least, and, in addition, are not quite truthful. The appeal of advertising is subtle and insistent. It impresses people often without their being conscious of it, and the very people who claim they never read the advertisements will be found buying advertised articles in preference to the unadvertised, reading advertised books, etc. There's a lesson for the advertiser in all this. It's the constant persistence with which advertising that wins customers and clients like those mentioned above—Banker Tradesman.

—A novel feature of the Men and Religion Forward movement is on trial at Lynn, where General Westall, member of advertising for a large commercial institution in Boston, is conducting, before pastors and church workers, a course of lectures designed to teach the churches how to advertise—how to advertise in a large sense; to bring to the help of uncommercial good effort the stimulation which industry, skillfully handled, supplies in business. It is now widely perceived that if the church is to "come back" it must develop greater efficiency and offer more definite appeal to live men who seek and are willing to fight for justice and righteousness on earth. But some churches which are making real headway toward vigorous grappling with society's wrongs are not reaching the unchurched with evidences of their work; their light is obscured. That fact calls for the publicity expert.

CITY TREASURER'S REPORT.

The report of the City Treasurer for November shows the expenditures of the city up to the first of Nov. 1, to have been $132,852.04 which included $3,880 for water service deposits rendered. Cash deposited to the credit of the Perpetual care fund of the burial places department $1,175 making a grand total of $132,852.04. Cash on hand Nov. 1, $245,865.20.

The total receipts of the year up to Nov. 1, amounted to $1,572,983.24.

The Auditor's report shows the total appropriation including the budget, loans, tax levy, receipts, etc., to have been $1,712,133.24. The expenditures $927,973.04 leaving a balance of appropriation $245,160.30.

CITY COUNCIL.

Monday night's session of City Council was a short one, 23 minutes being sufficient to transact the business of the evening.

The meeting was called to order at 7:35 by Councilman Nowland, in the absence of President Bryant. On the agenda was a report from the Mayor to elect to a president pro tem by roll call.

On roll call Councilman John D. Smith was elected as President pro tem. Councilman Smith presided with the dignity of a veteran, and as noted above the business of the evening was quickly dispatched.

The absent members were Councilmen Bryant, Jenkins, Leslie and Studley.

The Mayor forwarded a communication from the Committee on Public Works stating that the recent survey "for water waste and leakage" shows conclusively that something should be done at once to check the great loss of water which is going on continuously. He therefore asked for an appropriation of $150,000 for the purpose of making a water waste survey.

A communication was received from the Mayor appointing the following election officers:

John A. Duggan, Mayor, as Wardens of the first six precincts.

Francis J. Mullen to act as Deputy Warden, Ward Six, precinct one.

These changes are made necessary by the death of Frederick C. Pope, Warden of this precinct. Confirmed.

The Mayor forwarded a communication from the City Solicitor, stating that at the time the matter of appointing the expense of the Metropolitan parks, boulevards and Charles River basin for the next five years was pending before the commission, the representatives of Quincy, Milton, Hyde Park, Weymouth, Hull, Hingham and Braintree made a special effort to resist being obliged to bear any undue or considerable portion of the Charles River basin expense, "and we did so with quite satisfactory results." At that time, the matter was placed before the finance committee of the City Council of 1910, who authorized him to proceed in the matter in behalf of the City of Quincy. Toward this sum, Lynn and Brookline, although not members of the commission, voluntarily contributed $200 each. The balance was apportioned between the City of Quincy and the towns named, on a basis of valuation for 1910. Quincy's share is $767.16 and he asks that the Council appropriate that sum for the purpose of paying its share of said basin.

An application for Soldiers' Relief was referred to the Committee on State Aid.

The Finance Committee reported on a plan for ordering for $1500 for draining and grading the Wollaston school lot. Order read and placed in the calendar.

GOLDEN WEDDING.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Washington I. Tuckerman of 24 Brackett street, East Milton, for ten years a most popular and highly respected residence of this city, was the scene of a most brilliant and festive affair on Tuesday evening, the 20th inst., to observe the 50th anniversary of their marriage or golden wedding. The affair itself was a most touching one, and the various adornments and decorations that decked the homestead itself, presented a spectacle of lustre that is almost beyond description.

The absent members were Councilmen Bryant, Jenkins, Leslie and Studley.

 And if in the accustomed place
 You see the father's revered head,
 Or mother's patient, loving face,
 What'er your life may have of ill,
 Thank God that these are left you still.

And though where home has been you
 stand
 Think you are lonely?
 Though you may miss no brother's
 hand,
 And claim no sister's tender kiss,
 Though with no friend nor love you
 high,
 The past is all your company;

Thank God for friends your life has

 For every dear, departed day,
 The blessed past is safe alone—
 God gives, but does not take away;
 He only safely keeps above
 For us the treasures that we love.

The meeting was called to order at 7:35 by Councilman Nowland, in the absence of President Bryant. On the agenda was a report from the Mayor to elect to a president pro tem by roll call.

On roll call Councilman John D. Smith was elected as President pro tem. Councilman Smith presided with the dignity of a veteran, and as noted above the business of the evening was quickly dispatched.

The absent members were Councilmen Bryant, Jenkins, Leslie and Studley.

The Mayor forwarded a communication from the Committee on Public Works stating that the recent survey "for water waste and leakage" shows conclusively that something should be done at once to check the great loss of water which is going on continuously. He therefore asked for an appropriation of $150,000 for the purpose of making a water waste survey.

A communication was received from the Mayor appointing the following election officers:

John A. Duggan, Mayor, as Wardens of the first six precincts.

Francis J. Mullen to act as Deputy Warden, Ward Six, precinct one.

These changes are made necessary by the death of Frederick C. Pope, Warden of this precinct. Confirmed.

The Mayor forwarded a communication from the City Solicitor, stating that at the time the matter of appointing the expense of the Metropolitan parks, boulevards and Charles River basin for the next five years was pending before the commission, the representatives of Quincy, Milton, Hyde Park, Weymouth, Hull, Hingham and Braintree made a special effort to resist being obliged to bear any undue or considerable portion of the Charles River basin expense, "and we did so with quite satisfactory results." At that time, the matter was placed before the finance committee of the City Council of 1910, who authorized him to proceed in the matter in behalf of the City of Quincy. Toward this sum, Lynn and Brookline, although not members of the commission, voluntarily contributed $200 each. The balance was apportioned between the City of Quincy and the towns named, on a basis of valuation for 1910. Quincy's share is $767.16 and he asks that the Council appropriate that sum for the purpose of paying its share of said basin.

An application for Soldiers' Relief was referred to the Committee on State Aid.

The Finance Committee reported on a plan for ordering for $1500 for draining and grading the Wollaston school lot. Order read and placed in the calendar.

GOLDEN WEDDING.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Washington I. Tuckerman of 24 Brackett street, East Milton, for ten years a most popular and highly respected residence of this city, was the scene of a most brilliant and festive affair on Tuesday evening, the 20th inst., to observe the 50th anniversary of their marriage or golden wedding. The affair itself was a most touching one, and the various adornments and decorations that decked the homestead itself, presented a spectacle of lustre that is almost beyond description.

The absent members were Councilmen Bryant, Jenkins, Leslie and Studley.

JUST BEFORE CHRISTMAS.

Eugene Field.

Father calls me William, sister calls
me Will.
Mother calls me Willie, but the fellows
call me Bill.
Mighty glad I ain't a girl—rather be a boy.
Without them sashes, curls an' things
that's worn by flannel?
Love to chaw'n green apples an' go swimming in the lake.
Hate to take the castor-ole they give
for belly-ache!

Most all the time, the whole year round, there ain't no flies on me
but just 'fore Christmas I'm as good
as good as gold!

Got a yellow dog named Sport, sick
him on the cat.
First thing she knows, she doesn't know where she is at!
Got a clipper sled, and when us kids
go out to slide,
'Long comes the grocery cart, an' we
all look a ride!
But sometimes when the grocery-man
is worried an' cross,
He reaches at us with his whip, an'
lurges up his hiss.
An' then I laff and holler, "Oh, ye never touched me!"
But just 'fore Christmas I'm as good
as I can be!

Gran'ma says she hopes that when I get to be a man,
I'll be a missionary like her oldest brother Dan.
As was it up by the cannibals that lives in Ceylon's Isle, Where every prospect pleases, an'
no man is vile!
But gran'ma she has never been to see a Wild West show,
Nor the life of Daniel Boone, or else I guess she'd know That that to Bill an' cow-boys is good enough for me!

Scrap! Just 'fore Christmas, when I'm good as I can be!
And then old Sport he hangs around
an' solemn like an' still,
His eyes they seem a-sayin': "What's the matter?"
The old cat sneaks down off her perch,
an' wonders what's become of them two enemies of hers that used to make things hum!
But I am so perlit an' tend so carefully to biz,
That mother says to father: "How improved our Willie is!"
But father, havin' been a boy hisself,
is suspicious.

When just 'fore Christmas I'm as good as I kin be!

For Christmas with its lots and lots
of candies, cakes an' toys,
Was made, they say, for proper kids
an' not for naughty boys.
So wash yer face and brush yer hair
an' mind yer p's an' q's,
An' don't bust out yer pantalones, an'
don't wear out yer shoes;
Say "Yessum" to the ladies, an' "Yes-
sir" to the men,
An' when they're company, don't pass
yer plate for pie again;
But, thinkin' of the things ye'd like
to see upon that tree,
Just 'fore Christmas be as good as yer kin be!

HILDA KELLETT'S LOVERS.

Of the old folks of the bleak little seaport, Andrew Copley dwells
most vividly in my memory. As prosperity is gauged at Port St. Bede, Andrew—the owner of some half-dozen on fully equipped fishing snags—was accounted a prosperous man. I recall him now—his kindly face, tanned and wrinkled in wrinkles; his long hair, grizzled this many a day; his stubby gray beard; his light blue eyes respectful for reading—yes, there he sits. Many is the "crack" I have had with him; yet there was one story
he chose to leave buried in silence—
and that, his own, never dared broach the topic, albeit I inwardly burned with impatient curiosity. One day, however, the history became mine unsolicited. Some remark I chanced to let slip about his life-long bachelorhood caused an infrequent
far-away look to settle upon his eyes.
We were walking up the steep, cobble narrow street, at the time, past the line-washed front of the Trawlers' Inn,
to the higher ground from which the old Norman church tower kept ward
over the slumberous village.

"Why he's I never married, say ye?"

"Poor maid—poor maid! An' her waitin' for him here as patient an'
lovin' as anybody could wish. Ah, them men—them men!"
While the frowsy old crone was shaking her gray locks over the per-fidity of mankind, she stole a sidelong
look toward the window-bench, against which Andrew Copley—then a well-set young fellow of four-and-twenty—was moodily leaning.

"Ay, but he takes on badly wif' it,"
she said jerking her head in Andrew's direction. "I'm main sorry for him, too. He always was sweet on her, you know, an' I do believe she'd 'ad
him if that man fro' Grimsby had come this way wif' his pet, well-favored wherry."

Further talk was nipped short by the appearance of the letter-bag. In all there must have been close on a dozen letters—a goodly batch for Port St. Bede. It was one of the last which the postman held alant to catch the light. "Miss Kellett!" he called out wheezy.

"Why that must be Hilda," exclaimed one of the bystanders. "She isn't here. Ye'll 'ave to take it up to the house."
"I'll save ye that walk," said Andrew, stepping forward. "I'm bound to tell her she's got it."
"Don't tell her o' the goings on o'
that Grimsby chap," cried the fish-wife before mentioned. "I'll drive her clean daff. Conscience sake, Andrew, don't tell her that!"
During the period we were dealing with education at Port St. Bede was a wofully low ebb. Not twenty people in the whole town could write their names or recognize them when penned; few could read anything but
"print"; fewer still were able to puzle out written characters. Among this community Andrew Copley was

THE GRIMSBY MARK.

reckoned a "fine scholar"; and by virtue of that reputation his services were frequently demanded by those who, having "passed" need of the "Tarning," changed to be in the bad books of the rector or the Wesleyan minister.

With the "gammer's" injunctions
echoing in his ears, Andrew strode quickly towards the cottage occupied by Hilda Kellett, and her widowed mother, "Miss Kellett, Port St. Bede," said he, furtively scanning the super-scription. "It's fro' that scamp, as I live. An' now belike she'll have me to read it to her." Slackening his pace,
he added grimly: "Shall I tell't to her,
shall I?" "I'll kill her, say they, an'
they're right!" "I might as well kill her!" he muttered.

He stuffed the letter into his jacket pocket long before he came abreast of the cottage. Rapping a tattoo on the door, he lifted the latch, and, as was the custom, walked straight in. A slim, fair haired girl peeped into the room from a side door. "Oh, it's you, Andrew," she said, coming forward.
"Ay, it's me. I can't just to ask how your mother is today?"

"She's a piece better this morn', but she rested ill last night. Nellie an' me sat up wif' her most all night;
but she's dropped off asleep now. Tak
a chair, Andrew."

Andrew perched himself on the edge of the nearest rush-bottomed chair,
and, looking hesitantly at his cap
between his knees, "I was down by the Trawlers' when the letters came,"
he said, after a strained interval.
"There was one for ye, Hilda, an' I made free to say I'd bring it. Here 'tis."

"For me?" Hilda's eyes brightened as she stretched out her hand towards him. "I'm sure I could."
"It's the Grimsby mark," replied
Andrew, shortly.
"Then it must be fro' Ben. He said he'd let me know as soon as the big got back to Grimsby. An' how I trembled for him all through that storm of Monday! But he's safe—this shows he's safe, Andrew." A plucked look of alarm crept into her blue eyes
as Andrew, never answering, kept his gaze clamped to the floor. "This shows he's safe!" she repeated quaveringly.

"I'll tell ye straight out, Hilda,
what they were sayin' over at Morpeland yesterday. Perhaps that letter may contradict it all, an' there was a deal o' nasty talk about the Vampire—as how she'd gon' do it
there."

"Read it to me," cried Hilda,
thrusting the missive into his hand.
"Ye know I can't misyen. Read it an' I'll be bound."

Taking firm grip of his lips, Andrew opened the letter and glanced at the signature. "It's none from him,"
he said. "It's wrote by Peter Worley, the skipper o' the Vampire."
"Not fro' Ben?" exclaimed Hilda troubledly. "He isn't, he isn't—
dead!"

Andrew nodded. "Drowned!" he murmured huskily.
Clutching at her throat, Hilda sank into a chair and hid her face in her pallid hand. Presently she looked up, her lips pallid, her eyelids scarlet. "I can bear it now, Andrew," she said.
"I'll tell ye all."

The caligraphy of the Vampire's master must have been all that illegible, judging from the difficulty Andrew had in deciphering it. He read slowly, humming and hawing through the whole epistle. Here is the gist of it:
In the recent heavy gales, the Van-pire, a crazy, unmanageable fisher-ship, had sprung aloft, her crew believing eventually compelled to abandon the foundering vessel and take to the long boat. Their perilous case was little bettered thereby, for twice the boat
had been capsized; when she was righted the second time, only four of the sailors succeeded in scrambling into her. Of the two men missing, the mate, Ben Webb, was one. The survivors were picked up on the following day and landed at Grimsby. It was in fulfillment of a pledge made at the outset of their peril, and in faithful compliance of its outcome, that Captain Worley now broke the sad news to the dead man's sweetheart.

Even in the intensity of her grief,
Hilda had thought of her mother's much-needed slumber, and not a cry escaped her lips. Andrew, the big, clumsy, soft hearted gomerall, saw
that no sympathy of his could soothe her distress; she must just "fret her dole." And so he left her with her sorrow.

"I know ye like me, Andrew," she said, frankly. "I've always known it, an' I thank you. If ever I come to think I'd that other way, an' if I see ye 't the same mind still, I'll speak first. Don't ask me any more, Andrew; I'll speak first."

Henceforth, as before, they were friends—close, firm friends—but no further. Season after season Andrew sailed off in his yawl for the white fishing on the Dogger, returning each time with brain ailment for the sight of her. And she met him with a mere smile and handshake, in her eyes no token of change, no glimmer of awakening affection.

Eight years thus lumbered away,
each weary, joyless year, and neither Hilda nor Andrew had sought to break through their part of silence. About this time Hilda was sore stricken with typhoid, then rife in the village, and for an anxious space she dwelt on the very border line of life and hereafter.

Oh, Andrew's personal interesting his word that the great matters would be forthcoming. Abel called in Dr. Radcliffe of Morpeland, under whose care Hilda slowly began to mend. It was while Andrew was away at the Banks—the doctor's comforting assurances for company
that the truth stripped itself before Hilda, to torture and afflict her with its mocking ghastliness.

As yet she was not able to leave her bed, but lay there with pinched face,
her hair tangled on the pillow, her blue fingers twitching idly at the garish patchwork quilt, her eyes wandering to the half-opened lattice,
through which was borne the distant sough of the waves, and whence she could see their sun-drenched crests far out beyond the Fork rocks. Then she would turn to answer some questions put to her by her little niece, Mary—Abel's eldest daughter, "rising ten."

Had she crept into the sick-room
presently the little maid fell to talking, chattering, of the doings and sayings
of her school friends.
"Ay, but ye'll be gettin' a fine scholar, Mary," said Hilda. "It was a good thing for the weans w'en parson opened a school, I wish it had been done long sin'."

"It was our 'namin'g today," replied Mary, eager with fresh news.
"Mr. Harvey heard me read and patted me on the head. Out given by the male hard words they was too."

"An' maybe ye can read writin', Mary?"
"Oh, yes," returned she, nowise disposed to belittle her attainments.
"When you get any letter, Aunt Hilda, I'll read them all through to you an' show you 'em. I'm sure I could."
"Well, I'm goin' to try ye," said Hilda, smilingly. "Now, open that drawer, an' the second one—an' bring the little black box to me. Yes, that is it."

Tenderly picking up the casket with which the box was filled, Hilda placed the various articles by her side on the table. Underneath, untouched since that day lay the very letter which had told her its sad tale through Andrew's mouth.

"Now, what name's that?" said she,
pointing to the signature.
Mary screwed her eyes into beads,
hung her head sadly on one side and spelled the words under her breath.

"It's Ben; Webb, Webb," she announced at last with a ring of triumph. "It's main bad writin'!"
"No, not!" cried Hilda, rising excitedly upon her elbow. "Not Ben—not Ben Webb. Are ye sure, Mary?"
"I'm sure," said Hilda, "I'm sure."
Hilda sent up a choking cry. "He said it came fro' Capt. Worley," she ejaculated, gaspingly. He lied to me!
It's fro' Ben—fro' Ben. Ben isn't dead!" Her whole frame trembled, she turned to Mary with "Begin at the first. Read it all to me. Can ye? Can ye?"

Mary at all events was willing to try, and although she blundered often and painfully under the task, between them they managed to piece the words
into sense.
"Dear Hilda," it ran, "I didn't mean to say a word, but I can't do it without tellin' you first. Don't hate me, for I do love you, and do, more than her. Anyways, you can't say I didn't tell you all about Polly Percy! how we was to be married, and how I was wrote off. Well, me and her have made it up again. Her uncle's d-d left her all her money, his three houses and 400 lbs. in the bank. You see I didn't have a free hand so you can't blame me. Besides, there's a dying couple too glad to have you; and ice banns have been read twice in Grimsby church. I think things are settled, and no more fuss. I feel as I can't ask the presents back now."

SURPRISE PARTY.

To say that Mrs. Susanna Johnson was surprised on Monday, at her home
No. 2 Gothland street, would be putting it mild. She had been invited to the house of her son Carl for dinner,
so that the surprise to her was perfectly carried out. When she returned home from her visit, and entered her house, the parlor was full of relatives and friends waiting to receive her. She was almost struck dumb with astonishment when she entered and saw so many smiling faces awaiting to extend to her the well wishes of the day.

She quickly recovered and entered heartily into the festivities of the occasion. The dining room, under the skillful hands of her daughter Annie who had planned the surprise assisted by friends, had been transformed into a bower of beauty.
Flowers, cut flowers, roses, etc., made it a perfect fairyland. She was the recipient of many handsome presents
and was also remembered by her son Fred, who is in Eureka, Utah, and William, now of Chicago.

The pastor of the Swedish M. E.
church, of which she has been a member, and a conscientious worker for many years, called during the day
and presented her with a beautiful bouquet of cut flowers, the gift of the Ladies' society.

At an early hour the guests departed, wishing Mrs. Johnson many more years of happiness. Refreshments consisting of ice cream, cake
and coffee was served during day and evening. Special mention should be made of two cakes in particular which adorned the table, one large cake had the figures "70" in frosting on the top, while the other contained small candles, which when burning, presented a beautiful appearance. Taken all in all the affair was very successful and will be long remembered by those present, and the grandchildren of whom Mrs. Johnson is the happy possession of a few, made the house merry with their laughter.
They all had a grand, good time.

GUILD CONCERT.

At the Park and Downs Congregational church Monday evening a fine concert was given by the male Angels Concert Company. The affair was given under the auspices of the Woman's Guild and attracted a large number.

The participating artists consisted of a male quartet composed of Herbert Colby, tenor, Vernon A. Lyman, tenor, Herbert C. Greenwood, baritone, Walter H. Fletcher, bass
and Mrs. Mabel B. Lyman soprano, Miss Bess Anderson Colburn pianist
and Ruth Fielding, child reader.

Miss Colburn opened the evening
with a waltz in E minor by Chopin.
When and where George Washington
was followed by the male quartet in "The Holy Blacksmith."
Among the selections of the quartet
were "Wanted a wife" and "Sleep,
my Lady" while several encores of humorous trend were given.

Mrs. Lyman pleased those present with her high soprano voice, giving as solos "When the heart is young"
and "Heart's Delight." The "Venetian Serenade" a duet by Mr. and Mrs. Lyman met with applause.

The solos by male voices were well received, Mr. Fletcher singing "The Conductor" by Kenyon, Mr. Greenwood,
"The Wanderer" by Stuart and Mr.
Colby a selected tenor solo.

Ruth Fielding, a precocious miss of twelve was the hit of the evening.
Each of her numerous readings
brought forth an encore approaching an ovation and she was recalled
again and again.

The final number on the program
was the "Star Spangled Banner" sung as a soprano solo by Mrs. Lyman, the audience rising and joining in the chorus.

TEMPERANCE COLUMN.

OUR PLEDGE.
I hereby promise, God helping me,
to abstain from all distilled, fermented
and malt liquors, including wine,
beer, and cider as a beverage and to
employ all proper means to discour-
age the use of and traffic of the same.

AN EX-SENATOR'S COUNSEL.
The year 1910 had but fairly started on its record when the National Liquor League convened at Washington, D.
C., in its seventeenth annual convention.
At the first meeting President McDonough, Secretary Joseph Debor, and former Senator John M. Thurston advised that a strong organization be perfected and an educational campaign started to combat the present
anti-liquor sentiment.

"Mr. Thurston urged the liquor
men to stand together and organize
We must fight on equal ground,
not as outcasts and lawbreakers, but
as men engaged in a legitimate business, recognized by law and heavily taxed to support the government."

As the little fellow who tried to increase his weight on the scales by swallowing stones, the largest possible dimensions found in effort unsuccessful, so the liquor men, however heroic their endeavor, must inevitably meet with failure in any effort they may make to carry out the advice of the ex-senator; for the liquor dealers are outcasts and law-breakers; they are not engaged in a legitimate business, and therefore all the organizing, educating, and campaigning they can institute will not increase their weight a grain—YOUTH'S

OLD LANDMARKS.

The good old colonial days when our Puritan fathers wore black stocks and sleeve faces, when they discoursed of angels and lived much as men, are recalled in pleasing form in "Landmarks
in the Old Bay State" by William Russell Corner of Westley, Mass.

Pictures of 130 Colonial houses, historic places, tablets, monuments, etc., add great interest to the volume, as some of the buildings have already been torn down. There is a history and interesting story about each picture and many of the anecdotes related are heretofore old for the first time.

NEW COURT OF FORESTERS.

A new court of the Massachusetts Catholic order of Foresters, was instituted Sunday afternoon at Alpha hall in the presence of a large gathering of the High officers of the order and by many brothers of the order from courts in Quincy and vicinity.

PARK AND DOWNS CHURCH.

For the first time the wide open doors of the new Park and Downs Congregational church beckoned a welcome on Thursday morning to the gathering groups venturing their way from all directions to join in the Thanksgiving Day service of the society.

Without was the brightness of a clear winter day. Within amid surroundings of reverence and sanctity many of the parishioners silently clasped hands in the joy of their realization.

Many were there who had stood nobly by the wheel through the last two years of unceasing effort. Here and there were one or two who had seen the first church founded and followed it in its upward striding to its present eminence. Truly all had true cause for gratitude this Thanksgiving day.

The voluntary started slowly and sweetly and for the first time in the new church were heard the distant voices of the vested choir. On their slow advancing heads a shaft of sunlight from the high leaded windows above seemed to cast the blessing of the Almighty upon the edifice erected in its service.

An inspiring invocation from the minister and the Doxology "Praise God from whom all blessings flow" was sung with what seemed, in the new building, an added reverence and fervor.

Responsive reading was taken part in by all and the choir responded with "Gloria to the Father." A prayer of Thanksgiving was read and a Thanksgiving hymn was sung.

The Scripture reading was from Matthew 15 and "Oh Divine Redeemer" was beautifully sung by Miss Ruth Hardy.

A prayer by the pastor and a response "In heavenly love abiding" by a quartet formed by Arthur F. Capen, Charles Chase, Chester A. Boynton and Charles Bishop. Miss Henrietta C. Gram presided at the piano.

Among the choir members were "Praise the Lord, Oh my Soul" and "Oh Lord how manifold are Thy Works."

It consisted of Mrs. George Stebbins, Mrs. E. R. Whittecar, Mrs. Mary, Clara Combs, Mildred Todd, Grace Hunter, Lillian O'Neill, Flora Sans, Fred Klingenberg, Myrtle Daniels, Margaret Hoeman, Lillian Hall, Natalie Scott, Ethel Asberg, Gertrude Sass, Arnetus Dingwell, Allen Palton, Charles Richardson, Charles Tanner.

The pastor Rev. William Bingham Ayers spoke at length regarding the new church. It was not with exulting they moved into their new temple of worship but with a deepened sense of their tremendous responsibility.

The service closed with the hymn "Come ye thankful people come" and a benediction by the pastor.

The new church, the best occupied by the congregation at the Sunday morning service and temporary electric lighting connections will be made for the Sunday evening meeting.

The pulpit will be put in place next week and the pulpit furniture will be ready in January. The pews will be installed in February at which time the dedication of the church will take place.

The society is to be congratulated upon the attainment of a house of worship that not only will accommodate the ever growing parish but also lends a spirit of reverence and sanctity not only to the old structure.

THANKSGIVING.

Thanksgiving was observed at the several Quincy institutions as usual. At the Quincy House all work, except that absolutely necessary, was omitted and the inmates gave the day up to enjoyment. At noon they were served with an appetizing Thanksgiving dinner which had been provided by the Overseer of the Poor. This consisted of turkey, with all the "fixins" such as vegetables, pies and puddings.

At the National Soldiers' Home, a genuine Thanksgiving dinner with turkey, etc., was served at noon. After dinner the old sailors gathered in the smoking room and fought over the turkey bones, while the "fixins" such as vegetables, pies and puddings.

At the Sailors' Snug Harbor at Germantown, the same custom prevailed as at the National Soldiers' Home. A turkey dinner with all that goes with it was served at noon and then the "old salts" gathered in the lounging rooms. Some indulged in checkers and others in cards so that the day was passed in a pleasant manner.

Some of the unfortunate at the City Hospital were necessarily deprived of their Thanksgiving dinner but those whose physical condition would permit, were given a taste of the good things the more fortunate people enjoyed. In the afternoon, patients received visits from relatives and friends who brought goodies and flowers and everybody was made as comfortable as possible.

NO-LICENSE MEETINGS.

Meetings in the interest of "No License" will be held Sunday in the several wards of the city. In the center, the meeting will be held Sunday evening at the Bethany church at 7.30. The speaker will be Daniel A. Mackay of Roxbury. Music will be by the Pilgrim quartet. At South Quincy, the meeting will be at the Presbyterian church on Water street at 7.45 with Charles E. Moody as the principal speaker.

At the Memorial church, Atlantic, at 7 o'clock the speaker will be Theophilus King. Other meetings arranged are Washington Street Congregational church at 7.30; Hall Place M. E. church at 7. Union meeting at the Swedish Congregational church, Garfield street, at 3 in the afternoon. At this meeting the pastors of the Methodist and Baptist churches will speak.

At all of the meetings, in addition to those announced, there will be several local speakers and also good music. The object of these meetings is to arouse enthusiasm so that a rising "No" vote may be rolled up at the election on Tuesday.

Shop early is the slogan. Also if you wish white paper to do up the Christmas presents in buy it now and avoid the rush. Large sheets 2 cents. Call early for it at the Patriot Office.

Miss Whittier of Cambridge vice president of Eastern Massachusetts Diocesan Council of the Girls' Friendship society, gave a most interesting and highly instructive talk before St. Christopher's branch Nov. 24th in the parish rooms. Miss Whittier gave very adequately the origin and the strength of the society as one of the societies of the Episcopal church, its objects, and its usefulness. She told us how it is doing in Massachusetts and America and how it is doing what it could do everywhere, and she dwelt on what membership means to those who belong to so extensive a society.

Representative elect William J. Leslie, returned Saturday night from a ten days visit to Sweden. He mentioned composed a quartette of singers, whose renditions of various selections, caused the many present to give evidence of their heartfelt appreciation by continuous applause.

All four sung the first number and the manner in which they accented themselves is worthy of favorable comment. Mrs. Kerins was the soprano, Miss Bryant rendered the contralto, Mr. Hood the tenor, while the gentleman from across the water, Mr. Cavendish furnished the bass accompaniment. The singers were rather late in arriving, yet the audience would have been quite ready to wait, no matter how much anxiety was expressed.

Four grand upright pianos were on the stage, and the accompaniments to the singers, were ably furnished by professors Frank Wright, Clarence J. Fouché, Frank Gilgley and John Mahon.

Solos were rendered by each of the singers, and each of them was accorded a fine reception. All four pianists played simultaneously, and added to the singing of the quartette, which occurred in conjunction with it, the feature of the evening was the performance of the best of its nature ever produced in local circles.

ANNUAL SERVICE B. P. O. E. At the regular meeting of Quincy lodge of Elks, Tuesday evening, arrangements were perfected for the annual service in memory of brothers who have gone to the great beyond, which will be held in Alpha hall Sunday evening. Music will be furnished by the Alpha quartet and the general eulogy will be delivered by Judge Thomas B. Riley. The religious invocation will be by a well known local clergyman.

The service is a public one and the friends and ladies of the members are cordially invited to attend. Light refreshments will be served at the club house after the service.

GRANITE CITY CLUB. In accordance with its time honored custom the Granite City club kept open house the night before Thanksgiving and entertained not only a large number of its own members but a number of visitors as well.

During the first few hours of the evening the regular whist tournament was held in which twelve tables participated. The two lucky men to have the highest scores were R. L. Lovell who secured 82.3 per cent and Warren H. Rideout who secured 69.3 per cent.

Immediately following the whist, refreshments were served and the remainder of the evening was passed as the taste of each individual member dictated. It was one grand good time and the hospitality for which the club is noted was seen on every side.

ATLANTIC

The largest prayer service in the history of Memorial church was the seven o'clock service Thanksgiving morning. So many attended it was necessary to open the chapel doors and file into the auditorium for the comfort of the large congregation. This was the first early Thanksgiving service ever held in Atlantic, but will most likely be continued.

The nominating committee of the Y. P. S. E. of Memorial church, Atlantic, met with Miss Grace De Wolfe Wednesday and will recommend the election of the following for officers: Miss Jessie French, president; Miss Jessie French, secretary; Miss Nellie Buckley, vice president; Miss Mary Young, corresponding secretary; Miss Margaret Young, treasurer; J. N. Houston and Miss Gladys Wiley, music committee; Miss Grace De Wolfe and Miss Alice Waterhouse, prayer meeting committee and Miss Mabel Cheney, social committee.

The political situation for Councilmen in Atlantic is quite harmonious this year in comparison to last year. With C. E. Gill who was a strong candidate last year not standing for the nomination of the Democratic party, and C. E. Carlson of Squantum being in Cuba during the caucus, the two candidates are fairly even.

Mr. Carlson knows that if he had returned from his business trip to Cuba he intended to take out special papers, as he wants Squantum to be represented in the City Council. However the party feeling is that with the interest they might in the civic movements of the city. Perhaps this is always so where men earn their living in the large city and look at the suburb as simply a bed room for city folks.

Miss Maud E. Read will be in the ward following her debut as a professional biblical and literary reader. She was graduated from the Leland Powers school of oratory last spring and has the fullest commendation of the school as an interpreter of the finest literature. Her many friends will be glad of an opportunity to hear her.

Notes and Comments.

—The New Hampshire farmer who dug a forty-foot well before the frost and now has thirty-four feet of water in it won't have to depend on hard cider to drink this winter.—Somerville Journal.

—There is no further need of race suicide to keep the human family down to a minimum; the automobile at the head of the list, didn't know it was loaded, thought it was a deer, and thin ice is doing the work, says the Weymouth Gazette.

—Are all murderers insane? A shrewd lawyer could gather sufficient evidence about a lot of our game people, let alone murderers, that would lead a jury to give the matter of allowing us to run at large serious thought.—Mansfield News.

—Whether we are happy or not, successful or not, in our life, the friendship and good will of others or not, rests mainly with ourselves. Whether we are contented one day and disgruntled the next depends to a great extent upon how we start each day and in what frame of mind we meet its developments.

—This month the voters of Los Angeles are to determine at the municipal election, among other things, whether or not a municipal newspaper to be managed by appointees of the mayor shall be established. That sort of a newspaper would have just as much influence and attract just about as many people as a church established in this country by the government might.—Spencer Leader.

—Eggs are 60 cents a dozen. They're worth more, but that is what you must pay for strictly fresh eggs. One out of ten men in town who the Mansfield News has a little knowledge of his own, and his smile broadens as the price of eggs advances, but when he looks at his grain bill his smile wrinkles and soon his brows wrinkle and his lips become firm. If he be a profane man the grain dealer is deeply to be considered.

—Harry K. Thaw is at last engaged in doing something for which mention of his name in the papers is justified. He is studying law, with the purpose of passing an examination, so as to show he is not a parasite. The cheering feature of this announcement is that if he succeeds in his aim, he is likely to be compelled to answer for the crime he committed, and thus to reach the world to get rid of him.—Rochester Union and Advertiser.

—Man is truly the handkerchief animal. On it he is very dependent. Can you imagine worse torture than being in church far down the "broad aisle" and no handkerchief, and worse still, no wife with you whose dainty scrap of nothingness might give a momentary relief? A handkerchief is, indeed, a joyous accessory to one's daily equipment and a great help to those of limited originality at Christmas time.—Milford Gazette.

—High schools of eastern Massachusetts in general, and Greater Boston in particular, continue to manifest the unimpaired temper conspicuous in their baseball and football games of recent years. Four players were ruled out of the game for slugging recently and there were reports of several clashes between squads of student supporters. It school authorities cannot compel the students to be canons of good sportsmanship, teams should be disbanded. As to the purely personal equation, schoolboys who aspire to collegiate distinction should remember that fistfights and mayhem are no longer considered clever in intercollegiate contests.—Boston Record.

CONCERT AT WOLLASTON.

Under the auspices of the Abigail Phillips Quincy Chapter, D. A. R., a musicale was held in the Wollaston Congregational church Monday evening by the Mazah trio.

The trio consisted of Rosemary Ricker, violin, Marion L. Moorehouse, cello and Grace M. Farrington, piano. They were assisted by Edna Cowlishaw, reader and Clifford P. Farrington, baritone.

Miss Farrington and her brother Clifford have resided in Wollaston and the hearty applause which greeted them, showed an appreciation of their musical ability as well as the fact that their friends were glad to welcome them once more to their former home.

The opening number was a trio by Bohm, composed of allegro and andante con moto movements.

The violin solos of Mr. Ricker showed not only an ability far above the mediocre but a deft touch. His fingering in Schubert's "The Trout" (The Trout) was worthy of the applause it received. In addition to encores, the "Spanish Dance" of Sarasate was played.

As a reader Miss Cowlishaw was excellent, her selection of "Strong Heart," "Mad Pies," "Confessions," "The red rose," and others showing a wide range of character.

Mr. Farrington received an ovation upon his appearance and sang most respectably two baritone songs entitled "Three for Jack" and "Youth."

The cello solo of Miss Marion L. Moorehouse, a local player of note met with the continued applause it deserved. The number was an "Athenian Dithyramb" by Kietzer.

Other renditions of the trio included "Grecian Dance" by Wagner, "Souvenir d'Heidelberg" by Bendel, "Serenade" by Lieke and "Ungharischer Tanz" by Brahms.

The program was a well rounded one and was thoroughly enjoyed by the large audience that was present.

QUINCY COMMANDERY.

A new epoch in Masonic history in Quincy, was entered Monday when Quincy Commandery, Knights Templar, the baby commandery of the jurisdiction which has been working under dispensation since last March, was constituted in the presence of a gathering of over 200 Sir Knights, by Rt. Em. Sir Lafayette G. Blair, Grand Commander of the Grand Commandery of Massachusetts and Rhode Island and the full board of grand officers.

Seldom has an opportunity been afforded to witness the ceremony of the institution of a new commandery, for it has been performed five years since it has been performed. The affair was carried out in an impressive manner.

The commandery was opened at 2 o'clock and after the transaction of routine business, the presence of the Grand Commander and his staff was announced by Em. Sir Charles E. Pierce, Grand Warder. They were escorted to the assembly by a committee headed by Generalissimo, S. W. J. Piper. This committee included: Rt. Em. Sir Arthur W. Stetson of Quincy Commandery, Em. Sir Arthur W. Burn, David J. Pierce, William Wallace, of South Shore Commandery, Em. Sir Luther E. Cowles of Natick Commandery, Em. Sir Charles S. Seal of Bay State Commandery, Em. Sir Charles H. MacGregor, Fletcher K. Tirrell and William H. Puffer of St. Ormer Commandery, Em. Sir T. John Evans of South Shore Commandery, Em. Sir D. W. Bates of Bay State Commandery, Em. Sir H. K. Kider of De Molay Commandery, Em. Sir Calvin R. Barrett of Cyprus Commandery, Em. Sir Alfred N. Nash of Old Colony Commandery, Em. Sir Henry A. Yenetchi of Coeur de Lion Commandery, Em. Sir Henry H. Litchfield of Boston Commandery and Em. Sir Richard W. Smith of St. Berhard Commandery.

The Grand Commandery included Em. Sir Lafayette G. Blair, Grand Commander.

Em. Sir Frank L. Nagle, Deputy Grand Commander.

Em. Sir William W. Johnson, Grand Generalissimo.

Em. Sir Walter F. Medding, Grand Captain General.

Em. Sir James S. Blake, Grand Senior Warden.

Em. Sir Samuel G. Sherwood, Grand Junior Warden.

Rt. Em. Sir William H. H. Soule, Grand Treasurer.

Em. Sir Benjamin W. Rowell, Grand Secretary.

Em. Sir Smith R. Harrington, Grand Seward.

Em. Sir Rev. R. Perry Bush, Grand Chaplain.

Em. Sir Charles E. Pierce, Grand Warder.

Em. Sir William H. Puffer, Grand Captain of the Guard.

Em. Sir Harry G. Pollard, Isaac Chase, Albert W. Fay, Charles R. Hunt, E. Percy Davis, Asa C. Jewett and Grand Lecturers.

Rt. Em. Sir E. Bentley Young and John Albert Blake, Past Grand Commanders.

Music during the ceremony was furnished by the Beethoven quartet with Thomas Carter as bugler. After the charter had been read by Grand Recorder Rowell and the ceremonies about the altar had been concluded, the Grand Commander declared the "virtue of the power in the vest."

"I now form you into a just and regular commandery of Knights Templar, may the God of our fathers be with you to guide and direct you in all your doings."

The proclamation was made by the Grand Warder and heralded to the north and south, east and west by Bugler Carter.

After the institution, the Grand Commander addressing the members stated that he brought to them the congratulations, love, sympathy and support of the Grand Commandery.

"The question is often asked, why do men gather together this way? Why do they affiliate? Why night after night do they assemble and listen to the repeated lessons? The answer is simple and direct to every Knights Templar."

"It matters not if you are the youngest and not the largest in number, but it does matter that each Knights Templar shall be so imbued, imbued with love, sympathy and support that comes from the cross."

Immediately following the institution, came the election and installation of officers and it was a source of gratification to all, as well as a mark of appreciation to Em. Sir Henry P. Fernald that he selected as Emblem Commander by a unanimous vote.

The election of the other officers was equally as unanimous, the full list of elective and appointive officers being as follows:

Commander, Em. Sir Henry P. Fernald.

Generalissimo, Sir Walter E. Piper.

Captain General, Sir John Morgan.

Senior Warden, Sir Otis B. Oakman.

Junior Warden, Sir Edward H. Burdett.

Associate Prelate, Sir Rev. Rufus B. Tobey.

Treasurer, Sir Jonathan S. Swingle.

Recorder, Sir Alfred H. Richards.

Standard Bearer, Sir Walter S. Sword Bearer, Sir George L. Cole.

Warder, Sir John H. Whitehead.

Captain of the Guards, Sir George E. Adams, Sir George E. Sampson, Sir J. Francis Merrill.

Assistant Guards, Sir Arthur F. Maynard, Sir Waldo B. Fay, Sir Charles A. Chase.

Organist, Sir Herbert V. Follett.

Sentinel, Sir Dexter Remick.

Adjutant, Sir David Hanson.

orary." To this suspends a large passion cross, on which rests a circle, and inside the circle are three crosses of different pattern, one within the other.

In accepting the honor Past Commander Blake declared that he was proud to be elected a member of Quincy Commandery and was proud that he had some hand in starting it upon its career.

Commander Blair said: "From the bottom of my heart I appreciate the compliment you have paid me." It is a great honor to be enrolled on your list. And rightly you have named my predecessor the most honorable member. I pledge you my very best services in all your works, and shall ever prize the decoration you have seen fit to bestow upon me."

After the close of the Commandery, a banquet was served in the Grand hall and the exercises ended with a few brief remarks by the Grand Commander in which he gave some excellent advice to the Sir Knights.

The new Commandery started out last February with a membership of 100 and since that time 12 have been added to the roster, bringing the membership at institution up to 212. One member has been lost by death, Sir Joseph L. Whitton.

Among the visitors noticed were: Past Grand Commander Planders, besides representatives of the following commanderies: Boston, Henry H. Litchfield, PC; De Molay, Charles W. Kiddier, EC; E. E. Jamieson, CG; Coeur de Lion, Henry A. Yenetchi, PC; St. Bernard, Richard W. Smith, PC; St. Ormer, Fletcher K. Tirrell and William H. Puffer, EC; William S. Wallace, David J. Pierce, T. John Evans and Arthur W. Burr, PC; Natick, Luther E. Cowles, PC; Old Colony, Alfred H. Nash and Charles S. Seal, PC; Bay State, Arthur L. Beals, EC; George A. Thatcher, G. David W. Bates and Calvin R. Barrett, PC; Cyprus, Frank H. Tyler, EC; Irving C. Webster, G; Cambridge, Charles E. Haddock and Howard P. Peak, PC; Beaumont, Alvin F. Pease, PC.

CLAN MCGREGOR MEETING.

Clan McGregor No. 5, O. S. C. held its regular meeting Monday in the McGregors hall Doble's Corner. There was a large attendance of clansmen. The meeting was called at 8:30 instead of the usual hour 7:30, as about one hundred applications for membership had to be acted upon.

After the usual business was disposed of, the Grand Master, Dr. John A. Gordon, a charter member of the clan and its first physician, was introduced by Chief Alfred O. Diack who explained that the genial doctor did not need any introduction to a Quincy audience.

Gordon was very warmly received and bowed his acknowledgments to the loud applause which greeted him. Beginning his remarks he alluded to the first meeting of the seventeen young men, who formed Clan McGregor thirty-one years ago. The little assemblage had grown to be a great, strong and with spreading branches. He complimented the clan on its splendid growth and hoped it would continue to grow in number and usefulness.

The subject of Dr. Gordon's address was "A trip through ancient Eastern Alaska" which the doctor gave three years ago. The speaker introduced his subject with an explanation of the derivation of the name which, he said, is a corruption of the aboriginal name "Alakut," which means leading north. "Great Land," or "Big Land." The purchase of Alaska, or that part which now belongs to the United States, was made by Secretary of State William H. Seward in 1867 for the sum of $7,200,000. Here the doctor referred to the opposition which leading members of the councils of this country offered to the taking over of the territory, which was described as an earthquake, a field of ice, etc. The late Hon. Benjamin Butler, even suggested giving Russia, from whom it was purchased, the price of $200,000 as a gift and let the land alone. Today however no one who knows anything of the wonderful resources and possibilities of that great territory would think of giving it up. Since its acquisition by the United States there has been taken from it, the price of $200,000 as a gift and let the land alone. Today however no one who knows anything of the wonderful resources and possibilities of that great territory would think of giving it up.

Today however no one who knows anything of the wonderful resources and possibilities of that great territory would think of giving it up.

He described the numerous wonderful bays and inlets along the sea board. The beauty and magnificence of the ice fields, bergs and glaciers, which are the largest in the world.

He dwelt a considerable time upon the people, who now number about 50,000, mostly whites, their mode of living and their industries. To the traveler, the native is of much interest and the speaker gave his audience a very clear account of those people, their legends and philosophies, their manner of preserving the race in all its vigor and nobility.

The family tree, "Totem" a model of which the doctor had with him and showed to his audience, which better described how family relations were marked and kept than mere words could possibly do. Of great interest to the white man is the "Totem." Its grotesque carvings extending up to the top of heights of fifty feet or more just as the family has been added to by marriage etc. All in all the speaker's talk was a magnificent trip a land wonderful in mountains and glaciers and gorgeous sunsets, wealth of mine and timber and animals of many kinds, beautiful beyond all others in majestic scenery.

At the close of the address was given a rising vote of thanks a number of clansmen made remarks on the lecture all of which were expressive of appreciation of the clear telling style and instructive character of the lecture.

John J. McAnarney, who is a clansman of long standing and Quincy's well known lawyer was present and made some very interesting remarks.

Chief Diack secured the genial lawyer as the next lecturer, which will be some time soon.

A social hour was held after business was over. Songs were sung by a number of clansmen and cigars were handed round.

Next meeting December 11th will be the historic event of the Clan.

The clansmen are to assemble at their hall at Doble's corner at 8:30 and from there, headed by a band of Pipers, all in full Scottish regalia, drums and clanks accompanying. The clan, six hundred strong, in full clan regalia will march to Atlantic hall where the ceremony of initiating the new members will be held.

The program was a well rounded one and was thoroughly enjoyed by the large audience that was present.

in a body, will take place. Chief Alfred O. Diack and his staff will pass the degree.

THOMAS J. JOYCE.

Thomas J. Joyce, one of the oldest employees of the street railway and very popular among the patrons of the road died Sunday afternoon at the City Hospital after an illness of several weeks of typhoid fever and pneumonia. He was about 20 years of age and leaves a widow.

Mr. Joyce was vice president of the local street railway employees' union. He was also a member of Division 22 A. O. H. and a member of the St. Mary's C. T. A. society. He was a son of Michael Joyce of West Quincy.

Mr. Joyce, who resided on Putnam street, had been employed by the street railway as a conductor for many years and had run on every route of the city. He was always obliging and accommodating and therefore made many friends among the patrons of the road.

A large number of relatives and friends congregated in St. John's church Tuesday to pay their last respects to Thomas J. Joyce, for years a most popular employee of the local street railway company, who departed from mortal life last Sunday. The funeral cortege left the home of the deceased, 46 Putnam street shortly before 9 o'clock, headed a carriage bearing numerous floral tokens, carrying the esteem in which the late Mr. Joyce was held. A feature which added great solemnity to the funeral procession was the appearance of Charles H. MacGregor, PC, South Shore, Gardner R. P. Barker, G. Edwin Pratt, CG; William S. Wallace, David J. Pierce, T. John Evans and Arthur W. Burr, PC; Natick, Luther E. Cowles, PC; Old Colony, Alfred H. Nash and Charles S. Seal, PC; Bay State, Arthur L. Beals, EC; George A. Thatcher, G. David W. Bates and Calvin R. Barrett, PC; Cyprus, Frank H. Tyler, EC; Irving C. Webster, G; Cambridge, Charles E. Haddock and Howard P. Peak, PC; Beaumont, Alvin F. Pease, PC.

A solemn high mass of requiem was celebrated in St. John's church at 9 o'clock by Rev. John J. Casey, curate, assisted by Rev. John P. Cuffe, pastor of the Sacred Heart church, Atlantic, as deacon and Rev. John B. Holland, pastor of the Sacred Heart church in Weymouth Landing, as deacon. The music for the funeral was furnished by the Gregorian chant, furnished under the direction of the regular choir, with Miss Mary McConary officiating as organist. Solos were rendered at the offertory by Miss Angela McCarthy and Miss Mary Burns, who sang the "Ave" and the "Gloria" respectively. The choir at the funeral mass were John Ryan and Joseph Moriarty brother members of the railway men's local union.

The pall bearers were John C. Faircloth, delegate of the local railway men's union, Joseph Dennehy, another member of the same body, J. Edward Reinhalter, president of St. Mary's Temperance Society, Richard E. Barry, Daniel Duggan and John King, Honorary pall bearers from Division 22 of the order of Hibernians, of which the late Mr. Joyce was a member, included among the pall bearers, Thomas Regan, James Kane, and James O'Dowd. Delegations from other divisions of the same order were present in large numbers, as were representatives from the St. Mary's C. T. A. and M. R. society of West Quincy.

NEW YORK WINTER FASHIONS.

Narrow Skirts—Striking Color Contrasts—Elaborate Trimmings Galore.

It needs only a touch of sharp weather to bring out all the luxury of velvet and fur in every variety of make from dainty small cravats and reverses, to all enveloping garments cosy and warm but supple as satin and as clinging in effect.

Combinations of odd color, and differing materials are so much the rule that a garment set trimmed is noticeable. A dash of contrast cleverly used, lends distinction to many a suit or coat that would otherwise be flat and lacking in style. Linings are are what all the girls desire and are made with velvet and fur, most coveted bits of elegance. Leather bags are said to be growing smaller, but one sees huge flat ones still on every side in the shops and with the shoppers.

VELVET AND RATINE.

Velvet and ratine are two favorite materials for winter suits. Both were on the carpet last year but are increasingly worn at present. Combinations of velvet with woolen materials are most modish, and the cloth dress with a velvet coat is reckoned very smart, especially if the coat is one of the models cut off at the waist line in front and prolonged in long coat tails at the back. The soft woolen surface of the ratine makes very stylish trappings for suits and coats of serge, velvet, corduroy or other materials. White is the favorite tone for these, but one sees any amount of yellow, tans, soft warm reds, greens and the various purple tones used in this way.

FOR DAY WEAR.

For more general wear there were coats of caracul, broad-tail or the dyed muskrat that is so exactly like seal in texture and color that only an expert can tell the difference. This is sold under various names, and in many varying qualities but the high class furriers now prefer to use the exact names of the pelts they handle. Even skunk has dropped its masquerade as "Alaska Sable" and under its own name holds a high place in fashionable favor.

A NOVEL COMBINATION.

A novel combination met this season in the trimmings of skunk, made up most attractively in sets of stoles and muffers that are set with soft floppy bows of black messaline satin. Broadtail and ermine make a most distinguished contrast. The long style of the black fur with necks of ermine and trimmings of narrow ball fringe. The muff of the same fur has Vandyke points that are very new and smart. Muffers are all very large, very flat, and so flexible that they can be crumpled up in any direction.

Stiffness of any sort is a thing of the past in making up furs, and weight has disappeared with the stiffening. Many of the new muffers have pockets on the outside.

INEXPENSIVE PRICES.

Sets for the coming winter and year with tailored suits are of Civet cat, Lynx, Raccoon, Muskrat and American.

MAJOR-ELECT STONE.

Mayor-elect Eugene R. Stone is almost too well known to need any extended introduction. He is a hustler from the word "go" and anything he takes hold of is sure to be successful. Born in Boston in 1871, he received his education in the public schools of that city. In 1890 he accepted a position in the building department of a well known New York house with whom he remained until 1898 at which time he was its superintendent, resigning to accept a position with the Magee Furnace company with whom he remained many years. Leaving the company in 1904, Mr. Stone entered the City Council as a representative from Ward Two in 1905 and served several years. Here he did good service on several important committees. In 1908 he was the Republican candidate for Mayor, but was defeated at the polls. He has been mentioned since that year in connection with that office but has not yielded to it.

He is the present president of the Quincy Board of Trade, which position he has held for two years, during which time he has worked hard for the success of the organization. In 1910 when the movement was started to have a July Fourth celebration in Quincy, he was made the president of the general committee and as stated above, he worked night and day to make the affair a success.

He has also been prominently identified with the Washington Street Congregational church and has served as one of its officers.

Socially he is affiliated with the Masonic fraternity, being a member of Rural Lodge, St. Stephen's Chapter and Quincy Commandery, K. T. and is also a member of Quincy Lodge of Elks and the Granite City Club.

He is a pleasant man to meet and is always ready and willing to lend his aid and any movement for the betterment of mankind and the city.

WOL. UNITARIAN YESTERS.

The first vespers of the season will be held Sunday afternoon, at 4:30 o'clock. As in years past, so this year the best musical talent to be had will participate in these services of worship. All seats are free. Kindly be in your seat a few minutes before the service begins. The Temple quartet of Boston will sing and the following is the order of service: Organ prelude, Doxology, Introductory Congregation, Anthem, "The Lost Chord," Responsive reading, Psalms p. 72, Congregation, Hymn 142, "The Lord is my Light," George E. McGowan, Allison, Scripture reading, Anthem, "Glorious Song," Gabriel, Prayer, Anthem, "The Lord's Prayer," Hymn 142, offering, Anthem, "Abide with me," Potter, Temple Quartet, Sermonette, Prayer, Hymn 780, Benediction, Congregation, Organ Postlude.

JUNIORS ENTERTAIN.

Junior Auxiliary of St. Chrysostom church gave an entertainment and candy sale in the parish rooms Thursday evening which was a success in every way, adding a nice sum to their treasury. The program included "Mother Goose's Goslings" and the different parts were taken as follows:

Mother Goose—Dorothy Parker. Old Mother Hubbard—Edith Hooley. Old Woman who lived in a shoe—Elsie Thompson. Contrary Mary—Annette Shultz. Little Red Riding Hood—Dorothy Heimgar. Little Bo-Boop—Louise Tuttle. Little Miss Muffet—Rachel Tuttle. Rock-a-bye Baby—Martha Hooley. Jack and Jill—Grace McDonald and Marion Orr. Georgie Porgie—Verna Bent. Willie Winkie—Ruth Drew. Jack Horner—Grace Purdon. Boy Blue—Anne McTeer. Humpty Dumpty—Ruth Parker. Tom, the Piper's son—Helen Arthur.

Appropriately costumed they made attractive pictures. All took their parts exceedingly well, showing the careful training of the leader of the Auxiliary, Miss Amy Lois Raves.

In closing six little girls gave a "Goodnight dirge" in "Faintly" with dolls and candles. They were cute and in singing "Six little maidens all in a row" one by one they left the stage.

Those in the drill were: Mary Anderson, Josephine Kessler, Lily Land, Barbara McTeer, Ethel Poch and Gertrude Poch and were drilled by Miss Nettie A. Parloe.

TEN MORE VOTES FOR STONE.

In tabulating the official returns from Precinct Two, of Ward One, the City Clerk discovered an error of ten votes in the favor of Eugene R. Stone. The returns as made by the election officers, gave him 476 votes in this precinct, when it should have been 486. The error was due in carrying over the vote from the tally sheet to the book.

This therefore, makes Stone's majority 242, instead of 232 as an announced.

PROUD—"So you are the father of twins?" "Yes. They look just like me, don't they?"

"Oh, well, I wouldn't worry. Some children, when they get older, don't look at all the way they did when they were babies."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

MASS. FIELD SCHOOL ASSO.

At the monthly meeting of the Parents' and Teachers' Association of the Adams school was held in the school building, Thursday evening, December 7, 1911. The meeting was attended by over two hundred. The president, Alfred O. Black was in the chair and after the records of the previous meeting had been read, a musical program was in order, which was furnished by the Misses Fallon and Barry, graduates of the school in a manner that was greatly appreciated by those present.

The speaker of evening, Dr. D. B. Reardon, was next introduced by the president officer and his discourse on "Medical Inspection" was interesting and highly instructive and enabled the parents and other factors present to derive much useful knowledge concerning the physical qualities of the child. The doctor spoke in a clear, easy manner and his every argument was thoroughly weighed by the many who were in attendance. He also spoke of the different phases of inspection and brought home the necessity of stringent care with regard to the development of the child.

The excellent address will appear in full in Saturday's Ledger.

Dr. Reardon was warmly applauded and was tendered a vote of thanks at the conclusion of his remarks. After the doctor's speech, the report of the building committee was presented and was received with much favorable comment. It was stated that a petition for the Madison street school had been presented to the City Council, containing 516 names. Councilman John R. Richards, a member of the finance committee, the committee to which this petition has been referred, asserted that he felt sure the petition would be granted.

An executive committee was appointed, whose duty it shall be to keep in touch with the progress of the petition, and to report, when necessary, concerning the petition itself. This committee is to be the active working bringing about the selection of the Madison avenue lot, the place upon which the new Adams school will be erected.

The matter of ash accumulation near the school building, caused much discussion. It was decided that after a lapse of seven years, the ashes in the rear of the school building were removed about 2 years ago. At that time 18 ash cans were purchased by the school committee, in an endeavor to have the ashes removed regularly. The school committee would work in harmony with the city. The Republican party of Quincy have an immense opportunity to disprove the theory of non-partisan recently in municipal affairs, as well as in state and national affairs.

Mayor-elect Stone was introduced and he was some minutes before the applause had died down sufficiently for him to be heard. He thanked the word committees for their loyalty in the recent campaign, as well as to the Republican party in general for the unanimous support they had given him, as shown by the vote. He reiterated the promise which he made at the rallies, held before the election, to give the city a business administration in every possible way. To look carefully into the development of Quincy's superb waterfront. He also said that he had made no promises and would not be unhampered. In the selection of his officials he would select men who he considered best qualified for the positions.

Principal Townsend introduced and extended a cordial invitation to all parents, teachers, pupils and friends of the school, to be present at the reception to be tendered Miss Eliza Sheahan in the school hall next Thursday, in honor of her completion of a 46 years' teaching career. Miss Sheahan is about to retire and a fitting reception will add greatly to the occasion.

A committee, composed of former pupils of Miss Sheahan, was appointed to draw up resolutions of esteem for the veteran teacher and this petition will be presented and read at the next meeting of the association.

To a solo given by Miss Dagda Nelson, assisted by Professor Wrigley terminated the exercises, while the serving of refreshments by the hospitality committee, under the charge of Miss Jennie Griffin, teacher of the fifth grade, assisted by five parents, brought a most successful gathering to a close.

THE HEIRS OF ALL THE EARTH.

Thomas Wentworth Higginson.

From street and square, from hill and glen,
Of this vast world beyond my door,
I hear the tread of marching men:
The patient armies of the poor.

The halo of the city's lamps
Hangs a vast torchlight in the air,
I watch it through the evening damps;
The masters of the world are there.

Not ermine clad, nor clothed in state,
The title deeds not yet mud-
plain:
But walking early, toiling late,
The heirs of all the earth remain.

Some day by laws as fixed and fair
As guide the planets in their sweep
The blind shall see, the lowly rise,
The harvest fruits of time shall reap.

The peasant's brain shall yet be wise
The untamed pulse beat calm and still,
The blind shall see, the lowly rise,
And work in peace time's wondrous will.

Some day without a trumpet's call,
This shall over the earth be blown,
The heritage comes back to all,
The myriad monarchs take their own.

MRS. BASSETT'S SQUASH PIE.

(Mrs. Hesper Basset speaks.)
Wal—howdy do, Miss Robbins;
how're all your folks today? This is pretty tryin' weather for us old folks,
but I manage to get along middlin'
well for me. I've been sort of scared about your ma—she's lookin' real peaked this summer—just the sort to wilt right down under a hot spell like this.

You don't mean to tell me that she's goin' with you over to the Taunton Cattle Show next week? I call that dreadful risky—her in such feeble health too.

Wal—yes—a cattle show is a dreadful interesting place, certain sure.
We all on us went over to it last year,
but I ain't been before since—why, I don't know when it must have been the year that Lyddy fell down the siller stairs. You see, she was plainty to plant some dahila roots, an'
Hub—oh! who went over? Why all our folks, and sister Sally and her folks, an' Hiram John an' his folks,
and Sarah Bell Ann—she ain't got no folks, but it's all her own fault, because John Henry Allen, he—

Oh, yes, it was a family party, sure enough—St. Bartlett, he fixed up seats for us in the old milk-wagon, and took us over. Land, I felt as if I was going to school again in that old school-wagon 'a' used to run. I sort of expected Hime and Benny to get to picking at each other, the way
they used to, or to go to throwin' spit-balls at Sarah Ann an' me, or to put their feet in the dinner kittle and spoil the squash pie. But that wouldn't have been a loss sure enough,
as it turned out, though, land knows,
I never thought of such a thing when I put it in. What! hadn't you never heard tell about my squash pie 'a' I took for our dinner over to Cattle Show? Mercy me! Why, I thought, everybody in two counties had heard about that. Folks seem to be such awful hands for talk nowadays.

Wal, as I was tellin' you, St. Bartlett
they went along pretty smart, though they ain't no handsome as they might be—not by a long shot—won't never be lung for their looks—though, for that matter, neither will St. them Bartlett's faces always did look like the

IN GAY NEW YORK.

Horse Show and Opera Crowds—How
They Look and What They Wear.

The city is at its gayest just now
and Fifth Avenue which has a constantly increasing number of dainty shops-outfitters in attraction the famous Rue de la Paix of Paris.

The crowds one sees on the Avenue,
at the opera and at all the smaller affairs is well worth looking at from almost any point of view. The Horse Show that closed the season at the Garden a short time since was if anything more brilliant than any of its predecessors. Good taste was the rule in women's dress at both day and evening sessions, and though very costly outfits were worn, garishness, except in a few stray instances, was notably absent.

AT THE OPERA.
At the opera there have been an unusual number of red gowns worn, but as a rule the red material is thin, and draped over white so that its effect is softened. Red is undoubtedly the predominant color however in all its various shades, from Hunter's pink to the deep red of the opera.

At the opening night of the opera
one distinguished leader of the inner circle wore not a single jewel with her dress of silver lace, in surroundings
where strings of pearls, diamonds,
rubies and emeralds flashed and sparkled in endless combination. "Tiaras were more in evidence than at last year's opening night, but were not nearly so much worn as some years since when every woman seemed to aim at being a near-Duchess or March-ioness.

SCARF DRAPERIES.
Some of the prettiest evening and dinner gowns are evolved from a series of scarf draperies. There is a tight fitting messaline underdress,
draped about the neck with a skirt while the bodice will have a matching scarf draped about the shoulders in rich cashmere, or prolonged below the waist in sash effects.
No end of head fashions are used, and the scarfs are garnished with either printed, painted or embroidered designs. Sometimes all the trimmings are combined, and very up-to-date effects are secured where pretty bordered materials are more or less beaded,
edged with narrow fringes to match,
and then use in scarf style for draperies.

GAS COMMITTEE REPORT.

At a meeting of the City Council held Monday evening, the special committee, appointed to investigate the causes existing for the high price of gas in Quincy, made its report. It is as follows:

Dec. 11, 1911.
Quincy City in Council.

The committee appointed by the City Council by vote, Sept. 11, 1911 to investigate the Gas Co. and the Board of Gas and Electric Light Commissioners with the object of cheaper gas service in our city, having performed their duty, submit the following report:

In view of the fact that the Gas Co.
has claimed that the reason for the high price of gas originally charged has been owing to the conditions prevailing prior to their entering the field, your committee has gone into the situation under the old company up to June 30, 1901, this having been used as a basis in a measure for our unfavorable position at this time and a committee having looked into the matter at that date, we submit their analysis, this having been submitted by your committee to the Gas
Co. and also to the Gas Commissioners. The report of their findings
then was as follows:

An analysis of these data shows that the physical conditions of the Citizens' Gas Light Co. in 1900 is practically the same as it was in 1889. (As a matter of fact there has been no material change in the plant for twenty years.) No gas has been bought and no buildings added. Since the present owners have had possession $122,500 have been spent in improving the machinery and manufacturing appliances. A comparison of the balance sheets shows the machinery and manufacturing appliances
were valued at $35,000 in June 30, 1889, while on June 30, 1900, they were valued at $183,250, an increase in value of $148,250 from an expenditure of about $120,000.

Street mains in 1889 were valued at $100,000, in 1900 at $25,474.00,
an increase in value of $74,526.00.
In 1900 the reports show 459 meters in use valued at $37,781.91, an increase in value of $27,781.91 for an increase of 131 in the number of meters in use.
The most remarkable item of all
however, is the increase in notes payable.

On June 30, 1889, notes payable were returned at $12,500.00. On June 30, 1900 they stood at $38,500.00, an increase of $26,000.00, whereas the table of "Sunday Expense and Construction Charges" made up by the Auditor of the Board of Gas and Electric Light Commissioners a copy of which is herewith shows that the total expenditure for maintenance and development of the plant
during the administration of the present owners has been but $5,752.61,
while they have taken out in interest
and general salaries a sum exceeding $42,000.00. The conclusion is obvious. The Citizens of Quincy, by paying an exorbitant price for gas,
are carrying the burden of a large interest bearing debt which is not represented in the plant, and will doubtless be expected to retire this

NOT A CIVIL SERVICE JOB.

Many inquiries have been made of the local secretary of the Civil Service Commission in relation to the janitorship of the new court building being erected in Quincy. The inquiries are relative to when a Civil Service examination is to be held for the position. The fact is, that there will be no such examination, as the position is not a civil service position. The appointment of a janitor for the building, lies with the board of County Commissioners and parties seeking the position, should make application to them. It is understood that up to date twenty or more have applied for the position.

INDOOR PICNIC.

The Men's Get-Together club indoor picnic in the Memorial church Wednesday evening was a grand success. The ball game between those over 40 and those under 40 was one of the chief features. W. F. Blake was captain of the over 40 team. Lyndon T. Gurney was pitcher and puzzled the younger set by his old time curve. It was evident to all that at some time he must have been a star pitcher as few could hit his pitching. W. F. Cummings was catcher for the seniors and by his appearance it was not work, as he was out of practice. Mr. Henry Hallett was the star batter of the team and scored several home runs. Mr. B. F. Thomas as short stop, being so tall, did not hit a ball so over his head. Mr. Wm. Buckley played first base, and with Mr. Chas. Newcomb on second and Mr. Samuel Phillips on third and Mr. Chas. Haddock in the field the men showed that they had not forgotten how to work the bases. However the under parties beat the seniors 25 to 14. The juniors were captained by Mr. Fred Burditt and by his quiet manner outwitted the seniors especially in field work.

The second annual dance of the employees of the Rice & Hutchins shoe factory, will take place in Music hall Friday evening, January 19.

William H. Emerson of Brockton, has been appointed D. D. G. H. P. of the seventh caputular district, which includes St. Stephen's chapter, Royal Arch Masons.

Mayor Shea is having every department official make an inventory of city property in his department, which will be turned over to Mayor elect Stone on his inauguration.

Cards have been received from Miss Jennie B. Tobin of Coddington street, who announces that she is having a pleasant time in Liverpool, England.

Miss Mary Dearborn a former principal of the Coddington school was a welcome visitor to our city this week. She is leaving soon for the winter in Florida.

Cards have been received from Orange City, Florida, from Miss Clara L. Bliss, Miss Renick and Mrs. W. T. Tilley, who left the city recently for a winter in Florida.

MILTON

Invitations have gone out for the marriage on New Year's of Miss Grace Edwards of the Milton Public library and William Simpson of East Milton.

Miss Genevieve Dorothy of Sanford street, has returned from the Hart Hospital, where she had been confined with illness.

Miss Helen E. Horne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Horne, of Oak Road, have gone to Washington, D. C. to spend the winter. She is the secretary of Charles Francis Adams, the noted author and historian.

The many friends of the past few months ago, will be pleased to hear that he is able to be about again.

The members of the Tucker School Association have been vexed of late over the fact that the school committee has decided the use of the school hall, for any function or entertainment to which an admission fee is charged. A committee is investigating the matter with a view to settling the difficulty.

The many friends of Charles M. Gill, of Blue Hills Parkway, who has been seriously ill for the past few weeks were glad to be informed this week that he is recovering rapidly.

A dance in honor of her niece, was given to Miss Dorothy Hughes by Mrs. J. Malcolm Forbes, at her home on Milton Hill last Saturday.

A fair was held last week in the vestry of the Church of Our Saviour, East Milton.

A mass meeting of the Pilgrim Union Circuit League was held at the Lower Mills M. E. church last week. The speaker was F. M. Wilber of Hyde Park.

The Thursday Evening Club held a smoke talk in its rooms at its regular weekly meeting.

The sewer department has completed the laying of the pipes in Elliot street and the sewer itself now extends beyond the home of Chief of Police Pierce.

Superintendent James Sangster of the Town Hall and Inspector of Buildings George E. Bart are serving on the jury of the session of the Superior Criminal Court, at Dedham.

J. J. McAnaney, represented the government and Frank A. Tirrell the defendant. When the cases were called Wednesday the defendant contradicted his plea of not guilty and entered a plea of guilty. A fine of $100 was then imposed on each complainant. This is one of the largest fines ever imposed in the Quincy court.

As a result of the raid a sum of nearly $1,000 was involved. Of this amount, the sum of $500 has been paid into the court by Myatt and the balance found present at the time of the raid and the liquor and furniture forfeited to the Commonwealth amounted to over $200.

Under the law relative to the issuing of permits for the transportation of liquor, a conviction for violation of the law revokes the permit granted by the court, without further action by the Council.

At a quiet house wedding Wednesday evening at the home of her parents Miss June Savory Collette, formerly of Wollaston, became the bride of Edwin Lord Cook of Prospect street, Atlantic.

The ceremony was performed at 6:30 by Rev. Wesley Wiggin of the Wollaston Methodist church and was attended only by the immediate relatives.

The marriage took place under a canopy of evergreen and holly from which a large bell was suspended. An interested spectator was young Robert Cook, age 10 weeks, who survived the scene from the arms of his mother Mrs. Arthur Cook, sister-in-law of the bride.

The bride was charming in white silk and carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses. She was given away by her father Harry A. Collette.

She was attended by her sister Miss Clara Collette, carrying a bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums. Daniel Manning of Atlantic, an intimate friend of the groom acted as best man.

A largely attended reception followed from 7:30 until 9:30 at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Needham, formerly of Boston, I. appeared to give advice. The last heard from him, he was working on a farm in Quincy, Mass., but has not been seen or heard from by any of his friends for more than twenty-five years and of course has been considered dead. But the law calls for proof for his wife who is still living. It is simply to be used to get a pension for his wife who is still living. Hoping to hear from this soon I remain

Yours Respectfully

Sam Gompers says the labor unions need no house cleaning. There is an impression, however, that a little chloride of lime around the sink drain would make things smell better.

Santa Claus has to take so much time now fixing himself up with asbestos whiskers and other modern improvements, that he may not get around to make the usual number of gifts.

Wall street note: The Lone Forks, Ark. blatter having printed an editorial headed "Be Honest," the bears seized the opportunity to make a concerted attack on the market, and prices crumbled rapidly.

The complaint is frequently made that there are no ruins in this country to attract tourists. But most of our grand ruins are being put up by buildings that promise to supply this demand in a few years.

Any man who ever got up on a summer night to sleep a mosquito can understand the trouble Italy is having with those slippery Araks, with the difference that it costs Italy $2,500,000 a day.

The United States is said to be the only country that does not limit the amount of explosives that can be discharged in a mine. Our legislators don't believe in doing any work that can be laid off on Divine Providence.

With five democratic aldermen Somerville is no longer "The Hammer Republic" of the commonwealth. Boston Herald.

No, that's a fact. The honor now surely belongs to our own city of Quincy.

Good for William H. Teasdale and the Quincy Board of Trade. After weeks of negotiation and letters Quincy is to have an evening train to Boston that will accommodate theatre goers and seem more like old times when we had more frequent service.

Beginning New Year's day, Jan. 1, the 6:59 P. M. train from Braintree will stop at Quincy at about 7:04 every week day, except Saturdays.

A train was also asked for West Quincy but only the one for the Centre was secured, a case of half hearted better than none.

Now that we are to have the train, those going to Boston evenings should bear in mind that there is a train at 7:04, even though it is not on the time table and demonstrate to the railroad management that the train is a necessity and appreciated.

Now if the gap between 12:19 and 12:22 could be filled in with a train for the matinee girl most every one would be fairly contented until the long anticipated four track service goes into effect.

The management of the New York, New Haven & Hartford R. R. deserves the thanks of the travelling public, who use the Quincy depot for the efforts they are making to rid the depot of drunks and other objectionable persons who use it as a loafing place.

For a long time, it has been a source of great annoyance to passengers, to find drunks curled up on the seats, young hoodlums, loafing about the depot, smoking and using language that was of an offensive nature.

Recently, the railroad has placed a special railroad officer on duty at the station and as a result several have been placed under arrest and brought into court, where fines averaging $15 have been imposed.

The officer is doing good work, and of the kind of work that will have good results, for $15 does not grow on every bush, these days and the hoodlum element will soon learn that it is better for them to find some other place to while away the time than at the depot.

As noted elsewhere, the railroad management has also placed a matron in charge of the ladies' room and a night watchman on duty.

SALARY INCREASES.
Notwithstanding the desire to economize in the expenses necessary for running city affairs, and that, of course, is correct, the action of the City Council in raising, substantially, the salary of the chief executive is to be commended. Out of all reason is the present remuneration for the vast amount of work and worry incident to the office and the amount of time taken in its proper fulfillment.

The voters of this section, taken as a whole, are not cheap men, and if the office of the Mayor of a city of this size is not worth the new salary ordered, it is worth nothing. Proper service in public places should be rewarded with a suitable wage.

We are sure we voice the sentiment of the community in saying that the city fathers are to be congratulated.

THE NEW ADMINISTRATION.
This newspaper is an ardent champion of the incoming administration, it firmly believes in its integrity, as a whole and its honest and fearlessness individually. We bespeak for its success in the accomplishment of many things under consideration and the proper fulfillment of the trust which is theirs through election to the various important offices.

We heartily believe the sentiments contained in the following communication. We endorse it thoroughly and firmly believe that the incoming Mayor is disposed to accept such views.

The letter follows:
Dec. 22, 1911.
Mr. Editor:
As a change in administration is very near in our city, I venture a few remarks concerning it.

Our prospective Mayor will come into the office with the very best wishes and expectations from his fellow citizens. All thoughtful men in our city look forward to his incumbency with the expectation that he will "make good."

It is safe to say that he will come into office unemployed; excepting that very true man taking such an office is pledged to the giving to the city the very best service in every respect that his powers enable him to give, and I would suggest that he should be given the opportunity to do so.

FAREWELL RECEPTION.

At a large farewell reception held in the vestry of the Wollaston Congregational church Wednesday evening, Rev. and Mrs. Edward A. Chase bade farewell to their many friends and parishioners.

In the receiving line were Rev. and Mrs. Edward A. Chase, Deacon and Mrs. Smith B. Harrington and Rev. and Mrs. Rufus B. Tobey.

The many friends attending from outside the parish attested to the numerous friendships that had been made and the broad lines upon which his pastorate had been conducted.

Many old parishioners who were unable to be present sent letters expressing regret and among those attending was Mrs. George Dickey, a former member of the church, coming from Maine in order to participate.

The clergy were well represented among those present being: Rev. and Mrs. Joseph W. Walker of the Wollaston Baptist church, Rev. and Mrs. Carl G. Horst of the Wollaston Unitarian, Rev. and Mrs. Wesley Whelan of the Wollaston Methodist and Rev. Davidson of the Atlantic Memorial church.

Changes of an important nature in the City Charter are suggested by the special committee of City Council appointed to look into the matter.

Large bodies are always unwieldy and from their size often hamper proper suggestions. That is the consideration, Mr. Mayor, which the Council is reduced in size and to consist of 9 members who will be on the city's payroll to the extent of $250 annually.

This with the matter of having the Mayor elected for two years are the matters that will require the most consideration. No one could doubt the advisability of the other two suggestions which provide for the Executive becoming an ex-officio member of the school committee and City Council, without having a vote.

At any rate should the amendments be enacted by the Legislature, the proviso is made that they shall not become operative until accepted by a majority of the legal voters of Quincy.

LITTLE BOY DROWNED.

In his anxiety to take a pair of skates, which his father had purchased as a Christmas present for him, Walter J. Quist, the twelve year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac A. Quist, of Hillside street, was drowned shortly after ten o'clock Friday night in Wilson's Lower quarry, off Centre street, a place which has before been the scene of pathetic drownings.

It seems that the Quist boy, in company with three other companions, Almar Sepala, also of 8 Hillside street, Twelve Quill of Hillside street, and George Djerf of West street, journeyed to the vicinity of the quarry shortly after 8 o'clock Friday morning, in an endeavor to enjoy themselves on the ice.

The Quist boy had his skates with him and after an hour had passed away in play, put them on and started to skate about. His companions had warned him not to skate, as the ice was constantly cracking beneath him, and he was able to go under it at any moment.

Finally the three youngsters were attracted by the cracking of the ice. They immediately ran to assist him but were unable to reach him. The water in Quincy was about ten feet deep. High rocks surrounded the water on all sides and it would require a long pole to reach the drowning youth. Young Sepala happened to have a hockey stick with him, and he used it to try to reach the boy, but he was unable to do so.

The many friends attending from outside the parish attested to the numerous friendships that had been made and the broad lines upon which his pastorate had been conducted.

Many old parishioners who were unable to be present sent letters expressing regret and among those attending was Mrs. George Dickey, a former member of the church, coming from Maine in order to participate.

The clergy were well represented among those present being: Rev. and Mrs. Joseph W. Walker of the Wollaston Baptist church, Rev. and Mrs. Carl G. Horst of the Wollaston Unitarian, Rev. and Mrs. Wesley Whelan of the Wollaston Methodist and Rev. Davidson of the Atlantic Memorial church.

Changes of an important nature in the City Charter are suggested by the special committee of City Council appointed to look into the matter.

Large bodies are always unwieldy and from their size often hamper proper suggestions. That is the consideration, Mr. Mayor, which the Council is reduced in size and to consist of 9 members who will be on the city's payroll to the extent of $250 annually.

This with the matter of having the Mayor elected for two years are the matters that will require the most consideration. No one could doubt the advisability of the other two suggestions which provide for the Executive becoming an ex-officio member of the school committee and City Council, without having a vote.

At any rate should the amendments be enacted by the Legislature, the proviso is made that they shall not become operative until accepted by a majority of the legal voters of Quincy.

LITTLE BOY DROWNED.

In his anxiety to take a pair of skates, which his father had purchased as a Christmas present for him, Walter J. Quist, the twelve year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac A. Quist, of Hillside street, was drowned shortly after ten o'clock Friday night in Wilson's Lower quarry, off Centre street, a place which has before been the scene of pathetic drownings.

It seems that the Quist boy, in company with three other companions, Almar Sepala, also of 8 Hillside street, Twelve Quill of Hillside street, and George Djerf of West street, journeyed to the vicinity of the quarry shortly after 8 o'clock Friday morning, in an endeavor to enjoy themselves on the ice.

The Quist boy had his skates with him and after an hour had passed away in play, put them on and started to skate about. His companions had warned him not to skate, as the ice was constantly cracking beneath him, and he was able to go under it at any moment.

Finally the three youngsters were attracted by the cracking of the ice. They immediately ran to assist him but were unable to reach him. The water in Quincy was about ten feet deep. High rocks surrounded the water on all sides and it would require a long pole to reach the drowning youth.

Young Sepala happened to have a hockey stick with him, and he used it to try to reach the boy, but he was unable to do so. Finally the three youngsters were attracted by the cracking of the ice.

"LONG BEFORE I KNEW"

James Whitcomb Riley.

Yes, a little bit of "feller"—I remember still—List to almost cry for Christmas, like a youngster will.
Fourth of July's nothin' to it. New Year's and a snail!
Easter Sunday—circus day—yes! all dead in the shell!
Lordy, though! 'at night, you know, to set around and hear
The old folks work the story off
about the angels and
And "Santy" skootin' round the roof
all wrapped in fur and fuzz—
Long afore
I knowed who
"Santy Claus" wuz.

List to wait, and set up late a week
or two ahead.
Couldn't hardly keep awake, no
woudn't go to bed.
Kittie stovin' on the fire, and mother
sittin' near by.
Darin' socks and rockin' in the
skreeky rocking-chair;
Pap' gapp, and wonder where it was
the money went.
And quail with its footed heels, and
spill his liniment;
And we a-dreamin' sleep while when the clock, 'at tick and buzz—
Long afore
I knowed who
"Santy Claus" wuz.

Size the fireplace, and figger how
"Old Santy" could Manage to get in the chimney
like they said he would.
Wish that I could hide and see him—
wondered what he'd say.
Ef he ketch'd a feller layin' 'er him
thataway.
But I let him, and liked him, same as if he had Turned to pat me on the back and say,
"Look-a-here, my boy,
Here's my pack—jes' he'y, yours' like all good boys does!"
Long afore
I knowed who
"Santy Claus" wuz.

Notes and Comments.

SURPRISED BY FRIENDS.
Mr. and Mrs. John J. King, of 28
Bradford street, who were recently
united in marriage were pleasantly surprised Monday evening by twelve of Mr. King's gentlemen friends, who called to pay their regards and to present him with a wedding gift in the shape of a substantial purse.
Mrs. King assisted her husband in welcoming the guests and then retired, leaving the party to enjoy the of the house. The evening proved
one of rare enjoyment with games,
music, and refreshments.

Notes and Comments.

The feature of the evening, however, was the presentation to Jack of the purse. This pleasant party fell upon John P. Walsh, the president of the club, who in a burst of oratory told how sorry the club was to lose one of its bachelor members, yet they bore him no ill will. He desired to compliment Jack on the excellent choice he had made in the selection of a life partner, and he wished both he and Mrs. King all kinds of good luck.
Lapsing into a personal strain he said that he had sometimes thought of marrying himself, but just when such an event would take place, he was not prepared to say, but after seeing how happily John was situated, he could not tell how soon something might happen to him and some of the other members of the club.

Notes and Comments.

In accepting the gift, Mr. King thanked the members heartily both for himself and for Mrs. King and in closing urged the Governor and his friends to go and do likewise.

CITY COUNCIL.

The meeting of the City Council,
Monday evening, was the last regular meeting of the year and in fact
one of the most important, from the fact that some of the most important
measures acted upon by the president of the Council, were passed. These included the raising of the salary of the Mayor from $1,000 a year to $2,500 a year and the appropriating of $25,000
for the widening of Hancock
street, between Granite and the junction of School and Elm streets
to a uniform width of 65 feet. The money for this improvement is borrowed under the special act of the legislature of 1899, which allows the
city to borrow money outside of the
debt limit for street improvements.
The loan extends over a period of ten years. This amount, however, is only sufficient to take the land necessary for the widening and an additional appropriation of $25,000 will be required later to do the construction
work.

At one time it was proposed to do
this work under the act authorizing
the assessment of betterments on the
beneficiaries, but after due consideration
of the matter the Council decided to abandon it to do it in that way.

Other important matters disposed
of was the increasing the salary of
the members of the Board of Health
and the appropriation of $2,500 to purchase the land upon which the portable steam crusher is now located.

Councilman Sandberg said that he did not quite agree with some of the wards, especially that made to the Welch estate.

Councilman Ericson said that in the case of the Jones estate, he believed
some buildings on this property that
should be moved, but were too old.
This property is now paying an income of $1,000 a year and when we take the buildings, this will be cut off.

Councilman Smith complimented the committee on the manner in which
the awards were made.

The method used by the committee was
a most sensible one. They got experts,
who know values better than we do.
As far as we know, only one party
objected to the awards. He has given us some figures on a sheet, but we
do not know, if they are right.

Councilman Bailey said the work
could never be done as cheap as now.
He doubted if a proposition of this kind could be put through without
the aid of the Council. He believed that experts who had passed upon it, were
well qualified to say what the land
was worth. The only safe and sane
course was to accept the awards made
by the committee.

Councilman Richards asked the
chairman of the Street committee, if
the experts gave any good reason for
the diversion of opinions.

Councilman Gardner replied that the
experts went into the matter
thoroughly and explained how the
land had arrived at its conclusions.

Some of the abutters came before
the committee and asked to be heard
and they were invited in to the meeting.

Councilman Campbell asked questions about the figures, using one
of the sheets that had been prepared by Mr. Green.

Councilman Gardner said that the individual figures of the experts were
in his hands and that those figures
given, he did not know if correct or
not, as they had not been taken from
the experts' figures.

The motion of Councilman Nowland
to refer to the next Council was lost.

Councilman Nowland and Leslie
started to further argue the question,
but were ruled out of order by the Chairman, under the rule 11, that no
member shall speak more than twice
on a question under debate, without
the permission of the Council.

The order was then passed, to be
ordained, by roll call, 16 voting yes
and 5 no as follows:
Yes—Bailey, Bolster, Boyd, Branch,
Bryant, Cherrington, Duffy, Ericson,
Forde, Gardner, Histen, Parlee, Ross,
Sandberg, Smith, Stanley—16.
No—Campbell, Jenkins, Leslie,
Nowland, Richards—5.

Absent—Sodergren.
The special committee appointed to consider what changes, if any, are necessary in the City Charter, report

vide:

That the City Council shall consist
of nine members, one from each ward
to be elected annually, and three at large, one for one year, one for two years and one for three years, and
thereafter one member at large for
three years.

That the members of the City Council shall receive an annual salary of $250 each.

That the Mayor shall be a member,
ex-officio, of the School Committee,
without the power to vote.

That the Mayor shall be elected for
a term of two years.

That the Mayor shall be Chairman,
ex-officio, of the City Council without
power to vote.

In the event of any bill embodying
these amendments being enacted by
the Legislature, the same shall not become operative until accepted by a majority of the legal voters of the City of Quincy.

The special committee appointed to
consider what changes, if any, are
necessary in the City Charter, report
recommending that the Mayor be authorized to petition the Legislature to amend the City Charter to provide:

That the City Council shall consist
of nine members, one from each ward
to be elected annually, and three at
large, one for one year, one for two
years and one for three years, and
thereafter one member at large for
three years.

That the members of the City Council shall receive an annual salary of $250 each.

That the Mayor shall be a member,
ex-officio, of the School Committee,
without the power to vote.

That the Mayor shall be elected for
a term of two years.

That the Mayor shall be Chairman,
ex-officio, of the City Council without
power to vote.

In the event of any bill embodying
these amendments being enacted by
the Legislature, the same shall not
become operative until accepted by a majority of the legal voters of the City of Quincy.

CITY COUNCIL.

The meeting of the City Council,
Monday evening, was the last regular meeting of the year and in fact
one of the most important, from the
fact that some of the most important
measures acted upon by the president of the Council, were passed. These included the raising of the salary of the Mayor from $1,000 a year to $2,500 a
year and the appropriating of $25,000
for the widening of Hancock
street, between Granite and the
junction of School and Elm streets
to a uniform width of 65 feet. The
money for this improvement is borrowed under the special act of the legislature of 1899, which allows the
city to borrow money outside of the
debt limit for street improvements.
The loan extends over a period of ten years. This amount, however, is
only sufficient to take the land necessary for the widening and an additional appropriation of $25,000 will
be required later to do the construction
work.

At one time it was proposed to do
this work under the act authorizing
the assessment of betterments on the
beneficiaries, but after due consideration
of the matter the Council decided to abandon it to do it in that way.

Other important matters disposed
of was the increasing the salary of
the members of the Board of Health
and the appropriation of $2,500 to
purchase the land upon which the
portable steam crusher is now located.

Councilman Sandberg said that he
did not quite agree with some of the wards, especially that made to the Welch estate.

Councilman Ericson said that in the
case of the Jones estate, he believed
some buildings on this property that
should be moved, but were too old.
This property is now paying an in-
come of $1,000 a year and when we take the buildings, this will be cut
off.

Councilman Smith complimented the
committee on the manner in which
the awards were made.

The method used by the committee was
a most sensible one. They got experts,
who know values better than we do.
As far as we know, only one party
objected to the awards. He has given us some figures on a sheet, but we
do not know, if they are right.

Councilman Bailey said the work
could never be done as cheap as now.
He doubted if a proposition of this
kind could be put through without
the aid of the Council. He believed that experts who had passed upon it, were
well qualified to say what the land
was worth. The only safe and sane
course was to accept the awards made
by the committee.

Councilman Richards asked the
chairman of the Street committee, if
the experts gave any good reason for
the diversion of opinions.

Councilman Gardner replied that the
experts went into the matter
thoroughly and explained how the
land had arrived at its conclusions.

Some of the abutters came before
the committee and asked to be heard
and they were invited in to the meeting.

Councilman Campbell asked questions about the figures, using one
of the sheets that had been prepared by Mr. Green.

Councilman Gardner said that the
individual figures of the experts were
in his hands and that those figures
given, he did not know if correct or
not, as they had not been taken from
the experts' figures.

The motion of Councilman Nowland
to refer to the next Council was
lost.

Councilman Nowland and Leslie
started to further argue the question,
but were ruled out of order by the Chairman, under the rule 11, that no
member shall speak more than twice
on a question under debate, without
the permission of the Council.

The order was then passed, to be
ordained, by roll call, 16 voting yes
and 5 no as follows:
Yes—Bailey, Bolster, Boyd, Branch,
Bryant, Cherrington, Duffy, Ericson,
Forde, Gardner, Histen, Parlee, Ross,

In the last year eight to ten such centers have been in existence and they have proved popular. The plan now is to broaden the work, so as to make the school buildings more attractive to the adult element of the city's population, and to meet the demand of the growing sentiment in favor of the use of these buildings outside the few hours in which they are needed for purely educational purposes.—"Chicago Record-Herald."

A time of high prices is almost always a good time. It is the time of low prices that is to be feared. High prices are never an evil if they are normal. There are cities as large under prohibition, but that is by state and not by a local majority. In the recent city elections Lynn and Woburn voted "no" for the fifth successive time, and Newburyport for the sixth successive time.—Jamaica Plain News.

SAHM J. KIDDER.

The many Quincy friends of Nahum J. Kidder will be sorry to learn of his sudden death at South Boston, Tuesday, where for the past 27 years he has been a patrolman attached to Station 12.

Previous to his appointment as a member of the Boston Police department, Mr. Kidder resided in Quincy where he was in provision business in the store now occupied by Johnson Bros. in City Square.

Monday night when on duty Mr. Kidder was seized with pains in his chest, near his heart. Led O'Neill relieved him from further duty, and he went to his home. Tuesday he was not much improved, and consulted his physician and hoped to secure relief through the medicine prescribed, but he passed away before he had received the medicine.

Tuesday afternoon shortly after 12 o'clock he entered the drug store of George Alexander, 189 Dorchester avenue, to have a prescription filled. He handed the paper to Charles Alexander, and was then seen to water and fall while standing at the counter. He fell sideways to the floor and died instantly. Capt. Thomas C. Evans was immediately notified.

Throughout South Boston Patrolman Kidder was well known and respected. For more than a quarter of a century he had performed faithful duty as a policeman, and won the respect of all the residents. He was born in Mansfield, N. H., Feb. 10, 1852, and was educated in the public schools of that town. He came to Boston when a young man, worked in various lines, and was appointed a patrolman Dec. 24, 1884. He was assigned to Division 6, was transferred to Division 16, Jan. 22, 1899, and then to Division 12, Nov. 26, 1900. For many years he covered the route of Broadway and Dorchester, G. and Old Harbor streets. He was a member of Bethesda lodge, I. O. O. F., and of the Boston Police Relief Association. He is survived by a wife and one daughter.

After a few more Christmases, it may become customary to summons people to court for failure to swap even and obtaining presents on false pretences.

AT THE CHURCHES.

FIRST CHURCH.

The Christmas service of the Sunday school of the First Church was held Saturday evening. The members of the school and friends gathered at the church at 6 o'clock, where they sang Christmas carols and listened to an address on Christmas by Rev. Adelbert L. Hudson. Following this the school repaired to the chapel which had been gaily decorated with wreaths and evergreen.

Here the Christmas festival was held. There was a two act play by the children of the school, under the direction of Mrs. Davis. At the conclusion of the play, Santa Claus entered the chapel and for the next hour was kept busy distributing presents from a large tree that occupied a prominent place in one corner of the chapel. Every member of the Sunday school received a present and there were some special gifts for Superintendent Johnson of the Sunday school and for the sexton. Rev. Mr. Hudson was also remembered and he was also given a bouquet of violets by Mrs. Hudson and a present from Mrs. E. J. Channing Butler, the pastor of the church, who is confined to his home by illness was not forgotten, for after the exercises, a large basket containing fruit and remembrances was sent to his home by the school.

After there was a large attendance at the morning service, Rev. Mr. Hudson preaching an eloquent sermon on Christmas and its meaning. In the afternoon there was a vesper service at which an unusually fine musical service was given by the choir under the direction of Mr. Weston.

The church was beautifully decorated with Christmas greens, the galleries being hung with double garlands of laurel, with laurel wreaths at the windows and on the crimson damask curtains and pulpit.

The pulpit was the only flower and color used except the Christmas greens.

The auditorium of the church was simply and handsomely decorated with Christmas greens, and the pulpit surrounded by tall palms with touches of red in the form of potted azaleas. Miss Marion Moorhouse, rendered beautifully two selections on the cello, in addition to the vocal music furnished by the choir.

Rev. Carl G. Hord conducted an impressive service consisting of scripture reading, the usual responsive services and a brief sermon in accord with the spirit of the season.

Reverent tribute was paid to the Master, whose steps we seek to follow, and the life, lived so long ago, the fruits of which are made manifest in the lives of loyal disciples today.

Following the morning service, the Sunday school held its session in the vestry which consisted in singing of carols and devotionary services appropriate to the day. Miss Evelyn Cummings told a story of the Christ Child by Andrea Hofar. Many parents and friends of the pupils remained to enjoy the service.

The annual Christmas entertainment of the Wollaston Unitarian Sunday school took place Saturday evening and opened with carol singing by all in the church.

A five act play entitled "A Bachelor's Christmas" followed in the vestry which was well received.

The distribution of presents and candy to the audience by Santa Claus and a large corps of helpers closed the evening.

In charge was a committee of the Sunday school consisting of Miss Dorothy Fay, Miss Mildred Polk and Miss Catherine Gentry. The candy was coached by Miss Mollie Brown and Miss Marjorie Fay.

Across the front of the vestry was an elaborate scene of evergreens, with a cabin at one side, upon which was staged a fairly extravagant entertainment in "Christmas tree land."

After a word of welcome by E. L. Duran, superintendent of the school, Rev. Joseph Walther led the meeting in prayer. A piano solo by Leon Bigness was enjoyed.

As the scene opened, two children, Hans and Gretchen, are discovered in the forest searching for Santa Claus. Led on by various signs, they discover his dwelling and sing Christmas carols to greet him.

Santa appears out of the chimney of his house and greets the children. He soon reappears at the doors accompanied by Santa Claus children and gnomes who join in the Christmas songs.

The children are provided with warm wraps and Roland Forsyth, one of the gnomes recites "I know a brownie." A Christmas tree is brought to view with presents for all, including the audience.

Consisting of the characters: Santa Claus, Charles Hatfield, Hans, Harris Christopher, Gretchen, Mabel Christopher, Santa Claus children.

Howard Walther, Russell Sears, Clara Aseburg, Roland Forsyth, Dorothy Rawson, Clara Ross, Ella Aseburg.

The pastor, Rev. Joseph Walther was given a handsome travelling bag and military brushes by the Walther class and his wife was presented with a gold chain and pearl and diamond pendant by the ladies of the church.

Each of the Walter Men's class was remembered with a gift mostly of juvenile significance.

Prominent among the gifts were those presented the social committee of the men's class.

Messrs Waring, Harriman, Chase and Jewell received respectively an apron, dish pan, light soap and apron. All of the children were made happy by presents and all enjoyed the service.

The committee in charge consisted of Mrs. J. A. Jewell, Mrs. Joseph Walther and J. Arthur Sparrow.

UNIVERSALIST CHURCH.

The Sunday morning service at the Universalist church was appropriate for Christmas. Rev. Fannie Austin, the pastor, occupied the pulpit and preached an eloquent and inspiring sermon, taking for her topic, "Christmas Gifts." She spoke of the different kinds of gifts, and the different ways of giving, but the greatest of all gifts to each and to the whole world, was the gift of "Our Saviour."

A large audience was present. The music was especially fine, beautiful Christmas anthems were rendered, Mrs. Cutler of Weymouth, presiding at the organ.

The decorations were especially bright. George F. Spooner of Weymouth, presiding at this artistic display was made possible. The committee, assisting Mr. Spooner were: Miss Maude Cudworth, Mrs. Carrie Leonard, Mrs. Thos. V. Addison, Charles Holart, Bartlett Spooner and Freeman Hyland.

There was many a little heart brightened at the Christmas festival held in the church Saturday night. With Santa Claus, a pretty tree and many gifts of an appropriate nature the evening was delightfully spent.

Sunday morning the pastor preached an inspiring sermon on the subject of "Peace Upon Earth Good Will Toward Men." A choir of sixteen voices, under the direction of T. B. Pollard, sang three beautiful anthems. Fine music by the Quincy Point Orchestra with violin and cornet solos was also appreciated.

At 10 o'clock the Children's concert was given and heartily enjoyed. At this service a beautiful gift was presented to Ruth Knights in recognition of faithful attendance, the little girl having been present every session for 15 months.

The church was very tastefully decorated appropriate to the day.

The Sunday school gave a Christmas concert at four o'clock. Madame Morley, who had charge of the musical part of the exercises won many favorable comments upon the very satisfactory manner in which the program was carried out. The recitations were as follows: "The Old Story," Myrtle Parker, Marion Horton, Beatrice Sherman; "Little Followers of the King," Wallace Kerr, George Copeland, Richard Loud, Robert Sharpe, Robert Horton, singing by Frances Sherman, "What Little Folks Can Do," "Why?" John Wentworth; "The Message of the Christmas Bells," Lillian O'Brien, Ada Williams, Floris Williams, Frances Pitts, Dorothy Pitts. These recitations were coached by Mrs. E. W. Campbell.

In spite of the unusual length of the morning service, 314 gathered at the regular session of the Sunday school to enjoy the exercises.

At 3:30 the Junior Endeavor society met in the church. At this service the children sang Christmas hymns, quoted verses and heard a loving message on "Peace."

At the Y. P. S. C. E. meeting at 6 o'clock, "The Gift That Transforms the World" was the subject and Rev. C. Robert the leader. The meeting was a fine one and was very largely attended.

At 7 o'clock the regular evening preaching service was held. Christmas hymns were in order and the large chorus sang two selections under the leadership of A. D. Allen.

Many have expressed the hope that this chorus will become a permanent institution and sing occasionally, if not at every Sunday church service.

The pastor preached a strong message, appropriate to Christmas. Subject, "The Man Who Lived So Long Ago." Which he showed the uniqueness of Christ. This subject was his text in a series of sermons, on "Men Who Did Things."

of the room, much to the enjoyment of all, and the discomfort of Santa.

All of the thirty-three classes gave something, some clothing, others money to buy shoes, pay house rent, etc., and Santa made merry with the little folks toys, and a box of candy to all.

The decorations consisted of a large tree that looked very pretty with its ornaments and a number of smaller trees which gave a forest effect.

About thirty poor people will have had a happier Christmas because of the generous response in this Giving Service.

The services at Bethany church, Sunday morning, were appropriate to Christmas. Rev. Asher Anderson supplied the pulpit and preached an uplifting and inspiring sermon, taking his text from the 5th chapter of 2d Corinthians 14th verse. The thought which pervaded the discourse was "Peace Upon Earth Good Will Toward Men." A choir of sixteen voices, under the direction of T. B. Pollard, sang three beautiful anthems. DENNIS FORDE.

The funeral of Dennis Forde, one of Quincy's old residents who died Dec. 22 was held Monday from his late home, 25 Sumner street followed by a solemn high mass of requiem at St. John's church. It was one of the largest funeral services ever held from the church, something like forty carriages being required to convey the family and friends to the grave. Representatives from the Merry Mount Granite Co. and Division 5, A. O. H. were among the many in attendance.

Rev. John J. Coan was the celebrant, with Rev. John J. Casey as deacon and Rev. Patrick J. Scannell as sub-deacon. The Gregorian chant was sung by the regular choir under the direction of John Mahan organist.

At the offertory, Miss Josephine McCarthy sang "Pie Jesu" and after the absolution, Dennis S. Sweeney a nephew of the deceased, sang "Tremens Factus."

There was a profusion of beautiful flowers, including an anchor from the Merry Mount Granite Co. and a standing cross from Division 5, A. O. H. The burial was at St. Mary's cemetery, the bearers being Dennis J. Forde, Michael T. Sullivan, Daniel J. Forde, and Jeremiah Forde. Enos S. Costa and John J. Kavanagh, and David Crotty and William H. Sullivan representing the A. O. H.

The church was very tastefully decorated appropriate to the day.
